2. On the Committee assembling, the Hon'ble the Member in charge informed the other members that the Corporation of Calcutta had asked for further time to consider the Bill. If this had been granted, it would have been impossible to place the Bill again before the present Council. Government had however considered very carefully the question as to whether the Bill should be curtailed and confined to certain non-controversial and urgent clauses. On the whole, he was of opinion that it was not desirable to pass the Bill in its original form through the Council during the August session. Sufficient time was not available for the full consideration of certain controversial points which had been raised in various opinions, received in connection with the Bill. Moreover, the Corporation wished to propose changes in other sections of the Act, which were not touched by the Bill. He was prepared to give them time to mature their proposals with the object of legislating next year. He asked the Select Committee to recommend, therefore, that only those portions of the Bill which are of a really emergent nature be placed before the Legislative Council at the consideration stage. The two points which require immediate settlement are the amendment of the wording of section 54, the interpretation of which is in dispute between the Corporation and the Improvement Trust, and the raising of the rate of interest in sections 78 and 79 of the Act from four to six per cent.

On consideration of the position we have accepted the proposal of the Hon'ble the Member in charge that the Council be asked to proceed only with the abovementioned portions of the Bill.

We have discussed the proposed amendment of section 54, and it has been announced by the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation and the Chairman of the Improvement Trust that an equitable agreement has been come to in regard to the question of compensation for lands and buildings of the Corporation taken over by the Trust for the purposes of an improvement scheme. We are agreed that the details of the settlement of the dispute should be embodied in the Act and have made an amendment in section 54 accordingly. This amendment carries out the proposals made in the original Bill in sub-clause (1) of clause 15 and in sub-clause (3) of that clause, but it has also been agreed that the determining factor in regard to the question of payment of compensation by the Board to the Corporation in respect of lands taken over under section 54 should be the question whether the land taken over is going to be returned to the Corporation in accordance with the provisions of section 65 when the improvement scheme has been completed. If the land is so returned—in other words, forms an integral and permanent part of the scheme—the Corporation will be compensated for the temporary loss of it by its improved value on the completion of the improvement scheme. If it is not so returned, but is sold by the Trustees for recoupment purposes, compensation should be payable to the extent of the market value of the land as at the date of declaration made under section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act in respect of other lands scheduled for acquisition within the scheme. Compensation should be payable in all cases for buildings belonging to the Corporation and taken over by the Board.

We have also discussed the question of the amendment of sections 78 and 79 of the Act in regard to the rate of interest payable under those sections. The proposal to raise the rate to six per cent. appears in clause 21 of the Bill, that is to say, in clause (ii) of sub-section (5) of the proposed new section 78, and in sub-section (8) of the said section and also in the amendment to section 79 proposed in clause 22.

With one dissentient we consider that the raising of the rate of interest to six per cent. is justified, but we consider that in cases where the rate has already been fixed in accordance with the Act and where the agreement under the Act has already been executed, or is executed within two months after the coming into force of the increased rate, the old rate of four per cent. should be applied. A modified proposal to this effect is embodied in clause 3 of the revised Bill.

We recommend that the revised Bill as attached to this Report be taken into consideration and passed as amended by us, the Bill in its original form being not considered further. The amendments suggested in the clauses dealt with are on matters of working and, as those clauses have already been laid before the public, we do not consider that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication.

3. The Bill was published in English in the Calcutta Gazette of the 21st March, 1923.

CALCUTTA ;

The 23rd July, 1923.

Signed subject to the note of dissent annexed.

Note of Dissent by Babu Amulya Dhon Addy, M.L.C.

The first proviso of clause 4 and clause 7 should be omitted on the following grounds :—

- (1) When wards 19 to 25 of the Calcutta Municipality were added to the town of Calcutta, no concession was shown to the rate-payers of the said added area. The same consolidated rate has been levied on them since 1889 as that on the rate-payers of the town proper. I do therefore fail to understand as to why the total amount of rates on lands and buildings in Manicktala, Cossipore-Chitpur and Garden Reach should not be increased during the year 1924-25 and as to why the Corporation of Calcutta should be authorised to fix a lower rate on the annual valuation of the newly added area than that in the town of Calcutta during the years 1925-26 to 1928-29, specially as the annual valuation of holding in the newly added area is, in the opinion of the Assessor of the Calcutta Corporation, very low.
- (2) At present, the owners and occupiers of small holdings in the newly added area are assessed more heavily than those of big holdings, for in Cossipore-Chitpur the latrine-fee on holdings up to an annual valuation of Rs. 100 (one hundred rupees) is at the rate of 11 per cent. (eleven per cent.) while on holdings of the valuation of Rs. 400 (four hundred rupees) and upwards it is at the rate of 5 per cent. (five per cent.) subject to a maximum of Rs. 480 (four hundred and eighty rupees) per annum. In Manicktala, as will appear from the Report of the Government Boundary Committee, the aggregate rate on holdings up to an annual valuation of Rs. 100 (rupees one hundred) is 28·2 per cent. (twenty-eight point two per cent.) while that on holdings of the annual valuation of Rs. 3,000 (rupees three thousand) and upwards is 19·5 per cent. (nineteen point five per cent.). It is therefore thus desirable that all rate-payers should be similarly taxed as in Calcutta. The municipal rates on the poor should not in any way be higher than those on the rich as in the newly added area.
- (3) As will appear from the proceedings of the meeting of the Calcutta Corporation held on the 9th January, 1923, that they shall have to incur a capital expenditure of Rs. 90,00,000 (rupees ninety lakhs) for the improvement of the drainage, water-supply and lighting of Cossipore-Chitpur and Manicktala. They shall have certainly to incur not less than Rs. 20,00,000 (rupees twenty lakhs) for similar improvements in Garden Reach. Is it not therefore desirable that the rate-payers of the newly added area should be called upon to pay the same rate as those of the town of Calcutta to pay at least the interest of the loan to be raised for the execution of the said works, specially as the owners of holdings in the newly added area shall not have to pay an additional stamp duty at the rate of 2 per cent. (two per cent.) on instruments of sale of immovable property as in the case of the town of Calcutta under section 82 of the Calcutta improvement Act?

- (4) The sanitary condition of the newly added area, specially Manicktala, is not a satisfactory one and as under section 90 of the new Calcutta Municipal Act, the Corporation shall have to spend annually not less than three lakhs of rupees (Rs. 3,00,000) for the newly added area in the execution of original improvement works from the third year and as the new Corporation will consist of thirteen ward Commissioners elected by the rate-payers of the newly added area, there is not the least doubt that the Corporation shall have to provide substantial amounts from the very commencement of the new Act for the improvement of the said area.
- (5) In the very first year of the commencement of the Act, a very substantial amount is likely to be entered in the budget for the improvement of the newly added area as out of twenty-one members of the Budget Special Committee, including the Chairman, eight members will be elected by the Commissioners of the newly added area.
- (6) Undue favour appears to have been shown to the rate-payers of the newly added area though for one year as the town of Calcutta, including the area added in 1889, paying a revenue of one crore and fifty-eight lakhs of rupees in 1921-22 shall have only twelve representatives in the Budget Special Committee excluding the Chairman thereof, while the rate-payers of the newly added area paying an aggregate revenue of only Rs. 10,72,000 (rupees ten lakhs and seventy-two thousand) in the same year shall have eight representatives in the said Special Committee.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 1848L., dated Calcutta, the 23rd July, 1923.—The following Report of the Select Committee on the Calcutta Municipal (No. 11) Bill, 1923, (with the Bill, as amended by the Committee), is hereby published for general information.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL (No. 11) BILL, 1923.

We, the undersigned members of the Select Committee, to which the Bill to provide for certain matters in connection with the Budget Estimates of the Corporation of Calcutta for the year 1924-25, the fixing of the rates at which the consolidated rate and the taxes for that year shall be levied and imposed, and the arrangements to be made in connection with the raising of loans during that year, for the fixing of the percentage of the consolidated rate in respect of the added areas during the four succeeding years and for the amendment of section 20 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, in respect of the qualification of electors, was referred, have considered the Bill and have the honour to submit this, our report, with the Bill, as amended by us, annexed hereto. In reprinting the Bill, all changes made by us have, so far as possible, been underlined.

2. The more important changes are as follows :—

Preamble.—We have made two minor drafting alterations which call for no remark.

Clause 3.—We consider that, with a view to expedition, the scrutiny of the Budget, as framed by the Chairman, should be made by a Special Committee appointed somewhat in the manner laid down in the Thirteenth Schedule to the Act of 1888.

We have added to the number of members that shall serve on this Committee from the Cossipore and Maniktala Municipalities. The Garden Reach Municipality, we consider, is adequately represented under the Bill.

We have provided for the representation of the Corporation on this Special Committee by placing on the Committee eight Commissioners elected from among the ward Commissioners and four Commissioners elected from among the nominated Commissioners.

Clause 4.—The Special Committee will report direct to the Corporation. It is hoped that this will eliminate the present lengthy procedure under which the Corporation, after receiving the General Committee's revised Budget, refer the same again to another Committee of their own before considering the Budget.

We have provided, in the usual manner, against failure by the Commissioners of the municipalities included in the added areas to elect their representatives to the Special Committee.

We have provided that the Commissioners from the added areas who will serve on the Special Committee shall also serve on the Corporation when that body considers the final Budget Estimates and proposals as framed by the Special Committee.

We have also provided against default by the Special Committee or by the Corporation in the final framing, and in the passing, of the Budget Estimates and proposals.

We have considered the proviso to the original clause 4, and in our opinion the situation for the year 1924-25 will best be met by arrangements under which the totals of the rate on holdings, lighting rate, water rate and the latrine fees levied in respect of a holding in any of the added areas under the Bengal Municipal Act shall be deemed to be the consolidated rate levied under the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, for the year 1924-25.

It is necessary, however, to provide for the assessment of any new building in the said areas which otherwise would escape taxation altogether during that year and we have made a provision accordingly.

Some members of the Committee wish to widen clause 7 so as to give more relief to the added areas. Others wish to restrict the relief by confining it to the period during which the added areas are receiving no benefit under section 90 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923. The majority of us, however, consider that the clause as framed should stand as an equitable working arrangement.

Clause 8.—We have considered the proposed modification of clause 8, and we are of opinion that the 30th day of September preceding the election is the correct final date to be taken.

We consider that, in view of the provisions of section 25, it is better to omit the first proviso to sub-clause (a) of clause 20 which is likely to create difficulty. We have made some other drafting alterations in the clause and made it more specific.

The insertion of the words “or having been” in sub-clauses (a), (b) and (c) is made with a view to taking in cases such as those of a person who is still residing in the ward but has changed his place of residence therein and also cases of persons who have changed their professions, etc.

Clause 9.—We realize that in the transitory period between the old system and new system of assessment (i.e., in 1924-25) anomalous cases may arise, in which it is necessary that the Corporation should be able to apply equitable principles in modification of the strict letter of the law and also to prevent evasion. We have therefore, at the request of the Calcutta Corporation, inserted an enabling sub-clause in clause 9 to deal with this matter.

Note of Dissent by Babu Amulyadhon Addy, M.L.C.

Clauses 4 and 5 should be omitted on the following grounds :—

- (1) Even ancestral dwelling-houses which are regarded as sacred by the Indians are acquired to recoup the cost of construction of roads with the drainage, sewerage, water-supply and lighting thereof and the owners of the said houses are called upon to pay heavy sums for the exemption of the said houses from acquisition notwithstanding the fact that the opening of roads not only increases the value of adjacent lands but also improves the sanitation of the locality in which the public-at-large are benefited.
- (2) I admit an interest at the rate of 6 per cent. (six per cent.) on loans is reasonable, but I am strongly of opinion that it would be unreasonable on exemption fees which are fixed by the Board and against whose decision the persons aggrieved have no right of appeal to a higher and disinterested authority.

If the said suggestion is not accepted, then the words "not exceeding six per cent." may be substituted for the words "six per cent." so that the Board may fix the rate of interest from time to time having regard to the state of the money-market of Calcutta and specially the rate of interest which is paid by the Government of India on Promissory Notes.

It is regrettable that the Select Committee have thought it fit to amend the Calcutta Improvement Act simply by giving unlimited powers to the Board for the acquisition of surplus lands and by increasing the rate of interest on exemption fees from 4 to 6 per cent. (four to six per cent.) per annum. It is also regrettable that the suggestions of the public bodies to which the original Bill was referred for opinion, namely the constitution of the Board, Right of Appeal to the High Court on questions of fact and extension of the Improvement Act to Tollygunge and South Suburban Municipalities have been ignored by the Select Committee.

THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL (No. II) BILL, 1923 ;

- (vi) two Commissioners of the Garden Reach Municipality, to be elected by the Commissioners of that Municipality at a special meeting held before the first day of January, 1924:

Provided that, if the Commissioners of any of the municipalities referred to in clauses (iv), (v) and (vi) fail to elect the full number of members to be elected by them by the first day of January, 1924, the Local Government shall nominate a sufficient number of persons to complete the said number and such persons shall be deemed to be members duly elected by the said Commissioners.

No. 1926L., dated Calcutta, the 28th July, 1923.—With reference to the footnotes to the Report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy (Utbandi Amendment) Bill, 1923, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 25th July, 1923, and in continuation of this office notification No. 1845L., dated the 23rd July, 1923, it is notified that Maharaja Kshaunish Chandra Ray Bahadur, M.L.C., has appended the following Note of Dissent to the Report :—

THE BENGAL TENANCY (UTBANDI AMENDMENT) BILL, 1923.Note of dissent by Maharaja Kshaunish Chandra Ray Bahadur.

I sign this report subject to this note of dissent. I take it as admitted on all hands that the system of Utbandi benefits both the tenants and the landlords. The Bill proposes to extend fully the advantages of the tenants and accelerate the acquisition of occupancy right and take away whatever privileges the landlords have. It is just and fair that the latter should be compensated for the loss. I propose, therefore, that the premium to be paid for the conversion should be at least 5 times the amount fixed as uniform annual rent. Most of the Judicial officers have recommended very rightly a higher rate of premium than that provided in sub-section (9). In fact, the landlords do realise sometimes as much as 10 times for such conversions; while even for temporary Utbandi tenancy for a term of 3 to 5 years, premium to the extent of even 2 years' rent is realised from tenants. This income is a recurring one, while under the proposed law the premium will be paid once for all. The solatium of even 5 years' rent is a poor one if the fact that it will be spread over a term of 3 years be taken into account. Calculating the present worth it comes to less than 89 per cent. and the premium of 5 times the rent really dwindles to less than $4\frac{1}{2}$. This is surely not too much in view of the fact that in reality the conversion will be really the first regular settlement of the zamindars' khas lands or at any rate making a tenant-at-will a regular occupancy raiyat and so the zamindar should not be deprived of what he ordinarily gets by such settlement.

No. 1927L., dated Calcutta, the 28th July, 1923.—With reference to the Report of the Select Committee on the Calcutta Municipal (No. II) Bill, 1923, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 25th July, 1923, and in continuation of this office notification No. 1847L., dated the 23rd July, 1923, it is notified that Rai Dr. Haridhan Dutt Bahadur, M.L.C., has since signed the report subject to the following Note of Dissent :—

THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL (No. II) BILL, 1923.Note of dissent by Rai Bahadur Dr. Haridhan Dutt, M.L.C.

Clause 3.—According to the constitution proposed in clause 3, the Special Committee which will be appointed to consider the Budget Estimates for 1924-25, will consist of 21 members including the Chairman. This, in my opinion, will make the Committee too unwieldy. The Committee which was constituted in 1888 consisted of 18 members, of whom 12 represented the Corporation and 6 represented the areas which were then amalgamated. I would retain the same number and proportion between the Corporation and outside representatives.

Clause 7.—On principle it is difficult to justify differentiation in the matter of taxation between the city proper and the areas proposed to be amalgamated. I am, however, prepared to waive the question of principle, and on the ground of expediency, to agree to a rebate for the first three years. I object to any concession beyond that as the statutory liability for expenditure will commence after 3 years from the commencement of the Act. I also object to the rebate being allowed for the whole of the amalgamated areas. Portions of them are highly developed and I see no reason why they should not pay the full rates. I would therefore restrict the provision up to 1926-27 and would limit the concession to such localities in each of these outside areas as the Corporation may prescribe. I realise that it will be discretionary and not obligatory on the Corporation to allow any rebate, but the intention is that the Corporation should exercise this discretion in favour of the amalgamated areas.

Clause 8.—The Select Committee have decided that the qualifying year for the municipal franchise should be that ending with 30th September and they have gone further and omitted the proviso which laid down that the names of owners and occupiers must appear in the Assessment Book. I apprehend serious practical difficulties in the preparation of the electoral rolls in time on this basis, but as the matter has been threshed out at very great length both in the Corporation and in the Select Committee, it is unnecessary for me to elaborate the arguments.

Clause 9.—The object of this provision is to give power to the Local Government to pass necessary orders to meet any difficulty that may arise in the assessment and the imposition of consolidated rates in the added areas during the first year of the new Act. The convenience of this provision is obvious, but it is rather unfortunate that a provision enabling Government to rectify defects in legal enactments by executive order should be necessary. The explanation for the present amending Bill and for a provision of this kind is to be found in the hurry with which the Calcutta Municipal Act of 1923 was dealt with in the Select Committee and in the Council.

NOTE.—Rai Bahadur Dr. Haridhan Dutt, M.L.C., has signed the report on the 24th July, 1923, after the report has been sent to press for publication in the Calcutta Gazette.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 1930L., dated Calcutta, the 30th July, 1923.—With reference to the footnotes to the Report of the Select Committee on the Calcutta Suppression of Immoral Traffic Bill 1923 (A Bill for the suppression of Immoral Traffic in the town and suburbs of Calcutta and in the port of Calcutta) published in the Calcutta Gazette, dated the 25th July, 1923, and in continuation of this office notification No. 1836L., dated the 21st July, 1923, it is notified that Mr. Krishna Chandra Ray Chaudhuri, M.L.C., and Mr. F. E. E. Villiers, M.L.C., have appended the following Notes of Dissent to the Report :—

Note of Dissent by Mr. Krishna Chandra Ray Chaudhuri, M.L.C.

I accord my whole-hearted support to the principle underlying the Bill, viz., suppression of immoral traffic in the city of Calcutta, by striking at the root of supply, but strongly object to the extraordinary powers proposed to be conferred on police officers under sub-section (2) of section 4 to arrest, without warrant, persons accused of solicitation or abetment of solicitation as defined in sub-section (1) of section 4.

I admit that certain safeguards are provided, e.g., arresting officers are not to be below the rank of sub-inspectors or sergeants and they are to be empowered by name by the Commissioner of Police. In practice, however, the informers will be, in the majority of cases, constables and jamadars on their rounds, and there is grave risk to the women of the town and their helpers, viz., touts, gharry-wallas and taxi drivers, of being blackmailed and their falling a constant prey to the zulum of the subordinate police. Likewise young maid-servants and poor but respectable widows going outdoors will be exposed to the risk of being illegally arrested at the instigation of malicious persons and thus branded for life.

In any case I cannot approve of the loss of liberty of even unfortunate women, driven to immoral occupation by sheer economic pressure, for a somewhat trivial offence such as solicitation. After all, prostitution is not illegal in this country, and any violent interference with their calling, such as arrest without warrant, will be a serious blow to the liberty of a section of the public plying their legal profession known as "the necessary evil."

I propose, in case the above views are not acceptable to the members of the Council, the following additional safeguards, viz., arrest of offenders without warrant against whom a reasonable complaint has been made or a credible information has been received—information founded on definite fact and not on mere surmise.

I do not anticipate that the number of offenders sent up for trial under the section under comment will be very large, and therefore such an extraordinary measure as the arrest of ignorant women of the town, condemned to lives of shame owing to circumstances (social and economic) over which they have little or no control and in many cases enticed to town by professional procurers, should receive serious consideration of the legislature.

Note of Dissent by Mr. F. E. E. Villiers, M.L.C.

1. All legislation having as its object the suppression of immoral traffic proceeds upon one of the two following principles :—

- (a) That commercialized immorality is an evil which can and must be stamped out at all costs.
- (b) That, while recognizing it as an evil, great doubts exist as to whether it can be stamped out and legislation is therefore confined to discouraging the vice so far as possible and to safeguarding the public against the most patent results of immorality such, for example, as venereal disease.

2. The Bill under consideration attempts the second alternative by an endeavour to effect control in three main directions : firstly, by striking at the pimp and procurer and thereby limiting the supply ; secondly, by providing for the removal from brothels of girls under 16 years of age and lastly by protecting youths from temptation by punishing solicitation.

3. With regard to the first two, I am in entire sympathy and would indeed be prepared to go even further than the present proposals. I am, however, unable to agree with the majority report so far as it deals with the third method and my main reasons for disagreement are as follows :—

- (a) that reasonable protection is given against solicitation under the existing law ;
- (b) that the change suggested by clause 4 of the Bill tends to produce most vicious results by the encouragement of blackmail ; and
- (c) that apart from any question of blackmail the proposals contained in the clause constitute a definite menace to the liberty of the subject.

4. The main contentions brought forward in support of the argument that solicitation is an evil which needs more drastic treatment are, first, that it is a public nuisance and, second, that it leads to immorality and that its suppression will lead to a diminution of vice.

5. All that need be said in regard to the first contention is that if it is a public nuisance then the existing law provides means for dealing with it as such.

Regarding the second contention, as to solicitation leading to immorality, it must be remembered that so far as Europeans in this country are concerned, they are mostly men with characters already formed ; and this being so, except in rare cases, the ordinary European is seldom incited to immorality merely through chance solicitation ; either he is moral or he is not.

I am told that this largely holds good in the case of Anglo-Indian youths ; there are cases where young men have been led astray by this means, but I believe this to be almost as much the exception in the case of Anglo-Indian youth as I know it to be in that of the European.

With regard to the Indian youth, I confess I am on less certain ground ; for while some Indians tell me that the pest of solicitation in certain quarters of the city is such as to be the cause of a considerable amount of immorality, others assure me that in this respect Indian youths do not greatly differ from their European and Anglo-Indian brothers and that as a community they are not led astray in any considerable numbers by this means.

6. As regards obtaining a conviction for solicitation, I fail to see how the new clause will improve matters ; either the Magistrate will demand the corroborative evidence of the outraged person or he will accept the uncorroborated evidence of the specially empowered sub-inspector or sergeant ; in the former eventuality we shall be no better off than under the existing law, since it is hardly likely that the person solicited, who has not taken voluntary action in the first instance, will come forward to give evidence.

In the case, however, of the Magistrate prepared to accept the uncorroborated evidence of the police witness, we are faced with the following conditions : that where the law has failed in the past to get convictions at the direct instance of the person solicited, it proposes getting one on the mere opinion (and it can seldom be anything more substantial than an opinion) of the sub-inspector or sergeant.

7. My objections on the other hand to this clause are far more than negative in that I believe that it will do definite harm ; the chances of blackmail in this connection are more than hypothetical ; and in making this statement I neither impute nor imply any charge of dishonesty or corruption against the Calcutta Police ; I merely view the matter from the standpoint that it is not reasonable or safe to act on the assumption that the Calcutta Police surpass in integrity the police of other countries or towns ; and cases of blackmail have undoubtedly occurred elsewhere.

In my opinion a still more serious danger is likely to arise from perfectly honest mistakes on the part of the police ; and the subsequent proving of her innocence will do little to mitigate the humiliation or lessen the irreparable damage done to the good name of an innocent woman, whether European or Indian, who has thus been unjustly arrested.

8. Finally, I look upon clause 4 as a definite menace to the liberty of the subject—and particularly to that section of the public whose interests it is our special duty to safeguard—namely, the Poor ; whose only places of recreation and of perfectly innocent meetings with their friends are those “in or within sight of a street or public place”.

9. I have therefore signed the Report of the Select Committee subject to this minute of dissent and shall ask leave to move an amendment that clause 4 of the Bill be omitted and that the law as it stands to-day be maintained whereby anyone soliciting for the purposes of immorality may be arrested only when a complaint has been lodged by the person solicited.

No. 1931L., dated Calcutta, the 30th July, 1923.—With reference to the footnotes to the Report of the Select Committee on the Calcutta Municipal (No. 11) Bill, 1923, published in the Calcutta Gazette, dated the 25th July, 1923, and in continuation of this office notification No. 1848L., dated the 23rd July, 1923, it is notified that Babu Surendra Nath Mallik, M.L.C., has appended the following Note of Dissent to the Report :—

Note of dissent by Babu Surendra Nath Mallik, M.L.C.

I beg to dissent from the Select Committee's report in the following particulars :—

In clause 7 of the Bill as amended by the Select Committee, the proposal is to enable the Corporation to grant concessions to the newly added areas for the year 1925-26, 1926-27, 1927-28, or 1928-29, i.e. for 4 years by assessing at a lower percentage. This concession is proposed to be given over and above that proposed to be given in the first year (1924-25) by not increasing the total existing liability of the rate-payers of these areas. This means a concession for five years.

Looking however to section 90 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, we find that the concession that has been made to the Calcutta Corporation by the Legislature is that the statutory liability of spending one lakh of rupees on execution of works of original improvement in each of the three added municipalities will not commence till the beginning of the third year after the commencement of that Act. This (drafted now as it is) means a concession for two years only and not even three years as was contemplated and agreed upon. I therefore think that the concession demanded by some of the members of the Select Committee to these newly added areas by way of their being assessed at a lower percentage ought not to extend beyond two years also and in that view I am of opinion that the figures "1927-28 or 1928-29" should be deleted from clause 7 of the Bill as amended by the Select Committee. This again will give the concession for three years, viz., 1924-25, 1925-26 and 1926-27. Furthermore the longer the period for which a concession is given, the greater will be the delay in executing improvements in the added areas. It is but natural that the areas to be improved cannot both claim improvement and concession. Thus the achievement of the object in adding the areas to Calcutta will be delayed. In this view of the matter, the added areas cannot really gain by the concession but would simply be prolonging their unimproved condition.

I would also suggest that the words "or in any specified locality thereof" be inserted after the word "areas" and before the word "referred" in clause 7 of the Bill. Under the clause of the Bill, as it stands at present, the Corporation of Calcutta may give a concession to the whole of an added area (e.g., the whole of the Cossipore-Chitpur area), but has no power to give a concession to a part thereof. It is quite possible that the Corporation may feel inclined to grant the concession to such parts of the area as are inhabited by the poorer section of the people, but not to the whole of the area. The legal difficulty in the way of the Corporation to carry out its intention may lead to a refusal to grant any concession. The result will be that nobody will benefit. The addition of the words, however, does not preclude the Corporation from granting a concession to the whole of the area if it be disposed to do so.

I may also say that if this idea is accepted by the Council, then I on behalf of the Corporation and for myself will be fully prepared to withdraw our objection to the year 1927-28 or 1928-29 in clause 7 as stated above so that a larger period of concessions might be granted to the really poor and deserving people of those three municipalities.

No. 2060L., dated Calcutta, the 9th August, 1923.—With reference to the footnotes to the Report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy (Utbandi Amendment) Bill, 1923, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 25th July, 1923 and in continuation of this office notification No. 1845L., dated the 23rd July, 1923, it is notified that Mr. Syed Erfan Ali, M.L.C., has appended the following Note of Dissent to the Report :—

THE BENGAL TENANCY (UTBANDI AMENDMENT) BILL, 1923.

Note of dissent by Mr. Syed Erfan Ali, M.L.C.

I sign this report subject to this note of dissent. I cannot agree to the payment of any premium by the tenants of utbandi lands, the provision for which is made in section 180A, sub-sections (7) and (9). The tenants of utbandi lands are invariably on the lands for generations whether the lands be under regular cultivation or occasionally lying fallow. There is no doubt that the tenants of utbandi lands would have got the occupancy right but for section 180 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Under cover of this section, the zamindars have all along been taking special advantage over the poor tenants and the tenants were also under great disabilities and sufferance for generations. When this was detected and it was thought reasonable to change the status of the poor tenants and put them into equal rights and privileges with their brothers in other districts of the province, it cannot for a moment be taken as an equitable suggestion to impose any premium on the tenants for the simple reason of the abeyance of their asserting their just rights ever so long. I once more protest against imposing any premium at all on the tenants at such a juncture. It is a long delayed right and privilege, which they are going to get after a great many years' subjection. I may now quote an extract from a letter addressed by the Secretary to the Government of Bengal to the Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department, dated the 27th September 1883 :—

“Finally, in regard to utbandi lands, the Lieutenant-Governor does not see that any exception to the general rule is needed. As far as he is aware, the utbandi tenure is only special as regards the system on which rent is paid, and does not affect the legal attributes of the land. It is not so much that one raiyat cultivates one utbandi holding one year, and a different raiyat another year, as that rent is paid only on the extent of the land actually cultivated for the year, and by measurement at harvest time according to the actual outturn of the crop. The Lieutenant-Governor understands that prescriptive rights of occupancy under section VIII of 1869 are now actually acquired in these utbandi lands, and he would not by any provision impede the growth of such rights.”

This and another extract from a very recent Report of the Administration of Bengal (1921-22) will substantiate my statement very strongly. It runs under the heading of Utbandi Tenures thus :—.....“In Nadia one-third of the district is covered by utbandi tenancies, some of which have none of the characteristics of utbandi. In some cases rent is paid for all the lands every year and the tenant has acquired an occupancy right, though neither he nor the landlord was aware of it. Generally speaking, the same tenant goes back to the same lands year after year and generation after generation, and the fields have definite boundaries.”

I now leave it to the discretion of the Members of the Bengal Legislative Council.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 2090 L., dated Calcutta, the 13th August, 1923.—With reference to the foot-note to the Report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Municipal (No. II) Bill, 1923, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 25th July, 1923 and in continuation of this office notification No. 1848 L., dated the 23rd July, 1923, it is notified that Mr. D. J. Cohen, M.L.C., has appended the following Note of Dissent to the Report :—

THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL (No. II) BILL, 1923.Note of Dissent by Mr. D. J. Cohen, M.L.C.

I take exception to the enactment of the rule that the qualifying year should end on the 30th September of the official year of election. The fact has been overlooked that the large body of men who have been enfranchised under clauses (b) and (c) of section 20, i. e., tenants, occupiers and owners of huts, will practically be to a certain extent disfranchising because of the very short time which will be available for the preparation of the draft electoral roll, it may not be possible to include all these people in the roll. It has to be borne in mind that the requisite qualification of these men is that their names must be entered in the special register provided for in clauses (b) and (c). The entry of these names in the special register is dependent on the order of the Executive Officer which is in turn dependent in the first place on the applications of these persons and secondly on proofs being adduced before the Executive Officer of payment of rates and rents. These applications cannot be made till after the 1st of October because their qualifications depend on having paid rates or rents up to the 30th September. The Executive Officer is sure to be flooded with applications in the month of October, and it will hardly be possible to dispose of them satisfactorily before at least 4 to 6 weeks with the limited time that will be at the disposal of the Executive, the consequence will be that the work will be hurriedly pushed through unsatisfactorily and many names that should have found a place in the roll will be omitted. This number will certainly be larger than the small number for whose benefit the time is being extended, and as a result by taking the 30th September as the qualifying year the disadvantages will be very much greater than the advantages. It is an exaggerated idea that a large number of people will be omitted if the qualifying year ends on the 31st March. It is well known that a very small percentage of houses change hands during a period of six months, and in so far as tenants are concerned, clauses (b) and (c) provides—if my reading of them be correct—that a person shifting his residence within a particular ward can still claim to have his name inserted in the roll, provided he proves that he resided in that particular ward for six months of that year.

Another argument for my contention that the qualifying year should be taken as the year ending 31st March, is that it will be in keeping with the rule for the Bengal Council Election and the work can be got through up to a certain extent, together. This will mean a saving of a large sum of money. It is true that the franchise has been extended in the New Calcutta Municipal Act, but we all know, that the qualifications of electors for the Council elections have been taken from the present Calcutta Municipal Act and now that we have extended the franchise in the New Municipal Act, it will not be very long before the Council will adopt the new qualifications. The money that will then be saved will be even greater than will be the case now if the qualifying year be taken as the year ending 31st March.

28. The Board shall not refuse a license for establishing a market or hāt or for maintaining a market or hāt established at the date of the publication of the order under section 27, except on the ground that the places where the market is established or is to be established do not conform to any conditions which may be prescribed by by-law under section 34.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The tea-gardens of the Western Duars in the Jalpaiguri district lie in a narrow strip of submontane country covering a total area of about 475 square miles, of which under 300 square miles is occupied by the tea-gardens while the balance is comprised of villages and Government estates including several khasmahal bazars. About thirteen years ago the Duars Committee was appointed to enquire into the sanitary and economic conditions of the tea-gardens. They were of opinion that action should be taken to improve the collection of vital statistics and the medical and sanitary arrangements in the tea-gardens. The Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam decided that a reliable record should be obtained of births and deaths among the coolie population, and the Jalpaiguri Labour Act of 1912 was accordingly passed, and under its provisions the Civil Surgeon submits an annual report on its working, referring also to such matters as sanitation, water-supply and medical relief. In 1920 it was suggested that an Act was necessary under which the tea-garden proprietors could be required to take proper steps to secure the health of their labour force.

The object of the present Bill is to create a new local authority, viz., a statutory Board of Health similar to the Asansol Mines Board of Health to exercise wide powers for the organization of public health in tea-garden areas and for enforcing the execution of measures which may in the opinion of the Board be necessary.

2. The Bill in the first instance applies only to the district of Jalpaiguri but might under the proviso to clause 1(3) be extended to other districts, e.g., to the district of Darjeeling. Under clause 4 the Local Government is given power to define the limits of "a Tea-garden Area" for the purposes of the Bill.

3. The representation of the different interests concerned on the Tea-gardens Board of Health (clauses 5 and 6) has been fixed in consultation with the tea industry. It is intended that the Board shall consist mainly of tea-garden managers who are directly interested in the health of their coolies, while Government would probably use one of its nominations to give representation to the jotedars who are liable to assessment under clause 14.

4. The Tea-garden Area Fund (clauses 12 and 13) will be obtained by the levy of a cess at rates and under procedure to be fixed by rule. This cess will be assessed on owners of tea-gardens and on landholders, which word by the definition in clause 3(b) will include not only Government in its capacity as zamindar but also the jotedars holding land under Government. It will also include shopkeepers in khasmahal bazars and ijaradars in the Government hats.

5. The District Board will be relieved to a very large extent of all responsibility for medical and public health measures in a tea-garden area. Generally speaking, the Tea-garden Board of Health is likely also to relieve the District Board of its obligation to provide water-supply in these areas. These are the matters for which it was intended that the public works cess should ordinarily be reserved when it was handed over to District Boards in 1913. It is therefore reasonable that the District Board should be required to make some contribution towards the Tea-Garden Area Fund, the amount to be determined by Government after considering the proposals of the Tea-garden Board of Health and the views of the District Board, provided that the contribution shall in no case exceed the amount realised as public works cess in the tea-garden area. It may be stated that the question of making the District Board a Board of Health for the tea-garden area has been considered, but in view of the special problems involved, it was considered advisable to create an ad hoc authority rather than to add to the duties and responsibilities of the District Board.

6. The Board of Health will mainly work through its Medical Officer of Health; this post is one of primary importance to the successful working of the Board and to secure the proper independence of the officer appointed, certain powers regarding his appointment, dismissal, etc., are vested under clause 18 in the Local Government.

7. Clause 20 states the ordinary conveniences or comforts which a tea-garden owner is required to provide for his labour force, and clause 22 inter alia vests power in the Board to enforce the obligations imposed under clause 20.

8. Clause 27 which provides for the licensing and thereby the control of private parks or markets is essential to enable the Board to ensure the purity of food-stuffs.

It will be seen that an appeal from an order of the Board refusing to grant a license may be preferred to the Divisional Commissioner.

9. In clause 32 the jurisdiction of district, local and union boards is barred in respect of sanitary measures in tea-garden areas.

10. The Local Government and the Board are given wide powers to make rules and by-laws respectively for carrying out the purposes of the Act. It will be seen that the powers of the Board in this respect are confined mainly to obtaining information on such matters as vital statistics, to providing for water-supply, sanitation and conservancy in the tea-garden area, to preventing the outbreak or spread of epidemic disease, to regulating the type of accommodation for the labour force, and to abating nuisances which may be injurious to the public health in a tea-garden area.

11. Clause 38 is important in providing that offences under the proposed Act shall not be tried by any Court inferior to that of a Magistrate of the first class or a Subdivisional Magistrate.

“(p1) prescribing the conditions as to the rate of interest and the period and method of repayment of loans granted by the District Board to Union Boards under section 100A.”

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The general amendment and consolidation of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885, is long overdue, and it is intended at a very early date to lay a measure of this kind before the Legislative Council. In the meantime it is proposed to include certain minor amendments in a short amending Bill. Controversial matters have, on the whole, been avoided, although it is recognized that there may be differences of opinion regarding the proposed mela tax.

2. It is considered desirable to take provision to tax motor vehicles since the volume of motor traffic is increasing in rural areas. As drafted, the clause will cover horse-drawn vehicles.

3. Sections 7, 10, 11, 15 and 25 of the present Act vest certain powers of appointment in the Divisional Commissioner, these powers prior to 1908 having been vested in the Local Government. The devolution of power effected by the amending Act V of 1908 was to some extent undone by the enactment of section 29 B in the Bengal Laws Act of 1914. Section 29 B to some extent supersedes the provisions of the earlier sections 7, 10, etc. The nomination of the Municipal Commissioners rests with the Local Government and not the Divisional Commissioner, and having regard to the fact that District Boards are now, generally speaking, of greater importance than the majority of the municipal boards in Bengal, it is considered advisable to give the Local Government the same power of nomination in respect of rural bodies as they already enjoy in respect of municipal boards. This is done in clause 3 of the present Bill, and at the same time the Local Government are required to nominate persons who may represent minorities or be especially fitted for membership of the District Board.

4. In clause 4 of the Bill, more time is given for forwarding a copy of the proceedings of the District Board to the District Magistrate. No comment is necessary on clause 5 of the Bill.

5. Clause 7 provides for the investment of surplus moneys of District Fund in the Imperial Bank or in other banks approved by the Local Government.

It also authorizes the levy of a tax on carriages, which term includes motor vehicles.

6. Power is also taken to impose a tax on melas, fairs, etc. It is a matter of common knowledge that these gatherings are frequently the foci of infectious disease which is disseminated to all parts of the province. At present local bodies are unable to provide funds for the proper sanitation of places where such gatherings occur, and are unable to take measures for preventing the outbreak, and for restricting the spread, of infectious disease. If a small tax is imposed on persons for frequenting melas, fairs, etc., sufficient revenue may probably be realized to enable local authorities to organize the necessary medical and sanitary measures. It is recognized that there are difficulties in collecting such a tax within the mela limits since in Bengal these are ordinarily not well defined, and it is therefore proposed to limit the impost to a surcharge on railway or steamer tickets where these can be levied within a reasonable distance of the mela site. The sanction of the Governor-General in Council to a surcharge of this kind is required under the Bill in the case of a railway. It is provided that the amount realized by means of such surcharge should be utilized in providing for the safety, convenience and health of persons frequenting the mela, fair, etc.

7. Power is also taken to regulate private markots. The grant of licenses is intended as a sanitary rather than a revenue measure.

8. Power is taken to grant loans to Union Boards. It is thought that the Union Boards may be able to take some steps to cope with the water-supply problem in rural areas and in that case District Boards may render some assistance by lending money to Union Boards on the security of the Union Fund on reasonable terms (vide clauses 8 and 13).

Clause 8 of the Bill also enables the District Board to provide for the subsistence charges of indigent persons whom it may have sent to a hospital in any part of British India for the treatment of a special disease.

9. Clause 9 will enable the District Board to establish scholarships for the furtherance of primary education. It is at present able to give scholarships merely for technical or other special forms of education, although the promotion of primary education is an important function of local bodies.

10. In clause 10 power is taken to levy tolls in the case of a bridge which has cost only Rs. 5,000 whereas under the present Act tolls can only be levied if a bridge has cost not less than Rs. 10,000.

113. (1) The imposition of a water-rate or of a lighting-rate shall be subject to the following restrictions, namely,—

- (a) that the rate shall be imposed only on holdings within an area for the supply of water to which, or for the lighting of which, as the case may be, a scheme involving the laying of pipes, wires, cables or other similar apparatus has been sanctioned by the Local Government : [Cf. Ben. Act III of 1884, ss. 37D, 308, 319.]

(3) With the sanction of the Commissioners at a meeting the amount of the water-rate may vary with the distance of holdings from the nearest standpipe or other sources of water-supply, and the amount may be higher in the case of premises to which communication pipes are attached than in the case of other premises. [Cf. Ben. Act III of 1884, s. 279 (1a).]

(2) The Commissioners at a meeting at their discretion may compound for any period not exceeding one year with the person liable to pay the rate on any railway premises or on any premises used as a mill, factory, dockyard, workshop, coolly-depôt, school, hospital, market, court-house or other similar place for a certain sum to be paid by such person in lieu of the rate or, in the case of such premises or places, may in lieu of levying the rate on the annual value of the holding levy it at a certain amount per head, to be fixed by the Commissioners at a meeting, on the number of persons living within or habitually resorting to such premises or places. [Cf. Ben. Act III of 1884, ss. 325 and 326.]

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in this section, any person otherwise liable to pay the rate on any railway premises or on any premises used as a mill, factory, dockyard, workshop or the like may, from year to year by application to the Commissioners, require that the rate shall be levied on such premises at a percentage not exceeding one-fourth of the percentage fixed under sub-section (1), provided that he proves to the satisfaction of the Commissioners that all latrines and urinals on such premises are served, cleansed and kept in a satisfactory condition by an establishment maintained at his own cost, and that the sewage therefrom undergoes such treatment at his cost, by means of septic tanks or other similar works constructed to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, as to render the effluent innocuous and inoffensive and capable of being discharged into the municipal drains, and the Commissioners shall levy such rate accordingly :

Provided that the exemption from paying the full rate conferred under this sub-section shall terminate in the event of the Commissioners providing an underground sewerage system.

Power to call for list of occupants of holdings.

115. The Commissioners may, for the purposes of conservancy, or for the levy of the conservancy rate, by a notice in writing, require the owner or occupier of any holding to furnish, within a time to be specified in the notice, a list of the number of persons living within, or habitually resorting to, such holding.

[cf. Act 111 of 1881, ss. 333, 334.]

Power to impose consolidated rate.

116. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing sections, the Commissioners may, for the purpose of assessing, levying or collecting, but not for the purpose of imposing or granting exemption from, the rates described in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d) of sub-section (1) of section 111, consolidate any two or more of such rates which are imposed upon holdings and levy a consolidated rate on the annual valuation of holdings :

[cf. U. P. Act 11 of 1916, s. 138.]

Provided that in any register or assessment list relating to a consolidated rate and used for the purpose of informing any person of his liability thereunder, or for the purpose of securing compliance with the provisions of section 113 or section 114, the Commissioners shall apportion the consolidated rate amongst the several rates comprised therein, so as to show approximately the amount assessed or collected on account of each separate rate.

(2) Such consolidated rate shall be payable in such proportions by the owners and occupiers of holdings as the Commissioners at a meeting, with the approval of the Local Government, may determine.

Deductions required by exemptions.

117. (1) In assessing a consolidated rate, effect shall be given to any partial or total exemption from any single rate comprised therein.

[cf. U. P. Act 11 of 1916, s. 139.]

(2) Such effect shall be given—

(a) in the case of a partial exemption, by means of the deduction from the total amount of the consolidated rate which would otherwise be leviable or assessable in respect of any holdings to which the exemption applies, of a proportionate part, corresponding to the exemption, of the amount which might otherwise have been assessed on account of the single rate ; and

(Chapter V.—Municipal taxation.—Clauses 118—122.)

(b) in the case of a total exemption, by means of the deduction from such total amount of the whole amount assessed on account of the single rate in respect of which exemption has been granted.

Assessment of rates on the annual value of holdings.

Annual value of holdings.

118. (1) The annual value of a holding shall be deemed to be the gross annual rental at which the holding may reasonably be expected to let.

[Cf. Ben. Act 111 of 1884, s. 101.]

(2) If such gross annual rental cannot, in the opinion of the assessor, be easily estimated or ascertained, the annual value of such holding shall be deemed to be an amount which may be equal to, but may not exceed, seven-and-a-half per centum on the actual cost of erection of the building or buildings erected on such holding plus a reasonable ground rent for the land comprised in the holding :

Provided that, where the actual cost so ascertained exceeds one lakh of rupees, the percentage on the annual value to be levied in respect of so much of the cost as is in excess of one lakh of rupees shall not exceed one-fourth of the percentage determined by the Commissioners under section 123.

(3) The value of any machinery or furniture which may be on a holding shall not be taken into consideration in estimating the annual value of such holding under this section.

(4) The Local Government may direct that the proviso to sub-section (2) shall not have effect in any municipality which they may name in this behalf.

Power of Commissioners to decide questions arising out of the definition of "holding".

119. For the purpose of, and subject to, clause (22) of section 3—

[New.]

(b) the Commissioners at a meeting shall determine what class of ownership shall be accepted as the test for determining whether lands within a municipality are held under one title or agreement ;

and the decision of the Commissioners shall be final.

120. Except as otherwise provided by this Act, any rate which is assessed on the annual value of a holding shall be payable by the owner of the holding.

[Cf. Ben. Act 111 of 1884, ss. 103, 286 and 322.]

Preparation of valuation list.

121. When it has been decided to impose any rate to be assessed on the annual value of holdings, the assessor, after making such inquiries as may be necessary, shall determine the annual value of all holdings within the municipality in the manner provided in this chapter, and shall enter such value in a valuation list.

[Cf. Ben. Act 111 of 1884, ss. 96, 101.]

Returns required for ascertaining annual value.

122. (1) The assessor, in order to prepare the valuation list, may, whenever he thinks fit, by notice require the owners or occupiers of all holdings to furnish him with returns of the rent or annual value thereof and a description of the holdings containing such particulars as the assessor may direct; and the assessor, or any person authorized by him in writing in that behalf, may enter, inspect and measure any such holding at any time between sunrise and sunset:

Provided that at least twenty-four hours' previous notice of the intention to enter, inspect and measure any holding shall be given to the occupier thereof, unless he waives his right to such notice.

[Cf. Ben.
Act III of
1881, s. 102.]

Provided that, when this Act is first extended to any place, the first rate or rates shall be levied from the beginning of the quarter next after that in which the percentage has been fixed by the Commissioners at a meeting:

Provided further that, where the amount standing to the credit of the Commissioners in the Municipal Fund in any municipality is, in the opinion of the Local Government, insufficient to meet the liabilities of the Commissioners, no decrease shall be made in the percentage of any rate levied by them without the previous sanction of the Local Government.

Preparation of
assessment list.

124. As soon as possible after the percentage at which the rate or rates shall be levied for the next year has been determined under section 123, the Commissioners shall cause to be prepared by the assessor an assessment list, which shall contain the following particulars and any others which the Commissioners may think proper to include:—

[Cf. U. P. Act II of 1916, s. 115; Ben. Act III of 1884, ss. 97, 322.]

(2) Subject to any alteration or amendment made under section 126 and to the result of any application under section 136 every valuation and assessment entered in a valuation or assessment list shall be valid from the date on which the list takes effect in the municipality and until the first day of April next following the preparation of a new list.

Amendment
list.

126. (1) The Commissioners may at any time alter or amend the assessment list—

[Cf. U. P. Act II of 1916, s. 117.]

(f) by reducing, upon the application of the owner or occupier, the valuation of any holding which has been wholly or partly demolished or destroyed, or the value of which has been diminished from any cause beyond the control of the owner or occupier, the operation of which could not have been prevented with due precaution; or

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1884, s. 107.]

(g) by correcting any clerical or arithmetical error.

(2) The Commissioners shall give at least one month's notice to any person interested of any alteration which the Commissioners propose to make under clauses (a), (b), (c) or (d) of sub-section (1) and of the date on which the alteration will be made.

(3) The provisions of sections 136 to 139 applicable to objections shall, so far as may be, apply to any objection made in pursuance of a notice issued under sub-section (2) and to any application made under clause (f) of sub-section (1).

Provided that failure or omission to serve such notice on any owner shall not invalidate proceedings under this section.

(2) Any land taken possession of under sub-section (1) shall forthwith be added to and become part of the said street, and shall vest in the Commissioners.

Explanation.—The expression “direct damage,” as used in sub-section (1) with reference to land, means the market-value of the land taken and the depreciation, if any, in the ordinary market-value of the rest of the land resulting from the area being reduced in size; but does not include damage due to any particular use to which the owner may allege that he intended to put the land, although such use may be injuriously affected by the reduction of the site.

CHAPTER X.

Bustees.

Preliminary.

Power to Com-
define limits of bustee.

320. (1) The Commissioners at a meeting may define the external limits of any bustee, and may from time to time alter such limits.

[Cf. C. M. Act, s. 386.]

(2) None of the powers conferred by any of the following sections of this chapter shall be exercised in respect of—

[Cf. C. M. Act, s. 386.]

- (a) any bustee the total area of which, as comprised within the limits defined under sub-section (1), is less than two bighas, or
- (b) any masonry building existing in a bustee at the time when a standard plan is approved or alignments are prescribed under the provisions of this chapter for such bustee as the case may be.

Sanitary measures with regard to bustees.

Power of Commissioners as to
huts.

321. (1) If it appears to the Commissioners at a meeting that the condition of any bustee is insanitary or attended with risk of disease to the inhabitants of the neighbourhood, by reason of the manner in which the huts are constructed or crowded together, or of the want of drainage, the impracticability of scavenging or for any other reason, they may after giving notice to the owners of the bustee cause the locality to be inspected by two persons appointed in this behalf, one of whom shall be a registered medical practitioner or a person holding the diploma of Public Health and the other an engineer.

[Cf. C. M. Act, s. 844; Ben. Act. III of 1884, s. 246.]

(2) The said persons shall forthwith—

- (a) sign and submit a written report on the insanitary condition of the said bustee,
- (b) annex to the report a plan approved by them as the standard plan of such bustee, and

 - (iv) the tanks, wells and low lands which should be filled up ; and
 - (v) any other improvements they consider necessary in order to remove or abate the insanitary condition of the bustee.

(3) A report (together with the schedule annexed thereto) made and signed under this section shall be sufficient evidence of the result of such inspection.

(Chapter X.—Bustees.—Clauses 322—325.)

Power to serve notice.

322. On receipt of the said report, the Commissioners at a meeting after hearing the objections (if any) of the owners of the bustee in respect of which the report has been made may approve the plan and schedule after making such modifications (if any) therein as they may think fit and may require the said owners or the owners or occupiers of the huts referred to in sub-clause (i) of clause (c) of sub-section (2) of section 321, or both the owners of the bustee and the owners and occupiers of the huts, to carry out and execute, within a time to be fixed by the Commissioners for such purpose, all or any of the works specified in the aforesaid schedule or any portion thereof, respectively.

[Cf. Ben
Act III of 1884, s. 246.]

Payment of
improvements.

323. When any improvements required by a notice under section 322 are carried out by the Commissioners under the provisions of this Act, all expenses incurred thereby, including such reasonable compensation as the Commissioners at a meeting may think fit to pay to the owners or occupiers of huts removed, shall be paid by the owners of the bustee, to the Commissioners, and shall constitute a charge upon such bustee :

[Cf. C. M.
Act, n. 347
Ben. Act III
of 1884, s. 247.]

Provided that, notwithstanding anything contained elsewhere in this Act, if it appears to the Commissioners at a meeting that any such owner is unable, by reason of poverty, to pay such expenses, or any portion thereof, in the case of expenses relating to work, which should in the opinion of the Commissioners have been done by the owners or occupiers of huts within the bustee, they may order the same or any portion thereof to be paid out of the Municipal Fund, and in the case of expenses, which should be paid by the owner of the bustee, they may order the same or any portion thereof to be advanced out of the Municipal Fund, but thereafter to constitute a charge upon such bustee.

pulled down.

324. (1) If, in carrying out any improvement required by a notice under section 322, the Commissioners cause any hut or portion of a hut to be pulled down, they shall—

[Cf. C. M.
Ben. Act III
of 1884, s. 248.]

- (a) cause the materials of such hut or portion of a hut to be given to the owner of the hut, if such owner elects to take them, or
- (b) if the owner does not elect to take the materials, or if the owner be unknown or the title to the hut be disputed, cause such materials to be sold, and hold in deposit the proceeds of the sale, together with any sum awarded as compensation under section 323.

(2) Any amount held in deposit under clause (b) of sub-section (1) shall be so held by the Commissioners until any person obtains an order from a competent Court for the payment to him of such amount.

Power to purchase or acquire
or lands in bustee.

325. (1) Any masonry building in a bustee, and any land appertaining to such building which it may be necessary to purchase or acquire for the purpose of making the streets or passages, or of effecting any of the improvements specified in the schedule referred to

[Cf. C. M.
Act, n. 344 (4)
(f), 349.]

(Chapter X.—Bustees.—Clauses 326—328.)

in section 321, shall be shown in the standard plan referred in that section, and the Commissioners may, at any time after the receipt of the report made under that section, purchase or acquire—

- (a) any such masonry building, or
- (b) any land appertaining to such building, or
- (c) any such building, together with the land appertaining thereto or any portion thereof, which is mentioned in that behalf in the schedule.

(2) Save as is provided in this section none of the powers conferred under the provisions of this chapter shall be exercised in respect of any building or land referred to in clauses (a), (b) or (c) of sub-section (1), but the fact that a masonry building or buildings is or are situated in a bustee shall not prevent action being taken with reference to such bustee under the provisions of this chapter.

Streets and passages shown in standard plan, if not public streets, to remain private

326. (1) Every street or passage in a bustee which is shown in a standard plan approved under this chapter for that bustee and which is not already a public street shall, unless the Commissioners and the owners of the land on which such street or passage is situated otherwise consent as provided in section 218, be deemed to be a private street; and the portion thereof which falls on the land of each owner shall belong to such owner: [Cf. C. M. Act, n. 354.]

Provided that any portion of any such street or passage which is situated on land purchased or acquired by the Commissioners under section 325 shall remain the property of the Commissioners.

(2) Every such private street shall, at all times, be kept open for scavenging purposes and for all other purposes of this Act in such manner as the Commissioners may require, and shall also be kept open for the use of all the tenants of the bustee:

Provided that, notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, no use of any such street shall, by reason of any lapse of time, be held to confer a right-of-way on the public so as to bring the street within the definition of a "public street". IX of 1908.

Bathing arrangements and privy accommodation in bustee, as shown in standard plan, to be kept open for use of tenants.

327. The bathing arrangements and privy accommodation in a bustee, which are shown in the standard plan approved under this chapter for such bustee as being common to the use of all or some of the tenants of the bustee, shall at all times be kept available for the use of such tenants: [Cf. C. M. Act, n. 355.]

Provided that, notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, if at any time the land on which any such bathing arrangements or privy accommodation are provided ceases to form part of such bustee, no such use shall, by reason of any lapse of time, be held to confer any right on any person so as prejudicially to affect the rights of the owner of such land. IX of 1908.

Owner of land in bustee to maintain certain conveniences on his land.

328. (1) The owner of any land in a bustee for which a standard plan has been approved under this chapter shall maintain in proper order and repair, to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, such streets, passages, drains, common bathing arrangements, common [Cf. C. M. Act, n. 356.]

privy accommodation, means of lighting, means of water-supply and other works on such land as may be shown in the plan.

(2) The Commissioners may, at any time, cause a written notice to be served upon such owner requiring him so to maintain such streets, passages, drains, common bathing arrangements, common privy accommodation, means of lighting, means of water-supply and other works:

Provided that any convenience made by the owner of a hut for his own use shall, subject to such notice as aforesaid, be maintained by him, and not by the owner of the bustee.

Power to owner to take land out of the category of bustee in certain cases.

329. (1) The owner of any land included in a bustee and forming a separate holding may, at any time, whether or not a standard plan has been prepared for the bustee, notify the Commissioners in writing that he intends to remove all the huts standing on such land. [cf. O. M. Act, s. 389.]

(2) The receipt of any such notice shall not debar the Commissioners from approving a standard plan of such bustee.

(3) From the date of such notice no application shall be entertained for erecting on such land any hut or adding to any hut standing thereon.

(4) Such owner shall, within six months after the date of such notice, or within such further time as the Commissioners at a meeting may from time to time allow, remove all huts standing on such land; and if he does not do so, the notice shall be deemed to be cancelled.

(5) When all such huts have been so removed, such land shall according to its situation either—

(i) be altogether excluded from the limits of the bustee, or

(ii) be shown, in a standard plan approved for the bustee under this chapter, as not being a part of such bustee:

Provided that if, in the standard plan, any street or passage is shown on such land, the provisions of sections 326 and 328 shall, with all necessary modifications, be deemed to apply to such street or passage, unless the Commissioners at a meeting otherwise direct.

(6) If after all the huts have been removed under sub-section (4) any application is received for erecting any hut on such land, the Commissioners may, by written notice, require the owner of the land to carry out such improvements included in the standard plan as they may think fit.

(7) When all the huts standing on any land within a bustee have been removed under sub-section (4), the Commissioners at a meeting may either—

(a) cancel the standard plan (if any) already approved, under this chapter, for such bustee, or

(b) modify such plan, after hearing the objections (if any) of any owner of land included in such bustee.

(Chapter X.—Bustees.—Clauses 330, 331.)

(8) When any land, formerly included in a bustee, ceases to be so included, and where any street or passage was shown on such land in the standard plan, and where, on such land ceasing to be so included, the Commissioners at a meeting do not consider it to be practicable, or do not consider it to be expedient to change the alignment of such street they shall, in applying the proviso to sub-section (5) to such street, compensate the owner of such land for any area that is included in such street, which is in excess of one-seventh of the entire area of the land, which ceases to be included in the bustee.

Power to Com-
prescribe align-
streets.

330. (1) In any bustee, in respect of which a standard plan has not been prepared, or in any area in which it appears to the Commissioners that huts are likely to be erected, the Commissioners at a meeting may after hearing the objections, if any, of any owner of land in such bustee, prescribe alignments, not more than sixteen feet in width, for such private streets as they may think fit.

[Cf. C. M.
Act, s. 360.]

(2) When the land within such bustee or area is owned by more owners than one, each owning one or more separate plots of such land, such alignments shall, as far as practicable, be so prescribed as not to occupy, within any such plot, more than one-fifth of the area thereof, and shall not ordinarily be less than two hundred and fifty feet apart.

(3) If, in any such plot, more than one-fifth of the area thereof is occupied by such alignments, the Commissioners shall pay reasonable compensation to the owner of the plot:

Provided that no such compensation shall be paid in respect of any such plot as long as any hut or other structure other than a masonry building is left standing in the plot within any such alignment.

(4) No hut or portion of a hut shall be erected within any alignment prescribed under sub-section (1).

(5) The provisions of section 326 shall, with all necessary modifications, be deemed to apply to every street, the alignment for which has been prescribed under this section.

Power to Com-
require removal of existing huts within street or hut alignment in bustee.

331. (1) In any bustee, at any time after the expiration of seven years from the time when any alignment has been prescribed for a street or for huts under section 330 the Commissioners at a meeting may, by written notice, require the owner of the land or the owners or occupiers of existing huts to remove such huts or portions thereof as fall—

[Cf. C. M.
Act, s. 361.]

(i) within any such prescribed street alignment, or

(ii) within six feet on either side of any such prescribed hut alignment, as the case may be.

(2) When a hut has been removed under the provisions of sub-section (1) the Commissioners at a meeting shall pay to the owner thereof such compensation as they may consider to be reasonable, but such compensation shall in no case exceed the value of the hut less the value of the materials thereof.

(Chapter X.—Bustees.—Clause 332.)

Power to Commissioners to require space to be kept between masonry building in bustee and centre line of bustee street.

332. Any person who erects a masonry building— [Cf. O. M. Act, s. 302]

- (a) in any bustee in respect of which a standard plan has been approved under section 322, or
- (b) in any bustee or area in respect of which alignments for streets have been prescribed under section 330, shall, if so required by written notice issued by the Commissioners at a meeting, leave a clear space of fifteen feet between the centre line of any street or passage shown in such plan, or of any street, the alignment for which has been so prescribed, as the case may be, and the nearest part of such building.

CHAPTER XI.

PURITY OF WATER-SUPPLY.

Power to set apart wells, tanks, etc., for drinking, culinary, bathing and washing purposes.

333. The Commissioners may, by order published at such places as they think fit, set apart any tank, well, spring or water-course or any part thereof, vested in or under their control, or with the consent of the owner thereof any tank, well, spring, or water-course or part thereof subject to any rights which the owner may retain with the consent of the Commissioners for any of the following purposes, namely,— and may by like order prohibit bathing or the washing of animals or clothes or other things at any public place not set apart for that purpose, or at any time or by a sex other than that specified in the order and may in like manner prohibit any other act by which water in public places may be rendered foul or unfit for use or which causes or is likely to cause inconvenience or annoyance to persons lawfully using such places.

Power to prohibit use of polluted water for drinking or culinary purposes.

335. If the Commissioners at a meeting after due inquiry are satisfied that the water of any tank, well, spring or water-course, or part thereof, or other place, used or likely to be used for drinking or culinary purposes, is, if so used, liable to engender or cause the spread of disease, and that owing to its situation or other cause such place cannot effectively be protected from pollution, or if the owner of, or person having control over, any such place refuses or neglects to comply with a requisition of the Commissioners under section 334, the Commissioners may—

- (a) by public notice prohibit the use or removal of water from such place for drinking or culinary purposes during a period to be specified in the notice, and take such steps as they may consider necessary to prevent the use or removal of water for such purposes, or
- (b) in the case of a private well, require the owner of, or person having control over it to close it permanently or to fill it up with suitable material.

[cf. Ben. Act III of 1884, ss. 199A, 217.]

(Chapter XI.—Purity of Water-supply —Clauses 336-338.)

Power to inspect and disinfect sources of water used for drinking or culinary purposes

336. The Commissioners or any person authorised by them in this behalf may, at all reasonable times, inspect and disinfect any tank, well, spring or water-course or other place from which water is, or is likely to be, taken for drinking or culinary purposes.

(i) from the water-works of the Commissioners where any exist, or

(ii) where no water-works exist or where any water used for domestic or culinary purposes is drawn from any tank, well, spring or water-course or other source of supply, then from any such tank, well, spring or water-course or other source of supply as the Director of Public Health may at any time specify in this behalf;

(b) prescribe a scale of fees to be paid by the Commissioners for the analysis which shall be made of the aforementioned samples under the direction of the Director of Public Health.

(2) Where any tank, well, spring or water-course of other source of supply is not within the control of the Commissioners, they shall nevertheless have full power to take water in such manner as they may think proper from any of the above sources of supply for the purpose of furnishing samples to the Director of Public Health.

Application for analysis by Public Analyst of water for domestic purposes.

338. 344. If the Commissioners at a meeting after due inquiry, are satisfied that the cultivation of any description of crop, or the use of any kind of manure or the irrigation of land in any specified manner—

[Cf. Pun.

or that any person is permitting the growth within or without the limits of the municipality of water-hyacinth, or such other noxious plant as may be certified in this behalf by the Local Government as being a danger to the health of persons resident within the limits of the municipality or to navigation within those limits

the Local Government may, on receipt of an application from the Commissioners, by public notice, prohibit the cultivation of such crop, the use of such manure, or the use of the method of irrigation so certified to be injurious, or impose such conditions with respect thereto as may prevent the injury or, in the case of water-hyacinth or such other noxious plant as may be in this behalf notified, may impose such regulations as may secure the removal of the same:

Provided that, if the act prohibited has been practised in the ordinary course of husbandry at any time during the five successive years last preceding the date of the prohibition, compensation shall be paid from the Municipal Fund to all persons interested therein for any damage caused to them by such prohibition.

[Cf O M. Act,
Sch XVIII,
r 2]

Power to require owners to clear noxious vegetation and to
drainage

347. Whenever any land being private property, or within any private enclosure, appears to the Commissioners, by reason of thick vegetation, undergrowth or jungle, or inequalities of surface, or by want of drainage, to be in a state injurious to health or offensive to the neighbourhood or forming an impediment to sufficient ventilation, the Commissioners at a meeting may require the owners or occupiers, or the owners and occupiers, of such land, within fifteen days, to clear and remove such vegetation, or dress such surface or drain such land :

[Cf Ben Act
III of 1884,
s 195]

Provided that, if for the purpose of effecting any drainage under this section it shall be necessary to acquire any land not being the property of the person who is required to drain his land, or to pay compensation to any other person, the Commissioners shall provide such land and pay such compensation.

demolish, repair or secure wall building or fixture in a ruinous state,
etc

348. (1) If any wall or building, or anything affixed thereto, be deemed by the Commissioners to be in a ruinous state, or likely to fall, or to be in any way dangerous, they shall forthwith cause a written notice to be served on the owner, if he be known and resident in the municipality, and also to be put on some conspicuous part of the wall or building or served on the occupier (if any) of the building requiring such owner or occupier forthwith to demolish, repair or secure such wall, building or thing as the case may require.

[Cf O M. Act,
Sch XVIII,
r 1, Ben
Act III

(2) The Commissioners may also, if it appears to them to be necessary so to do, cause a proper hoarding or fence or other means of protection to be put up at the expense of the owner of such wall or building for the safety of the public or the inmates thereof; and may also, after giving them such notice as the Commissioners may think necessary, require the inmates of the building to vacate it.

(3) So far as they are in force in the municipality the provisions of this Act and of Schedule VI, and of any rules or by-laws made under this Act relating to buildings shall apply to any work done in that municipality in pursuance, or in consequence, of a notice issued under sub-section (1).

Power to prevent
etc, from insecure or insanitary buildings

349. (1) Whenever the Commissioners at a meeting consider—

(a) that any building is, by reason of its having no plinth or having a plinth of insufficient height, or by reason of the want of proper drainage or ventilation or by reason of the impracticability of cleansing, attended with risk to the health of the occupiers thereof or to the inhabitants of the neighbourhood, or is, for any reason, likely to endanger the public health, or

[Cf O M. Act,
Sch XVIII,
r 6, Ben
Act III of
1884, s 242]

(Chapter XII.—Insanitary and Dangerous property.—Clause 350.)

- (b) that a block or group of buildings is, for any of the said reasons, or by reason of the manner in which the buildings are crowded together, attended with such risk as aforesaid,— they may by notice require the owners or occupiers of such building or buildings or portions thereof, or, at the option of the Commissioners, the owners of the land occupied by such building or buildings or portions thereof, to execute such works or to take such measures as they may deem necessary for the prevention of such risk.

(2) No person shall be entitled to compensation for damages sustained by reason of any action taken under or in pursuance of this section, save when the building is demolished to the extent of more than half of its cubical contents in pursuance of an order made thereunder, in which case the Commissioners shall pay reasonable compensation to the owners thereof.

(3) When any building is entirely demolished under this section and the demolition thereof adds to the value of other buildings in the immediate vicinity, the owners of such other buildings shall be bound to contribute towards the compensation payable to the owner of the first named building in proportion to the increased value accruing to their own premises.

The amount of such contribution and the proportions in which it is to be divided among the owners of such other buildings shall be determined by the Commissioners at a meeting and shall be recoverable as though it were a rate under the provisions of Chapter V.

(4) When any building though not entirely demolished under this section is demolished to the extent of more than half of its cubical contents, allowance shall be made in determining the compensation for the benefit accruing to the premises from the improvement thereof.

Procedure in case of buildings deemed unfit for human habitation.

350. (1) If, for any reason, any building or portion of a building intended for, or used as, a dwelling place appears to the Commissioners at a meeting to be unfit for human habitation, they may require the owner or occupier of such building to make such alterations as they think necessary in the building in order to make it fit for human habitation, if they consider that this can be done, but whether they think that it can be made fit for human habitation or not, they may, in either case, after giving the owner or occupier an opportunity of being heard, apply to a Magistrate to prohibit the further use of such building or portion thereof for such purpose ; and the Magistrate shall serve a notice on such owner or occupier so as to give him an opportunity of being heard in the Court, and after such inquiry as he thinks fit to make, may, by written order, prohibit the further use thereof, or may pass such other order as he may deem just and proper.

(Chapter XII.—Insanitary and Dangerous property—Clause 351.)

(2) When any such prohibition has been made, the Commissioners may—

- (i) inspect such building by day or by night, and
- (ii) take such order as may be necessary to preclude the further use of the same, or of the portion specified in the prohibition as a human habitation.

(3) When any such prohibition has been made, no owner or occupier of such building shall use, or suffer the same, or the portion specified in the prohibition, to be used for human habitation until—

- (a) the Chairman certifies in writing that the causes rendering it unfit for human habitation have been removed to his satisfaction, or
- (b) the Magistrate, by written order, withdraws the prohibition.

(4) The Commissioners shall prepare and maintain at the Municipal Office a list of buildings in respect of which the Magistrate has passed an order under sub-section (1) and, such list shall contain such particulars as to the action taken by the Commissioners or the owner in pursuance of such order or otherwise, as the Chairman shall think fit and shall be open to inspection by the public free of charge.

Commissioners to require demolition of building unfit
habitation.

351. (1) When a Magistrate has prohibited the use of a building for human habitation under section 350 and such prohibition has been in force for three months, the Commissioners at a meeting shall take into consideration the question of the demolition of such building, [Cf. O. M.

and shall give notice of the time (being some time not less than one month after the service of the notice) and place at which such question will be considered to the owner, and to the occupier (if any) of the building, and the said owner and occupier shall be entitled to be heard when the question is so taken into consideration.

(2) If, upon such consideration, the Commissioners are of opinion that the building has not been rendered fit for human habitation, and that the necessary steps are not being taken with all due diligence to render it so fit, they shall cause a written notice to be served on the said owner and occupier and also to be put on some conspicuous part of such building, requiring such owner and occupier to demolish the building or any portion thereof as the case may be or to execute such work as in the opinion of the Commissioners at a meeting may be necessary to render the building fit for human habitation.

(3) If such owner or occupier undertakes to execute with due diligence the work necessary to render the building fit for human habitation, and the Commissioners consider that it can be so rendered fit for human habitation, the Commissioners may postpone the operation of the said notice for such time as they think sufficient for the purpose of giving the said owner or occupier an opportunity of executing the necessary work.

(Chapter XII.—Insanitary and Dangerous property—Clauses 352, 353.)

Abatement of overcrowding
or dwelling-place.

352. (1) If it appears to the Commissioners that any dwelling-house or other building which is used as a dwelling-place, or any room in such dwelling-house or building, is so overcrowded as to endanger the health of the inmates thereof, they may apply to a Magistrate to abate such overcrowding; and the Magistrate, after such inquiry as he thinks fit to make, may, by written order, require the owner of the building, or room, within a reasonable time not exceeding four weeks to be specified in the said order, to abate such overcrowding by reducing the number of lodgers, tenants or other inmates of the building or room, or may pass such other order as he may deem just and proper.

[Cf. Mad.
Act V of 1920,
n. 238; Ben Act 111 of 1884, n. 244Y.]

(2) The Commissioners at a meeting may, by written order, declare what amount of superficial and cubic space shall be deemed for the purposes of sub-section (1) to be necessary for each occupant of a building or room.

(3) If any building or room referred to in sub-section (1) has been sublet, the landlord of the lodgers, tenants, or other actual inmates of the same, shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be the owner of the building or room.

(4) Notwithstanding any thing contained in any law or in any contract to the contrary it shall be incumbent on every tenant, lodger or other inmate of a building or room to vacate on being required by the owner so to do in pursuance of any requisition made under sub-section (1).

etc.

353. Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, where it appears to the Commissioners that immediate action is necessary for the purpose of preventing imminent danger to person or property from any building, wall, bank or other structure or anything affixed thereto or to remove any tree or other thing, which appears to them to be a source of imminent danger to person or property, the Commissioners may take such immediate action themselves; and in such a case, it shall not be necessary for the Commissioners to give notice, if it appears to them that the object of taking such immediate action would be defeated by the delay incurred in giving notice.

[Cf. U. P.
Act II of 1916,
n. 263 (2).]

CHAPTER XIII.

(3) The Commissioners at a meeting may, in accordance with a scale of fees to be prepared by them from time to time and approved by the Local Government, levy a fee in respect of any such license and the renewal thereof, and may impose such conditions as to supervision, inspection, conservancy and other matters upon the grant of any such license as they may think necessary.

360. If the Commissioners have good reason to believe that any dangerous disease has appeared or is likely to appear in epidemic form within the municipality, they shall promptly investigate the matter, secure the prompt and thorough isolation of those sick or infected with such disease, so long as there is danger of their communicating the disease to other persons; see that no person suffers for lack of nurses or other necessities because of isolation for the public good; give public notice of infected places by placard on the premises and otherwise, if necessary, promptly notify head teachers of schools concerning families any of the members of which are suffering from dangerous diseases; supervise funerals of persons dead from such diseases, disinfect rooms, clothing and premises, and all articles likely to be infected; and generally so exercise the powers conferred on them by this Act as to guard and protect the public health and do such things as may be necessary to check and prevent the spread of the disease.

[Cf. S. African P. H. Act, 1919.]

Information to be given of dangerous disease.

361. Whoever,—

362. (1) When, in the opinion of any registered medical practitioner any person is suffering in any municipality from any dangerous disease and is also without proper lodging or accommodation or is lodged in such a manner that he cannot be effectually isolated so as to prevent infection or contagion, and the said practitioner considers that such person should be removed to a hospital or place at which

[Cf. O. A. Act, s. 435.]

Power to cleanse or disinfect buildings, tank, etc.

363. (1) If the Commissioners are of opinion— [New.]

(a) that any building or part thereof is in such a filthy or unwholesome condition that the health of any person is affected or endangered thereby, or

(b) that the cleansing, limewashing or disinfecting, as the case may be, of any building or any part of a building or of any tank or pool or well adjacent to a building, or that the cleansing, disinfection, purification or destruction of any article therein which is likely to retain infection or by reason of its filthy condition likely to cause injury to the health of any person, would tend to check or prevent the spread of any dangerous disease;

they may cause such building or part thereof to be cleansed, limewashed or disinfected or such tank, pool, well or article to be cleansed, disinfected or purified or such article to be destroyed and may, by written notice, require the occupier of such building or any part thereof to vacate the same for such time as may be prescribed in such notice.

(2) The cost of such cleansing or disinfecting shall be paid by the occupier of the building, or in the case of any tank, pool or well not let out with a building by the owner or occupier of the holding in which such tank, pool or well is situated according as the Commissioners at a meeting may determine :

Provided that—

12. Every beam and girder in such building shall be supported by a breadth of brickwork, stone or other solid substance sufficient to secure stability.

13. The bearing of every beam or girder on a wall shall not, without the written permission of the Chairman, be less than three-fourths of the thickness of such wall.

24. If the face of such building is set back from the street at any height not exceeding the height specified in rule 17, such building may be erected or raised to a height greater than that so specified, but not so that any portion of such building shall intersect any of a series of imaginary straight lines drawn from the line of set-back, in the direction of the portion set-back, at an angle of forty-five degrees with the horizontal.

The internal open space shall, in no case, be less than eight feet across in any direction. The external open space shall, in no case, be less than eight feet across in any direction, except when such open space abuts for the whole of its length on a street or other public space which is not less than fifteen feet across in any direction.

(2) A building shall not be held to contravene sub-rule (1) of this rule if one side of a room abuts on an internal or external verandah, provided that the verandah in its turn abuts for the whole of its length on an open space and that the width of such open space (not being less than eight feet) is double the width of the verandah.

(3) Every open space, external or internal, required by sub-rule (1) of this rule, shall be free and shall be kept free, from any erection thereon and shall be open to the sky.

(4) The side of every such room abutting on an external or internal open space or an external or internal verandah shall have at least one-fifth of its area occupied by doors, windows or ventilators, but, in no case, shall the area so occupied be less than twenty-four square feet. Where, in the opinion of the Chairman, it shall be considered necessary, additional ventilators of a type approved by the Chairman shall be provided in the remaining sides of such room. Such ventilators shall communicate directly with the open air.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

INTRODUCTORY.

The Bengal Municipal Act (III of 1884) has been in force for nearly 40 years, and though still wide enough in its scope to meet the needs of many towns in Bengal, the Act naturally fails to reflect or provide for several new developments in municipal administration which merit the attention of even petty municipalities. It is true that there is a wide gulf between the needs and still more the resources of small communities, such as Rajpur, Taki or Baduria and of urban areas such as Howrah, Darjeeling or Dacca and the elaborate provisions, which the latter require, may appear incongruous with the realities of many semi-rural municipalities. The Decentralization Commission indeed proposed that "a number of petty municipalities which will not be fit to exercise the large powers" suggested for municipalities in general might be placed under local committees styled town panchayets (as distinguished from village boards or unions) and be "administered as embryonic municipalities, subject to such portions of the provincial Municipal Acts as the Local Government may, in each case, see fit to extend to them".

There is, however, in Bengal a widespread reluctance to surrender the form of municipal government where it already exists, and after careful consideration Government are of opinion that no harm is likely to ensue—whether by abuse of powers or through inability to adapt to semi-rural conditions a too elaborate machinery—if a modern Municipal Act is placed in operation in all areas which at present enjoy a municipal constitution.

The gradual elaboration of the Village Self-Government Act will enable it to meet the needs of growing non-municipal villages for some years to come, while the present Bill restricts the operation of certain provisions to more advanced municipalities notified in this behalf and enables (clause 12) the Local Government to except a municipality or a part of it from the operation of any other provisions which appear unsuited to the circumstances of such municipality.

The somewhat inconvenient arrangement of the present Act, whereby the provisions regarding the constitution, procedure and various simple measures of sanitation and improvement apply to all municipalities, while other parts containing important administrative provisions apply when expressly extended, had its basis in the existence of the four diverse types or rather grades of municipalities which in 1876 were first brought within the scope of a single Act.

Under the present Bill, the main body of the municipal law will automatically apply proprio vigore to all municipalities, and it is merely the elaborate provisions regarding streets and buildings which require to be expressly extended. This method of treatment enables the draftsman to deal in one chapter with each important phase of municipal administration. By the insertion of a special chapter containing those provisions which the special conditions of hill municipalities render necessary, it is possible to repeal the Darjeeling Act (I of 1900) and to avoid the inconvenient inter-leaving of provisions peculiar to Darjeeling with other clauses of the Bill.

The case for amendment.

The Local Government in 1905 addressed the Government of India on the subject of the amendment of Act III of 1884. Their proposals for the most part aimed at removing legal difficulties and ambiguities and perfecting the working of existing provisions by the addition of new clauses which experience had shown to be necessary. Other proposals were designed to improve the constitution of appellate committees, to delegate to Divisional Commissioners certain powers now vested in the Local Government, to empower riverside municipalities to regulate the traffic of boats within municipal limits, to authorize the levy of a tax on dogs and rickshaws, to legalize an increase in the rate on holdings for the purpose of guaranteeing interest on capital expended on the construction of light railways or tramways, to justify the expenditure of municipal funds on the construction and maintenance of hostels and finally to introduce a trades and professions tax.

It will be seen that these proposals for the most part do not raise issues of the first importance. They received the general approval of the Government of India, which, however, referred to the defective character of the Bengal Municipal Act, and suggested that it was preferable "to re-enact the Act as a whole on more modern lines". The Legislative Department (Bengal) strongly supported this suggestion, pointing out that the Act was loosely drawn, that it had been extensively amended by Acts IV of 1894 and II of 1896, slightly amended by Act III of 1886 and Act V of 1897, and partially repealed in six other Acts. It was urged that a consolidating Bill instead of an amending Bill should be prepared. This contention has much greater weight in present times.

Two forces have been at work. In the first place, the range of municipal activities in all parts of the world has vastly expanded; secondly, and as a corollary, the more precise devolution of functions and powers from the State to local bodies has become essential.

In India, Government, in accordance with the changing times, have already increased the independence of local bodies by the abolition of official Chairmen, by giving municipalities a free hand in respect of their budgets and generally by the relaxation of internal control. But it is only by liberally supplementing the present law that the new conception of municipal administration—the improvement of insanitary buildings and areas, the prevention of epidemic disease, the control of the sale of food-stuffs, the improved registration of vital statistics, child-welfare, etc.,—can find a place in the municipal administration of mufassal Bengal.

Main features of the Bill.

(a) Constitution of municipalities, franchise, etc.

Schedules I and II of the present Act, providing for the appointing by Government of all the Commissioners and of the Chairman, are abolished and the proportion of elected Commissioners—two-thirds of the whole body of Commissioners in the old Act—is increased in the case of the average municipality to three-fourths, while in certain advanced municipalities, named in a schedule of the Bill, the elected proportion is raised to four-fifths.

In view of the administrative difficulties which frequently arise in the formation of a new municipality, Government retain power in such cases to nominate all the Commissioners for a period not exceeding one year.

To safeguard the rights of minorities under this wide extension of the elective system, Government take power to alter the number of Commissioners to provide specially by rule for the representation of minorities, especially Muhammadans, and in the case of industrial areas to increase the number of nominated Commissioners or to provide for the proper representation of the industry and of other inhabitants not directly connected with the industry by special electoral constituencies in each case.

Power has been taken to widen the franchise by enabling the Local Government at any time to fix and modify the minimum amount of rates and taxes, the payment of which will qualify for a vote.

Members of joint families who hold in severalty property on which they pay rates or taxes in their own name will enjoy a personal vote in addition to the vote which they share jointly with other members of the family and exercise through a selected representative.

Provision has been made against the commission of corrupt practices or the using of undue influence, and a special procedure is prescribed for the prompt disposal of election disputes.

The provisions regulating the election of a Chairman, the tenure of his office and that of the Vice-Chairman and Commissioners are more precise and detailed than those of the present Act, with the object of preventing such irregularities as now occur.

Commissioners before assuming office are required to make an oath or affirmation of allegiance to the Crown; the oath will not bar any person from attempting by constitutional means to obtain changes in the established order.

Statutory recognition is given to the formation of standing committees. With an extension of the committee system on these lines, it has been considered unnecessary to retain any provision for ward committees which moreover have not hitherto been formed in many municipalities.

(b) Control by Government.

(Chapter XXVII).—By increasing the elective element in municipal boards, Government have abandoned its old system of “internal control”. The popular voice is thereby given greater freedom in the direction of policy and the details of administration. At the same time, a very large extension of powers over the property and personal rights of the rate-payers is given to the popular representatives. The function of the State is to secure the proper exercise of discretion by the Commissioners without undue interference with the principle of local autonomy, and this can only be effected by vesting Government with adequate powers of “external control”.

Section 64 of the present Act provides, in the event of specific default on the part of the Commissioners, for Government appointing the Magistrate to perform at the cost of the municipal fund that duty in which default has been made.

Where there is persistent default, Government may under section 65 of the present Act take the extreme step of superseding the Commissioners.

These powers are retained in the Bill (clauses 533 and 537). Experience has, however, shown that it is rather in respect of the management of a particular department than of general administration that the intervention of Government is required and power is therefore taken under clause 534 to place such a department temporarily under Government control instead of having resort to the drastic measure of supersession.

It has again been found that serious defects from time to time occur in the management and maintenance of the three primary services of an urban community, viz., drainage or sewerage works, lighting and water-works. At present Government can only intervene with the bludgeon of supersession, and it has been considered desirable to take powers (clause 272) to bring important works of this kind under Government control, when the Commissioners—after the fullest enquiry—have been adjudged negligent or inefficient in this part of their duties.

Again clause 536 provides a new and alternative method of intervention, by empowering the Local Government where default, mismanagement or abuse of power is proved, to dissolve the municipal board instead of superseding or suspending its constitution.

The electors are thereby given the opportunity of pronouncing judgment on the outgoing Commissioners; if their verdict is unfavourable, a new board will come into power to rectify the errors of its predecessors; if, on the other hand, the electors desire to dissociate themselves from the action of Government, they may by re-election pass a vote of confidence in the board, which has been dissolved.

(c) Municipal finance and taxation.

As already pointed out, the scope or range of municipal action has in recent years been widened and clause 96 enumerates several objects on which the municipal funds may be expended and is rendered elastic by a provision enabling the Commissioners, with the sanction of Government, to add to such objects or purposes from time to time.

It is first proposed to abolish the existing tax on persons. That tax is difficult to assess, and gives rise to widespread complaints of unfair incidence. The rate on holdings is a far more scientific and satisfactory form of taxation, and it is desirable that it should be adopted throughout.

The allocation of separate funds (water or lighting funds, etc.) to the specific purposes for which they are raised, is maintained, but it is not always practicable to make or keep these funds self-supporting or exactly equal to the expenditure they are required to meet.

In practice, the special funds are frequently supplemented from the general fund. The Bill (clause 116) permits the levy of a consolidated rate and also (clause 100) permits the diversion of a surplus accruing in any fund to another special fund.

The cost of capital works and their maintenance is greatly in advance of pre-war charges and, if municipalities are to be improved or even to maintain their existing standards, increased revenue is necessary.

The percentages at which the Commissioners may levy holding, water, lighting and conservancy rates have accordingly been raised, while a new tax on trades, professions and callings—on a scale to be fixed by the Commissioners and approved by Government—and a tax on vessels, moored at municipal ghats, have been proposed.

The tax on dogs is proposed with a view to check rabies rather than to raise revenue.

Power is taken also to impose at any time any other taxation, which the Commissioners may consider reasonable and which the Local Government and, where necessary, the Governor-General in Council may approve.

In clause 113, power is taken to impose a water-rate where a supply is based, e.g., on sub-artesian wells with a somewhat restricted distribution system, or a lighting-rate, where, e.g., oil-lamps are provided.

The latrine, conservancy and drainage services are to be maintained by means of the "conservancy-rate" in place of the sliding scale of latrine fees now in force.

The proviso to clause 118 under which the holding-rate on that portion of a valuation, which is in excess of one lakh is to be levied as at present at one-fourth of the ordinary percentage, may cease to operate in advanced municipalities, if the Local Government so direct.

The provisions regarding assessment are in some respects elaborated and, it is hoped, are given a more orderly and logical arrangement.

For convenience of assessment and collection it is provided in clause 120 that the owners of holdings shall be liable in the first instance for the payment of the general rate and the three special rates (water, lighting and conservancy). In the case of the special rates, however, they shall recover three-quarters of the amounts levied from the occupiers (vide clause 154). Even in respect of these rates it is equitable that the owner should pay a share owing to the interest which he must have in the maintenance of the municipal services.

A further important innovation is the proposal (clause 133) to create a panel of municipal assessors. Re-assessment is undoubtedly at present a weak point in some municipalities, and in providing for the creation of a body of independent and impartial assessors, Government are merely adopting a system which has always been in force in the democratic municipalities of Great Britain.

With the object again of securing an equitable and satisfactory assessment, it is proposed (clause 137) to place appeals against the assessment before a committee consisting of the Chairman, a municipal Commissioner appointed by his colleagues and a person nominated by the Local Government.

The latter can always be outvoted, but if he is well-selected, his views should be of value.

Power is taken to tax motor-vehicles.

(d) Conservancy, drainage and water-supply.

The Commissioners are given wide powers to enforce the provision for improvement of house-drains, cess-pools, privies and other such appurtenances and to secure the proper drainage of premises.

They are empowered to insist on the owners of private water-supplies cleansing or silt-clearing a tank or well; they may themselves disinfect such supplies and in accordance with rules framed by Government may provide for the regular analysis of water from any municipal or private supply, and they are required on the requisition of two qualified medical practitioners or of ten rate-payers (subject to certain safeguards against frivolous or vexatious applications) to have the water of any supply tested by the Public Analyst.

Power is taken also to prohibit wet cultivation where it is likely to be injurious to health or to contaminate a water-supply, and the Commissioners may take steps to secure the eradication of the water-hyacinth or any other noxious plant notified in this behalf.

Important provisions (clause 349, et seq.) are also introduced for dealing with insanitary buildings and overcrowding.

(e) Water-supply, lighting and drainage systems.

A statutory obligation is laid on the Commissioners (clause 265) to provide a sufficient water-supply, a sufficient drainage and conservancy system and proper lighting.

Apart from their more general powers of intervention in the case of default, the Local Government, after giving the Commissioners the fullest hearing, are empowered to enforce the provision of these primary needs (clause 268) and for this purpose to direct that any rate or rates authorized under the Act shall be levied or increased but not so as to exceed any maximum prescribed in that behalf. Important provisions are also introduced regulating in some detail the regulations of the Commissioners, vis-à-vis the individual, as regards—

- (i) the laying of pipes, etc., through private premises;
- (ii) connecting such premises with municipal sewers or mains;
- (iii) the metering of premises;
- (iv) the free or excess supply of water; and
- (v) power to cut off the supply of water.

(f) Streets, buildings and bustees.

The elaborate provisions, which are required to secure the proper development of a town by means of wide and well-planned streets, would be inappropriate for many existing municipalities, and the provisions of the greater portion of Chapter VI will apply only to those towns to which they are expressly extended. This chapter gives the Commissioners wide powers in respect of town-planning and adopts the well-tried Calcutta principle of recoupment by means of the acquisition and re-sale, after development, of surplus lands.

The liberty of the individual to develop his property by means of narrow inadequate lanes is brought under control.

The more drastic provisions of Chapter IX (Buildings) and the building rules, which as Schedule VI form a part of the Bill, apply to those municipalities to which they are expressly extended.

The rules, based on those of Madras mufassal municipalities, are by no means too severe or rigorous for important towns, while for other municipalities rules of a more simple type can be framed under clauses 314 and 315.

The improvement of insanitary bustees has hitherto—partly owing to defects in the present law—received little attention in mufassal towns.

Sections 245, et seq., of the Bengal Municipal Act are hardly less wide in their general import than the corresponding provisions of the Calcutta

Municipal Act, but if these provisions are to become effective, it is necessary to lay down in much greater detail the procedure which is to be adopted.

The Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, has therefore been freely drawn on with the object of making more explicit and precise the steps which should be taken for the improvement of insanitary bustees.

(g) Restraint of infection, child-welfare and school hygiene.

The compulsory notification of certain specified infectious diseases (vide the definition of "dangerous disease") is proposed. The Commissioners are made responsible for the disinfection of infected buildings, conveyances, clothing, bedding and other articles, while persons suffering from certain diseases to be notified in this behalf are forbidden to deal in food-stuffs or wash clothes for the public. It may be assumed that leprosy would in the first instance be so notified.

The Commissioners are given power—subject to an appeal to the Magistrate or Commissioner—to direct that a school shall be closed or any scholars temporarily excluded therefrom, with a view to preventing the spread of disease.

It is proposed to give a similar power in respect of markets.

The Commissioners are expressly given power to provide midwives and to employ health visitors for the promotion of child-welfare, while the importance of the sanitary inspection of schools and of school hygiene generally is definitely recognized.

(h) Markets and slaughter-houses, sale of food and drugs and milk-supply.

The present Act provides inadequately for the regulation of private markets, and it is therefore proposed that the Commissioners should be given wider powers to enforce the improvement of such markets in respect of such matters as paving, drainage, passages and sanitary conveniences.

Provisions are introduced in the Bill for securing the use of standard weights and measures in municipalities to which such provisions have been expressly extended.

The better regulation of food-stuffs is desirable and power is taken for licensing certain trades, such as those of a sweetmeat vendor, baker, dairyman, etc.

The provisions for the inspection and seizure of unwholesome foods and drugs are amplified.

A safeguard is provided by requiring a Magistrate's order for the destruction of such articles.

Many municipalities are anxious to take measures for the improvement of the milk-supply. At the same time, few municipalities are at present in a position to enforce adequate control, and it has therefore been decided that instead of enacting elaborate substantive provisions on this behalf the Commissioners should be given wide powers to frame by-laws for the registration of dairymen and dairies, for the inspection and regulation of dairies and generally for securing and maintaining the purity of the milk-supply (clause 417).

(i) Registration of births and deaths.

The registration of vital statistics, which enables the public health expert to lay his finger on the weak spots of municipal administration, has hitherto not received sufficient attention. It is proposed to make the local registrar of births and deaths to some extent independent of the Commissioners by safeguarding him from punishment by the Commissioners except with the consent of the Local Government and also to empower him to institute proceedings against defaulters. The Commissioners will, however, be responsible for his salary.

(j) Nuisances (clause 432).

It has been considered necessary to state in great detail what is to be deemed a "nuisance". The inspection and abatement of nuisances is the key-stone of a sound and efficient public health department and for the education of public opinion, the guidance of the Commissioners and as a clear direction to the courts, it appears desirable to adopt the custom of English draftsmen by incorporating in the Bill an exhaustive or at least a comprehensive description of "nuisance", and by providing a more detailed form of procedure for the remedy of the same.

(k) Education.

The constitution of an Education Committee is made statutory. It could be appointed as one of the standing committees, but the subject is of sufficient importance to demand prominence in a comprehensive statute of this kind.

Where no education cess is levied under Act IV of 1919, the Local Government is empowered (clause 441) by general or special order to prescribe a percentage of the municipal income (exclusive however of the three chief special rates) to be applied to the promotion of primary education in any municipality.

General Remarks.

Every change of importance which it is proposed to make in the existing law is explained in detail in the subjoined Notes on Clauses, since it is desired in a measure of this magnitude to give the Council the fullest possible assistance in its consideration. A table has also been prepared and annexed to the Bill showing which provisions of the existing Act are omitted from the Bill, and indicating where those provisions of the present Act, which have been retained, are reproduced in the Bill.

It can hardly be denied that the division of the Bill into chapters dealing with distinct subjects will prove more convenient than the arrangement of the present Act, and it is believed that the insertion in each chapter of clauses empowering the Local Government or the Commissioners in meeting to make rules or by-laws will enable the Commissioners readily to realize the exact extent to which the Bill, as occasion demands, can be supplemented and amplified by the sub-legislation of rule and by-law.

It may be urged that having regard to the limited resources of many municipalities, the Bill is overloaded and unduly elaborated.

It deals, however, with no phase of municipal activity which is not already a commonplace of municipal administration in England, and, where any chapter is at present beyond the scope of a particular town, it still, though it may remain for some years a dead letter, possesses educative value and marks a goal, at which the body corporate, at a later stage, may easily aspire.

NOTES ON CLAUSES.

Chapter I.

Clause 2 has been revised in view of the provisions of the Bengal General Clauses Act.

Clause 3.—The definitions have been generally revised on the lines of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, where applicable to mufassil conditions, and new definitions have been inserted where necessary. The definitions applicable to hill districts have been removed to Chapter XXIII so as to make the general portion of the Bill self-contained. Points in regard to the definitions are as follows:—

(1) “The Board of Public Health” for Bengal is substituted in clause 444 for the old Sanitary Board as the advisory body in matters of municipal administration affecting the public health.

(3) “Building.” A definition of the term “building” has been inserted, as the absence of a suitable definition has given rise to much difficulty in the part in interpreting the law. The definition is based on section 3 (s) of the City of Bombay Municipal Act, 1888, and section 3(7) of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

(4) “Building-line.” This definition has been inserted for the purposes of Chapter VI of the Bill. The wording of section 206 of the existing Act is defective and not in any way precise.

(6) The definition of “carriage” has been made clearer, the words “ordinarily drawn by animals” in the existing definition having given rise to complications.

(9) “Conservancy.” It is desirable for the purposes of the conservancy rate to bring together under one term the various services in connection with latrines, scavenging and sewage.

(16) & (18) “Framed building.” The term applies to buildings in hill municipalities. With the existing definition, most huts might be regarded as “framed buildings” to which the provisions for the improvement of bustees could not be applied. An attempt is made to remove this difficulty by the new definition.

(22) “Holding.” The reference to the tax on persons contained in the definition, as set forth in the existing Act, has been omitted, as it is not proposed to continue the tax on persons.

(25) The definition of “hut” has been made more general owing to the varying conditions prevailing in mufassal municipalities.

(26) “Inhabitant.” A definition of “inhabitant” has been inserted especially for the purposes of the clauses relating to public health.

(29) “Living thing.” A definition of “living thing” has been inserted for conciseness. The English Acts which relate to food and markets contain a succession of references to animals, fish, game, poultry, etc., which add materially to the length of the Statute Book.

(30) “Lodging-house.” A definition has been inserted in order to ensure the better regulation of lodging-houses for the poorer classes. Clause 445 may be compared in this connection.

The definition is made more restricted than in the case of the Puri Lodging-houses Act.

(36) “Occupier.” The Calcutta definition is adopted.

(38) “Owner.” The definition contained in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, is adopted in preference to the definition contained in section 6 (II) of the existing Act. The position and liability of trustees are provided for in the body of the Act (vide clause 514). Provision is made for the inclusion in the term of persons who have rent-free tenants.

(40) “Premises.” A wide definition is desirable, specially for the purposes of the clauses relating to public health.

(43) “Private street.” As this Bill deals with municipalities, it has been considered advisable to eliminate the word “road” which occurs together with the word “street” in the present Act. The word “road” is now used in the present Bill only in connection with hill municipalities.

(50) "Street alignment." The definition contained in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, is inserted for the purposes of Chapter VI. The present Act is entirely defective in its provisions relating to projected public streets.

(54) "Water for domestic purposes." The provisions of the existing section 288 are incorporated in the definition and amplified in view of municipal progress.

(55) "Water-works." A comprehensive definition of "water-works" has been introduced on the lines of the United Provinces Act owing to the more detailed provisions of the present Act in relation to water-supply.

Clause 4 is an interpretation clause based partly on the United Provinces Act, and framed with a view to securing all reasonable latitude to the Commissioners in making requisitions in the exercise of their powers under this Act.

Clause 5 has been inserted to prevent unnecessary litigation.

Chapter II.

Clause 6.—A special power has been taken to include railway areas within municipal areas, a safeguard to railway administrations being provided in clause 17 so as to secure their proper representation on the municipality and to enable the Local Government when necessary, of their own motion to alter the number of Commissioners of a municipality.

Clauses 10 and 11 have been inserted to fill a gap in the existing law, the point having been raised as to whether new notifications, rules and by-laws are necessary when changes are made in the municipal area.

Chapter III.

Clauses 14 to 17.—The principles underlying these clauses are explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

Clauses 18 and 19.—These clauses embody in the law certain basic principles as to the preparation of the electoral roll.

Clause 20.—The provisions of this clause relating to disqualification are substantially based on those contained in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923. The existing Act only provides for removal after election or appointment, which means a fresh election and more expense.

Clause 21.—The principles underlying this clause are dealt with in the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

Clauses 22 to 41 set forth in much greater detail than was formerly the case the procedure in regard to the elections of municipal Commissioners. These matters were formerly left to rules under section 15. The new clauses relating to election offences, and in particular the clauses relating to corrupt practices, are based in the main on the Madras Act. Provision has been made in clause 24 for all elections to be held by ballot, and the definition of corrupt practices in clause 26 has been amplified so as to cover cases of unfair pressure on electors, such as has occurred of late at certain elections. Clauses 33 to 40 deal with the decision of election disputes and follow in the main the provisions at present in force in Bombay.

Clause 40 has been inserted to minimise the present somewhat frequent interference by the courts with the working of municipalities by means of temporary injunctions obtained by disappointed candidates.

Clause 41 confers a wide rule-making power in regard to the details of elections. This power is not however so wide as at present, the most salient provisions in regard to the electoral roll and voting by ballot having been embodied in the text of the Bill.

Clause 42.—The provisions as to the election of the Chairman contained in sections 23 and 59 of the existing Act have been gathered together, the new draft having been taken partly from the Bihar and Orissa Act. This draft has however been amplified so as to avoid a lacuna between the election of a Chairman and the approval of the appointment by the Government. All the provisions contained in this and the subsequent clauses as to the election or appointment of Chairman are modified to meet the new constitution provided in the Bill.

Clause 46 provides for the decision by the Local Government of disputes relating to the elections of Chairman and Vice-Chairman, which disputes at present cause dislocation of work when under reference to the law courts.

Clause 48.—The general powers of the Chairman to act on behalf of the Commissioners have been more specifically defined, so as to cover cases under other Acts where powers, allied to those conferred by this Act, are vested in the local authority, i.e., the Commissioners.

Clause 49.—The principles of delegation of powers by the Chairman to the Vice-Chairman are applied also to the delegation of powers by the Chairman to certain expert officers of the municipality, a general control at the same time being maintained.

Clause 50.—The duties of the Vice-Chairman have been defined on the lines of the United Provinces Act.

Clause 51 while dealing with the leave of the Chairman and Vice-Chairman enables the Local Government to declare the office of either the Chairman or Vice-Chairman vacant in the event of overstay of leave. The existing Act is silent on this point.

Clause 52 combines provisions contained in existing sections 14, 21, 24, 25 and 26, and brings together the law as to tenure of office.

Clause 53.—It is proposed that the Commissioners shall make an oath or affirmation of allegiance to the King-Emperor. The proposed form of oath or affirmation is partly based on the form of oath or affirmation made by the Members of the local Legislature. Attention is invited to the explanation appended to this clause.

Clause 54 is based on section 27 of the existing Act. An omission is supplied by a detailed provision as to the treatment of vacancies caused by elections being declared void.

Clause 55 has been inserted to avoid a difficulty which has been experienced in regard to the conduct of the first meeting after a general election, and to avoid a lacuna that might otherwise occur if the Commissioners request the Local Government to appoint a Chairman.

Clause 56.—The procedure for the resignation of a Chairman contained in section 27A has been modified. An elected Chairman may resign under the Bill by informing the Commissioners in writing. An appointed Chairman must notify the Local Government, which appoints him, instead of the Commissioner of the Division as formerly.

Clause 57.—The power of removal is taken away from the Commissioner of the Division and given to the Local Government.

The wording of clause (a) has been modified from that of the present clause (a) of section 20 (1) to fall in with accepted modern standards.

Sub-clause (2) (b) is consequential on clause 53.

Sub-clause (2) (d) is inserted to prevent Commissioners acting in their private capacity against the municipality in the law courts.

This clause has been generally amplified, and has been made to cover part of the existing section 57.

Clause 59 has been amplified to make the provisions of clause 58 more safe.

Clauses 62 to 70 confer on the Commissioners powers in regard to the appointment of their establishments considerably larger than those conferred by the present Act. The control of the Divisional Commissioner in regard to this matter is practically eliminated except in regard to the decision of the question as to whether an officer of the municipality has become seriously indebted. At the same time the tenure of office of superior expert officers is made more secure in the same manner as in the Madras Act. The Local Government is given power to insist, where necessary, on the appointment of an expert officer for sanitary or other purposes even in the case of a small municipality. Power has been taken to enable the municipality to arrange for a provident fund combined with a system of bonuses on the principles which are in force in certain railway administrations, this being a strong inducement to employees to continue in service for a long period. *

In the case of Health Officers and Sanitary Inspectors, the Local Government has been empowered to fix certain essential qualifications.

Clause 76, sub-clause (3), has been made a little more stringent in order to insure greater punctuality.

Clause 77.—While providing for the inspection of the minutes of proceedings by the tax-payers, it has been provided that a small fee for inspection may be levied by the Commissioners in order to avoid frivolous applications.

Clause 80.—The United Provinces Act has been followed in regard to the provisions for the settlement of disputes without reference to the law courts.

Clauses 81 and 82.—Provision has been made in these clauses for the appointment of special committees, the members of which need not be all Commissioners. This is particularly desirable in regard to such matters as child-welfare, school hygiene, etc.

Clause 83.—The rule-making power has been somewhat amplified to secure some latitude in regard to changes of procedure which may be found to be necessary in the light of experience.

Clause 85.—Provision has been made for the preparation and publication of the annual municipal report.

Chapter IV.

Clauses 86 to 92 bring together the various provisions of the law in regard to municipal property. The main changes in the existing law are in the direction of making it clear that the municipality may take up land for purposes of recoupment, a necessary provision, in order to enable them to carry out any comprehensive improvement scheme.

With reference to the ownership of streets, safeguards have been provided in cases of industrial concerns which maintain water-works, etc., which pass under municipal streets.

Clause 93.—The provisions of clauses 93 to 100 bring together the law in regard to the municipal fund in the same manner as that in which the funds of the Corporation are dealt with in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

Clause 94.—As in the case of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, power has been taken to enable municipalities to maintain current and deposit accounts with approved banks.

Clause 95 provides for the usual first charges on the municipal fund.

Clause 96 sets out in detail the various objects on which a municipality may reasonably be called upon to spend its money. Greater latitude has been given to the municipality than is at present the case under the existing law. New provisions include the following:—

Item (viii) (the construction and maintenance of model dwelling-houses), item (xiv) (the prevention of the spread of epidemic diseases), item (xv) (the payment of the expenses of indigent inhabitants who have to be sent away for treatment for rabies, etc.), item (xxi) (the maintenance and improvement of municipal dairy-farms and provision of milk-supply), item (xxvii) (the proper maintenance and preparation of maps and plans), item (xxviii) (the provision of relief in time of famine or scarcity or internal commotion), item (xxix) (the power to contribute to charitable societies aiding in the disposal of unclaimed dead bodies and the dead bodies of paupers) and item (xxxi) (the power to compensate an employee for loss incurred in execution of his duty).

Clause 97 materially enlarges the powers of the Commissioners in regard to areas outside the municipality for the purpose of lighting and water-supply schemes and other essential services, in connection with which it is necessary to carry on work in the non-municipal area. A provision is also made for municipal scholarships to deserving residents of the municipality.

Clause 98 enables the Commissioners to take over any institution the affairs of which may most suitably be conducted by them.

Clause 99.—Except in the case of a salaried Chairman or Vice-Chairman, the Commissioners ordinarily shall not receive salaries. If they do so, they will be dealt with under the first item in the table in clause 485.

Clause 100 sets out the restrictions which should be imposed on the expenditure of monies collected for the purposes of the essential services of the municipality. It enables the municipalities, subject to any objection by the rate-payers, to amalgamate, with the sanction of the Local Government, the funds required for the three chief services, viz., lighting, water-supply and conservancy, and it safeguards the interests of the rate-payers against any expenditure of such monies on objects other than these three essential services.

Clauses 101 to 106 materially enlarge the powers of the Commissioners in regard to the budget estimates. The limit of expenditure on a particular scheme, which the Commissioners may incur without the previous sanction of the Local Government, has also been raised from Rs. 5,000 to Rs. 10,000. The power of modification of the budget renders it unnecessary to have a separate procedure as to transfer from one hand to another.

Clause 109 provides for proper audit of the municipal fund, the appointment of auditors and the payment of the cost of audit. It is proposed that municipalities shall pay the whole or part of this, as they would have to pay a chartered accountant if they were a private concern.

Clause 110.—As it is proposed that municipalities should have a much greater freedom than formerly in regard to their expenditure and their balances, it is necessary to reserve to the Local Government the power to prescribe the maintenance of an adequate closing balance.

Chapter V.

Clause 111.—The provisions in regard to municipal taxation are set forth in Chapter V. It is proposed, as stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, to abolish the tax on persons and to have a more uniform system of taxation than at present obtains in municipalities. The dog tax referred to in clause (g) of sub-clause (1), the tax on trades, professions and callings and the imposition of fees for the grant of licenses are new.

Clause 112.—The maximum rate on holdings has been raised as explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

Clause 113.—In addition to the provisions contained in the existing Act, a provision has been made for the levy of a water-rate where water is supplied by municipal water-carts or similar agency and a lighting-rate where oil and acetylene lamps are employed. The maximum of the water-rate has been raised.

Clause 114.—The old latrine-rate has been converted into a general conservancy-rate, it being considered desirable that all matters relating to conservancy and sewage shall form part of a connected system.

The provisions of sections 325 and 326 of the existing Act have been made more detailed, so as to set forth the liabilities and exemptions of mill owners, etc., who provide their own septic tanks or similar works.

Clauses 116 and 117.—Provision is made in these clauses for the levy of a consolidated rate where the Commissioners consider this to be desirable.

Clause 118.—Provision is made in this and the succeeding clauses for the entertainment of a more skilled agency than is at present employed in many instances for the assessment of the rate on holdings. It is proposed to maintain a panel of qualified municipal assessors from which municipalities may select competent officers whenever the time comes for re-assessment.

The clause follows closely the provisions of the existing section 101, but the Local Government is empowered to declare in certain cases that the proviso to sub-section (2), which limits the rating of buildings which have cost more than a lakh of rupees, shall not apply.

Clause 119 confers power on the Commissioners to settle doubtful points in regard to assessments without reference to the law courts.

Clause 120.—An important modification is proposed in regard to the system of rating. Under the existing system the latrine tax falls mainly on the occupier. It is now proposed to have a uniform system of rating under which the liability for the lighting, water and conservancy-rates shall fall upon the owner in the first instance, he being entitled to make equitable recoveries from the occupier under the provisions of clause 154. The owner is however made liable for one-fourth of the rate in all cases, because the maintenance of the municipal services serves his permanent interest in the holding.

Clause 123.—The existing section 102 is modified so as to prevent the Commissioners from further jeopardising the municipal finances by lowering the rates at a time when the municipal funds are in an unsatisfactory condition.

Clause 124 follows existing section 103, but provision is made for including the names of occupiers in the assessment list.

Clause 125 is based on existing section 97, but provides for the continuance of the former assessment until the commencement of a new year after the new assessment lists have been prepared.

Clause 126.—The provisions for amendment of the assessment list have been grouped together. A new provision is made in this clause for the giving of notice to any rate-payer of any alteration which the Commissioners propose to make in the assessment list, whereby he may be affected.

Clause 127 provides that the assessment list shall be conclusive, subject to the rights, conferred by a later clause, of appeal to a special committee.

Clause 129.—A new provision has been made to ensure that remissions made by the Commissioners shall be scrutinized from time to time. This provision exists in the rules of the audit department.

Clause 130.—More detailed provisions have been inserted in regard to the remission of rates on account of vacancy. Generally speaking, the principles of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, have been followed in this matter. A more generous provision as to remission or refund is inserted in this clause, the former remission of one-half being increased to three-quarters. In clause (i) of sub-clause (4) provision is made that a person who keeps a pleasure-house or a second residence within a municipality is not entitled to a remission or refund on account of vacancy.

Clause 132.—A provision is made for proper notice being given of transfers of property within a municipality. The principle of this clause is taken from the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

Clause 133 provides for the appointment of the panel of assessors.

Clause 134 enables the Local Government to see that the municipalities perform their duties in regard to the appointment of qualified men to prepare the assessment lists.

Clause 135 gives a further safeguard to the individual rate-payer by insisting that notice shall be given to him whenever his rates are raised or a new rate is imposed, so as to enable him to put forward his objections, if any, to the appeal committee.

Clause 136 while following existing section 113 lays down the time-limit for applications for review of an assessment.

Clause 137 provides for the appointment of a special committee, including a person appointed by the Government (who need not be a Commissioner) to decide appeals against the assessment list, instead of these appeals being heard by an appeal committee composed of, and appointed entirely by, the Commissioners.

Clause 139 makes the law more specific as to the powers of the Commissioners in regard to the realisation of rates pending an appeal.

Clause 141.—The drafting of existing section 118 has been slightly revised.

Clause 144.—The time-limit imposed by the existing Act for the issue of a distress warrant against a defaulter is extended to six months, as the existing limit of three months has been found to be inadequate. Otherwise the recovery provisions in clauses 144 to 153 follow substantially the existing law.

Clause 154 (vide note on clause 120).

Clause 156.—The list of carriages and animals which are exempted from the carriage tax has been brought up to date, and under clause 157 the Commissioners are given a general power of exempting special classes of carriages or animals from the tax.

Clauses 170 and 171 provide for the imposition of a dog tax.

Clauses 172 to 180 deal with the imposition of tax on carts. The provisions in regard to this tax have been changed considerably, the amount payable for registration being raised and special rates being imposed on carts propelled by mechanical power, e.g., motor-lorries. In clause 174 a special provision is made for the higher rate where the carts are of such a description that owing to their narrow tyres and rims they cause undue damage to the surface of the municipal streets.

Clauses 181 to 187 repeat with minor modifications the provisions of existing sections 149 to 155 in regard to ferries. The present section 148 is no longer necessary in view of the amendments already made in section 35 of the Bengal Ferries Act.

Clauses 188 to 194 deal with tolls on bridges. It is proposed to discontinue the existing power to levy tolls on roads, owing to the unsatisfactory nature of such tolls in themselves and the difficulty of arranging any satisfactory system of collection.

Clauses 195 to 202 reproduce with minor drafting amendments the general provisions of existing sections 161 to 172 in regard to tolls on ferries and bridges.

Chapter VI.

The provisions contained in clauses 205 to 208 are new. They are on the lines of the proposals made in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, and it is especially provided in clause 204 that they shall only be enforced in those municipalities where the state of development is such that, in the opinion of the Local Government, they can profitably be introduced.

It will be noted that the provisions divide themselves into two parts, one for the prescription of the actual width of the street and the other for the proper frontage of buildings facing upon it, and provision for either of these objects can be made separately by the Commissioners according to requirements.

Care has been taken to safeguard existing property, so far as this is compatible with the public requirements. This is secured by the general restrictions relating to building lines contained in the proviso to sub-clause (1) and in sub-clause (4) of clause 205.

Provision in regard to additions to buildings or boundary walls is made in clause 206 so that, where it is proposed to open out a proper street alignment within a municipality, a property owner shall not obstruct the carrying out of that project by indiscriminate building.

Power is also taken that, where the prospect of completing the street alignment is not immediate, permission may be given to owners to build within the street alignment subject to the condition of removal, when the project is brought to fruition.

Provision is made in clause 207 for taking up vacant lands with a view to street improvements, and in clause 208 for setting forward a building.

Clause 209.—This clause, as a general clause, gives powers to the Commissioners in regard to public streets, squares and gardens. It is self-explanatory.

The provision of open spaces in a municipality is important from the point of view of public health and education, and special provision has therefore been made for this. Attention is invited to sub-clause (e) of this clause, whereby the Commissioners are able to put into effect their powers in regard to recoupment by selling off the improved building sites acquired in connection with any scheme of street improvement.

Clause 210 provides for the relinquishment or lease of public streets, squares and gardens which are no longer required by the municipality.

Clause 211 deals with projected public streets, and prescribes the minimum width for the same. The clause is based on the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

Clauses 213 to 218 deal with private streets, the regulation of which is quite insufficiently provided for at present. These clauses (except clause 214, which follows the Madras Act) are also based on the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, and they are designed—

- (i) to ensure that property owners shall not develop their property in such a manner as to create an overcrowded and insanitary area; and
- (ii) to ensure that private streets, which may later be taken over as public streets, shall conform to the general design of the town instead of being narrow and insanitary lanes, impassable in rainy weather and a resort for bad characters on dark nights. The suitable regulation of private streets is essential, as these streets will pay a great part in the later development of the town.

Special attention is invited to the provisions of clause 217, under which the Commissioners can call on the owners of the land fronting or adjoining or abutting on a private street to put it in decent repair, and to clause 218, under which the persons interested are empowered to take necessary measures for putting their private streets in order and then handing them over to the municipality, thus divesting themselves of the cost of maintenance.

Clauses 219 to 232 follow more closely the scheme of the existing Act, being the routine provisions for the protection of existing streets, the proper fencing of excavations and the closing of streets for repairs, and the time-honoured provisions in regard to verandahs, platforms and such like projections. Clause 227, which is based on the United Provinces Act, is designed to prevent people cascading water from their roofs and elsewhere on to the heads of the passers-by.

Clause 224.—A definite provision is inserted on the same lines as in the United Provinces Act for the licensing of platforms upon or over any public street, this form of encroachment being particularly liable to occur, and otherwise difficult to keep within bounds. The fee for the license will not be large, but it is hoped that the provision will ensure proper registration of existing platforms and prevent subsequent increase in their area.

Clause 229 also deals with the removal of projections, encroachments and erections, the safeguards contained in the existing Act being maintained in regard to erections of old standing.

Clause 232.—Provision is made to empower the Commissioners to stop the indiscriminate use of public streets by hawkers and other like persons.

Chapter VII.

Clause 233.—The existing law has been amplified so as to include outfall—and disposal—works.

Clauses 235 and 237.—The provisions of existing section 187 have been split up, so as to make it clear that where a rate-payer pays the conservancy-rate, it is for the municipality to remove the sewage, rubbish and offensive matter to the places appointed for its disposal.

Clause 239.—Special provisions have been made for the conservancy of factories and business premises on the lines of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

Clause 241.—The wording of existing section 270 is unsatisfactory. The municipal sewers are the places into which sewage is to be put and yet the existing section prohibits this. The wording has therefore been recast.

Clause 242.—Special provision has been made for the disposal of carcasses. The time for giving notice, which is specified in the United Provinces Act, from which this clause has been taken, has been shortened in the interests of public health.

Clause 244 reproduces existing section 193. It is not proposed to re-enact existing section 194. This work should be done through direct municipal agency.

Clauses 245 and 246.—More detailed provisions than are at present in force have been inserted in regard to the provision of suitable privy accommodation in dwelling-houses and places where workmen are employed. The provisions of these clauses are based on those contained in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, and allow for the improved systems introduced by modern sanitary engineering.

Clause 247 (read with the penalty clause) renders penal the obstruction, the illicit construction and the destruction of drains, cesspools, etc.

Clause 249 clearly defines the powers of the Commissioners to inspect latrines, urinals, cesspools, etc., and makes it clear that they may interfere with the surface of the soil of the premises in which such latrines, urinals, etc., are situated, and cause it to be opened for the purpose of such inspection.

Clause 250.—The drafting of the United Provinces Act in regard to requisitions relating to cesspools, etc., has been adopted as being preferable to that of the present law in Bengal.

Clause 251 enables the Commissioners to open up a way to any privy for the purpose of cleansing it, by requiring the owner to provide a suitable house-gully.

Clause 254.—Provision has been made to enable the Commissioners to make special scavenging arrangements for fairs, festivals and other large assemblies of people, whether within or in the neighbourhood of the municipality.

Clause 255 enables the Commissioners to deal with premises, where there are undue accumulations of filth, etc., by means of a special staff, to be paid for in whole or in part by the owner or occupier of the premises.

Clause 256.—The powers of the Commissioners to make by-laws in regard to conservancy have been amplified and more clearly defined.

Clause 257 defines the powers of the Commissioners in regard to the construction of drains, and clause 258 defines their powers in regard to the alteration and improvement of drains. The existing section 197 and generally the provisions of the existing Act are quite inadequate in this connection.

Clause 259 defines the rights of the owner or occupier of a building or land to connect his private drains with the municipal drains.

Clause 261.—The powers which already exist under section 228 of the present Act, as conferred by sub-clause (1) of this clause on the Commissioners for the carrying out of a joint drainage scheme in regard to two or more premises, are qualified by the addition of sub-clause (2) which compels the Commissioners to give due notice of the alterations which are about to be made to the owners of the premises affected thereby.

Clause 262.—The provisions of this clause amplify the provisions of the existing section 227 of the Bengal Municipal Act.

Clause 263 introduces the power of the Commissioners to compel owners to construct cesspools and house-drains in cases where it is not possible to connect the house-drainage system with the municipal drains.

Clause 264 provides for by-laws relating to drainage.

Chapter VIII.

This chapter brings together and amplifies the provisions of the existing Act in regard to systems of drainage, sewerage, lighting and water-supply, and in particular the provisions regulating the construction and maintenance of systems which are joint between municipalities and other local authorities. The present provisions as to joint schemes are contained in sections 37A to 37M of the Act in so far as such schemes relate to water-supply or drainage. The new Chapter VIII extends the same procedure to joint lighting systems.

Clause 266.—The reference to electricity under this clause is somewhat more direct than that contained in the present section 319. Sub-clause (2) retains the power to Government to sanction advances in suitable cases to meet the cost of preparing and carrying out lighting or water-supply schemes.

Clause 267 restricts the power given by existing section 37J to the Local Government to order the execution of a joint scheme by an officer appointed by them.

Clauses 268 and 269 are based on section 37K of the existing Act and are applied also to lighting schemes. The procedure, however, is very much shortened, the Local Government under the present Bill being able to prepare a scheme of drainage, sewerage, water-supply, lighting, etc., without a long preliminary negotiation with the Commissioners. The subsequent stages are also shortened and powers of obstruction are removed, a safeguard, however, being provided in sub-clause (3) of clause 268, which requires the Local Government to satisfy themselves that the financial resources of the municipality will not be subjected to any undue strain by any scheme that may be enforced on it by the Government under this clause. Sub-clause (4) enables the Government to compel the defaulting Commissioners to raise the rates up to the maximum for the carrying out of any such essential scheme, and enables the Government to advance money from the public funds for the execution of such scheme. The appointment of a person to carry out a scheme, in connection with which the Commissioners have made default, is not a new power, but is contained in section 64 of the existing Act.

Clause 269 applies the provisions of clause 268 to joint schemes.

Clause 270 enables the municipalities to join in a scheme initiated under clause 268 or 269.

Clause 271 provides for the settlement of disputes.

Clause 272 enables the Local Government to take over any of the three essential services of a municipality in case of inefficient management. The necessity for this clause is set out in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. It deals with the taking over the management of a particular system and is more in the nature of a provision for an engineering control than for the control of a department.

Clause 273 introduces modern provisions in regard to the laying down of pipes, drains, wires or sewers through private land as in the Punjab Act.

Clauses 274 and 275 provide for due consideration being shown to the public in the laying of cables, wires, etc.

Clause 276 amplifies the provisions of the present section 290, which provisions at present relate only to water-supply. This principle of the existing section 290 is applied to water-supply, lighting and drainage.

Sub-clause (2) applies the principle of section 302 of the Act to water-supply, drainage and lighting connections.

Clause 277 is based on the Punjab Act and on the provisions contained in clause 228 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, the object being to secure that private connections within a reasonable distance of the municipal mains shall be connected therewith.

Clause 278 and the following clauses introduce modern provisions in regard to the measurement of gas, electricity and water by means of meters. The existing Act only provides specifically for meters in the case of water.

The use of meters for lighting is at present governed by the regulations, but it is desirable to provide for it in the body of the Statute.

Clause 280 gives the usual power of inspection for the reading of meters, and clause 281 introduces the same presumption as in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, as to the correctness of the reading.

In clause 282, however, it is provided that, if an incorrect meter has been found to be supplied and if the fact that it is incorrect is not due to its having been tampered with, the Commissioners shall provide a new meter at their own expense.

Clause 283 provides for the temporary replacement of a damaged meter which is under repair.

Clause 284 provides for the testing of meters, enabling owners and occupiers to challenge meter readings but at their own cost, unless the meter is found to be incorrect by more than two per cent.

Clause 285 provides against tampering with meters and sub-clause (2) introduces a necessary provision for evidence in proof of fraud.

Clause 286 provides against the injuring of meters and fittings.

Clause 287 corresponds with section 289 of the present Act.

Clause 288 corresponds with the existing section 291, but is more specifically drafted. It deals with the supply of water for purposes other than domestic purposes.

Clause 289 introduces more detailed provisions than are contained in the present section 295 for the calculation of the free allowance of water which is to be supplied for domestic purposes, and for the calculation of excess consumption and for the apportionment of the cost of such excess consumption between owners and occupiers of houses, with special provisions to cover cases where there is a transfer during a quarter.

Clause 290 corresponds with the present section 301 of the existing Act, but a sub-clause (4) has been added to enable the Corporation to see that the connection or fitting which has been approved by them shall be maintained in proper order after such approval.

Clause 291 gives the Commissioners the necessary power to supply water to persons outside the municipality or to other local bodies on terms approved by the Local Government and subject to sanction by the same. This clause amplifies the present section 300, and it imposes some control by the Local Government in this matter in the interests of the inhabitants of the municipality, to prevent undue preference being given to outsiders to the detriment of the persons living within the municipality.

Clause 292 collects various sections of the existing law relating to offences in regard to water-supply.

Clause 293 is on the same principle as section 305 of the existing Act, so far as the duty of the owner to keep the water connections of the house in repair is concerned, but it also provides for the occupier deducting any expenses incurred on repairs which should have been carried out by the owner, from the rent payable to him.

Clause 294 reproduces the existing section 304.

Clause 295 enables the Commissioners to take over and maintain communication-pipes and fittings of private water-works connected with the municipal water-supply. The provision is taken from Bombay and a similar power is contained in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

Clause 296 amplifies the provisions of the present section 297 as to the circumstances in which water may be cut off. Under the present Act water may be cut off if there is refusal to pay the water-rate. Following the decision of the Council with reference to the corresponding clause in the Calcutta Municipal Act, this power is abandoned, but there are other cases (which are stated in the present clause) under which it is necessary that water shall be cut off in the interests of the public.

The drafting is based on the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, and special exceptions are made in regard to water required for privies and urinals.

Clause 297 gives a general rule-making power in regard to water, gas and electricity to the Local Government in order to secure that some definite standard shall be maintained in these matters in the various municipalities. The matters dealt with in this clause are largely technical and liable to change as progress is made in the science of engineering, and it is desirable that it should be possible to adapt these regulations to changing circumstances without having recourse to fresh legislation.

Attention is invited to sub-clause (k) whereby the Local Government are empowered to exercise a proper control over the charges that may be exacted by the Commissioners for the supply of water, gas and electricity. This is a very necessary safeguard to the rate-payers.

Chapter IX.

This chapter supersedes the existing sections 236. et seq. The wording generally follows that of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, as being more up to date and comprehensive than that of the existing Act.

As in the case of the chapter relating to streets, only certain portions of this chapter will apply to the less advanced municipalities. Buildings in such municipalities will be regulated by model rules and by-laws. In the more advanced municipalities, however, it is necessary to conform to the requirements of modern times.

Clause 298 limits the application of this chapter to the more advanced municipalities, except in the case of certain elastic clauses.

Clause 299 applies to all municipalities and provides for the prohibition of building on insanitary and unsuitable sites, this being of first importance to the health of the town and of the inmates of the building constructed.

Clause 300 enables the Commissioners, in the event of the extent or position of the site of a building being disputed, to decide the matter.

Clause 301 provides for the means of access to a new building and the prevention of the erection of a building in such a manner as to deprive others of access to a public road. This point is dealt with partly in section 241 (c) of the existing Act.

Clause 302 provides for the exemption of certain small buildings from the general building regulations and also for the speedy erection of temporary buildings, such as infectious hospitals, etc.

Sub-clause (c) of that clause provides against the infringement of private rights, which can only be protected by action taken on behalf of the owner of a dominant tenement.

Clauses 303 to 305 deal with applications for sanction. These clauses must be read with the details contained in Schedule VI. Provision is made against an arbitrary refusal by the Commissioners to accord sanction and also against their delaying to pass orders. If they do not pass orders within a reasonable time as provided by clause 304, then under clause 305 the person who desires to erect the building may proceed with the work provided that he does not contravene this Act or any rules, etc., made thereunder.

Clause 306 introduces a provision for a completion certificate after a new building other than a hut has been erected to enable the Commissioners to inspect under clause 307 the work that has been done. The provision at present exists in the case of Darjeeling.

Under clause 307 the municipal authorities are empowered to inspect works in progress and after completion and to insist on their being carried out in conformity with the Act. This provision also was only applicable to Darjeeling under the existing law.

Clause 308 gives the grounds under which the erection of a new building may be refused and confines the Commissioners to certain clear and well defined reasons.

Clause 309 is taken from the United Provinces Act, and is designed to minimise the risk of fire in urban areas. In the case of inflammable roofs and walls, which have been erected before the Commissioners have prohibited the erection of such structures, compensation is to be paid to the owner if the structure is removed by order.

Clause 310 provides against fraud and misrepresentation in the making of applications under clause 303.

Clause 311 is based on section 239 of the existing Act, and it is made more specific as to the limit of time within which building operations are to commence after sanction has been given. This point is not provided for satisfactorily in the present law.

Clause 312 is based largely on the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, and provides for the control by the Commissioners of material alterations and additions to buildings. It explains definitely the kind of repairs, etc., that are to be considered to be material alterations and additions. A provision to regulate such repairs is on the face of it as necessary as a provision to regulate the erection of new buildings. More breaches of the building regulations occur in regard to such alterations and additions than when a building is being built owing to the difficulty of check.

Clause 313 enables the Local Government to alter the building regulations contained in Schedule VI where necessary. A similar provision in regard to other schedules is contained in clause 541.

Clause 314 provides for the adaptation of the provisions of this Act and of Schedule VI to less advanced municipalities by means of by-laws framed by the Commissioners either of their own motion or under orders of the Local Government.

Clause 315 deals in far greater detail than the present section 241 with the various matters which should be provided for by means of by-laws. These matters are technical and it is not necessary to refer to them in detail. The need of proper ventilation and sanitation is made more clear than in the existing Act.

Clauses 316 and 317 group together the provisions for the demolition or alteration of any unlawful work under the orders of a Magistrate on an application by the Commissioners after the owner has had an opportunity of complying with a requisition made by the Commissioners. A similar provision exists in section 244 of the present Act in regard to Darjeeling.

Clause 318 gives the owner a special opportunity of showing cause before a prosecution is instituted against him for failure to comply with a requisition made by the Commissioners in regard to matters referred to in clause 316 or clause 317.

Clause 319 provides for the discontinuance and if necessary the stopping of unlawful building. A somewhat similar provision is in force in Darjeeling. This is now made of general application.

Chapter X.

Bustees.

This chapter deals with bustees on a principle different altogether from the principles of the existing Act. Under the existing Act provision is made in sections 243 and 244 for the control of the erection of new lines of huts, and in sections 245 et seq. there is a general power to affect sanitary improvements in bustees. The provisions of this chapter are however based on those contained in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, the problems in this respect being similar both in Calcutta and in the mufassal and the Calcutta provisions being more detailed.

In Clause 320 power is taken to define the limits of a bustee, and it is provided that the provisions of this chapter shall not apply either to small groups of huts in an area of less than two bighas or to certain masonry buildings included in a bustee.

Clause 321 provides for a proper inquiry, whenever it is reported that a bustee is in an insanitary state, by a registered medical practitioner or a person holding the diploma of public health and an engineer. A proper lay-out is to be prepared by these persons. These persons will be an authority independent of the Commissioners, and they will devise a scheme for altering the bustee so as to make its condition sanitary. The Commissioners under clause 322 may take action on their report.

Clause 323 deals with expenses in regard to bustee improvement. These expenses will ordinarily fall on the owner of the bustee and the owners of huts, but in special cases the Commissioners may meet the whole or a portion of the charges which should be borne by the owners of huts and may advance from the municipal fund money to defray the charges which should have been borne by the owner of the bustee land itself. In the latter case they will have a lien on such land for the repayment of what they have lent.

Clause 325 deals in detail with the treatment of masonry buildings in a bustee. Generally speaking, such masonry buildings are not to be interfered with except by acquisition and on payment of full compensation.

Clause 326 deals with streets and passages in bustees. These streets and passages require special treatment owing to the way on which huts are taken up and replaced in other positions.

Clauses 327 and 328 provide for the common bathing arrangements and common privy accommodation in a bustee, and also for lighting, water-supply and other conveniences in a bustee.

Clause 329 gives power to the owner to remove huts and cause the bustee to cease to be treated as such. Necessary safeguards are however included as in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, to see that huts are not temporarily removed merely in order to gain time and then put them up again. Provision is also made in sub-clause (8) for compensation in cases of hardship, owing to bustee land, on which there are roads, ceasing to be included within the bustee.

Clause 330 provides for street alignments of huts in those bustees for which it is considered inexpedient to provide a regular standard plan and for the leaving of suitable open spaces. This is the milder form of procedure for the improvement of a bustee and under clause 331 adequate time is allowed for the hut-owners to set back their huts to the prescribed alignment at the time of repair or rebuilding of the same. Seven years is considered a suitable time for this purpose. Compensation may also be paid in cases where, after the expiry of five years, the Commissioners decide to compel the hut-owner who has not set back his hut to do so. It is not desirable that such compensation should be greater than the value of the hut less the value of the materials.

In clause 332 provision is made for the alignment of masonry buildings erected in a bustee, in respect of which a standard plan has been prepared or a street alignment prescribed.

Chapter XI.

Clause 333.—The drafting of section 199 of the existing Act has been adopted with slight formal alterations.

Clause 334 defines more specifically the powers of the Commissioners to make owners and persons having control over sources of water-supply which are used for drinking or culinary purposes liable to protect the same from pollution.

Clause 335 is largely a corollary of clause 334 and, in addition to the powers contained in the present section 199A of the Bengal Municipal Act, provides for the filling up of insanitary wells, etc.

Clause 336 provides a necessary power of inspection, and clauses 337, 338 and 339 introduce detailed provisions on the lines of the English Public Health Act for the proper analysis of drinking water and water used for culinary purposes, whether supplied by the municipality or taken from the sources under the control of private parties. Extensive powers of analysis of food exist already under the Bengal Food Adulteration Act, but that Act does not cover the analysis of water-supply. Provision is made against harassment of parties by frivolous requests for analysis.

Chapter XII.

Clause 341 is a new clause based on the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, to provide for the proper control of places where water accumulates to the detriment of the public health. This is a particularly important clause for the eradication of malaria and the promotion of public health. The provisions are not, however, made as stringent as is the case in Calcutta.

Clause 342 gives the Commissioners more detailed powers than they have at present in regard to the control over excavations.

Clause 343 provides for a further safeguard to members of the public in regard to excavations, being framed in order to prevent them from falling into the same. The provision exists in the present Act, but the limit of time within which the excavation is to be protected has been removed in the interests of safety.

Clause 344 is new and provides for the control of noxious plants and water-hyacinth.

Clause 345 gives a specific power to the Commissioners to inspect buildings on sanitary grounds, and clause 346 provides for the cleansing and white-washing of buildings on such grounds.

Clause 347 reproduces section 195 of the existing Act, but is worded somewhat more widely than that section. In particular, the danger of jungle in municipalities as a bar to ventilation is more clearly recognised than in the existing law, as are also the evils arising from thick vegetation even though such vegetation is not in itself noxious.

Clause 348 amplifies the provisions contained in the present section 210, the wording of which has been found to be defective, the drafting of the clause, therefore, being made more general.

Clause 349 introduces the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, in regard to obstructive buildings objectionable on sanitary grounds. This clause is of special importance in regard to any project for the comprehensive improvement of a municipal area.

Clauses 350 and 351 make more specific the powers of the Commissioners to cause the vacating of dwelling-houses which are unfit for human habitation. The provisions of these clauses are taken from the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, and provide for a more detailed procedure for putting buildings of this type into proper condition than exists in the present law.

Clause 352 provides against overcrowding, and is a necessary addition to the existing law, especially in industrial areas. It follows the law which obtains in Madras.

Clause 353 gives an emergency power to the Commissioners to take action themselves in regard to property which is in such a condition that it causes imminent danger to the public. This clause follows the United Provinces Act.

Chapter XIII.

Clause 354.—The list of offensive and dangerous trades, occupations and processes has been made more specific in the light of experience. The wording of sub-clause (x) has been made more general in view of the recent decision of the High Court that “kilns” do not include “clamps”. Necessary provisions in regard to petroleum have been inserted in sub-clause (4).

Clause 355.—The drafting of section 310 has been slightly altered, the word “nuisance” having a special technical significance in this Bill under the provisions of Chapter XXI.

Clause 356.—The drafting of this clause has been made somewhat wider than the present section 263, so that control over the keeping of horses, ponies, cattle, etc., in any part of a municipality may be exercised by the Commissioners.

Sub-clause (2) gives detailed powers to the Commissioners to prescribe that horses, ponies, cattle, etc., shall be kept in sanitary and well constructed stables or stalls.

Clause 357 is based on the present section 264, but it also enables the Commissioners to license places as public stables on such conditions as they may think to be proper.

Clause 358 should be read with sub-clause (b) of clause 359 in so far as it relates to the stalling of horses, camels, cattle, etc., and with sub-clause (c) of that clause in so far as it relates to the prevention of any public nuisance from the stalling and straying of pigs. Representations have been made from municipal authorities that increased powers in this last direction must be taken owing to the annoyance caused.

Chapter XIV.

Chapter XIV “Restraint of infection” is almost entirely new. The existing Act provides no scientific machinery for checking the spread of infectious or contagious diseases. The provisions of this chapter are taken from the Public Health Acts of various countries and from the Public Health sections adopted by provinces whose municipal legislation is more advanced than is the case in Bengal.

Clause 360 imposes a definite duty on the Commissioners to take action in the event of the outbreak of any dangerous disease and defines the duties which they are to carry out in this connection.

Clause 361 provides for the preliminary step of notifying the occurrence of any infectious case in a private house.

Clause 362 provides for the removal of patients to an isolation hospital, due provision being made for securing the privacy of women according to custom and for the presence of an attendant with female patients. It also provides for the maintenance of an adequate nursing staff to deal with infectious cases.

Clause 363 provides for the disinfection of premises where infectious cases have occurred, or which are kept in such a condition that they are likely to foster dangerous diseases. Provision is made that, where the occupier of the premises which are cleansed is indigent, the municipality may bear the cost of such disinfection. Provision is also made for the vacation by the inmates of premises which are being disinfected, temporary accommodation being provided by the authorities during the period of such vacation.

Clause 364 gives a necessary power to the Commissioners to destroy a hut or shed to prevent the spread of infection, suitable compensation being given to the owner thereof.

Clause 365 provides against the letting out of infected houses until the work of disinfection has been properly carried out.

Clause 366 provides for the supply of places and materials for disinfection, and for the disinfection of clothing or conveyances or any article which has been infected, and for the destruction of, and grant of compensation for, any article which is likely to retain infection or cannot be preserved.

Clause 367 is a corollary providing for the washing of conveyances, clothing, etc., exposed to infection.

Clause 368 renders penal the doing of certain acts by infected persons which are likely to cause risk of infection to others.

Clause 369 applies the same principle to the disposal of infected articles by private persons at the risk of their neighbours.

Clause 370 imposes certain elementary safeguards in regard to the segregation of the infected, and enables persons driving, or in charge of, a public conveyance which is used for the carrying of an infected person to a hospital, or for the carrying of a dead body, for disposal or of infected clothing, etc., for disinfection or destruction, to charge an adequate fare for the expense and trouble to which he will subsequently be put in getting his conveyance disinfected.

Clause 371 provides for the disinfection of public conveyances after these are exposed to contamination.

Clause 372 provides for the maintenance by the Commissioners of ambulances for the removal of infectious cases.

Clause 373 provides for the inspection of infected premises.

Clause 374 provides for the closing of a market with a view to prevent the spread of any dangerous disease, subject to an appeal by the occupier or farmer or any person interested to the Magistrate or the Commissioner of the Division.

Clause 375 makes a like provision in regard to the closing of a school owing to the appearance of a dangerous disease amongst the scholars or owing to the state of the school. This clause is based on the Scotch law.

Clause 376 gives detailed powers in regard to by-laws relating to the prevention or the spread of dangerous diseases, more particularly in regard to the sanitation of places where a number of persons are employed, and to the safeguarding of the public from infection from carcasses of animals. A special provision is taken to enable municipalities to combat malaria.

Clause 377 introduces a power to the Health Officer to see to vaccination within a municipality.

Chapter XV.

Chapter XV is also a new chapter, dealing with hospitals, dispensaries, child-welfare and school hygiene. The present power of the Commissioners to contribute to the maintenance of hospitals, dispensaries, etc., has been carried forward in the Bill to the chapter on Municipal property and finance [vide item (vi) of sub-clause (1) of clause 96].

Clause 378 gives detailed powers to the Commissioners to establish their own hospitals and dispensaries.

Clause 379 provides for the maintenance of midwives and health-visitors. In the case of midwives, it is made legal to impose a fee, but it is not intended that fees shall be imposed for the service of health-visitors whose duties will be advisory, though their qualifications will be prescribed. The municipality may themselves offer a salary to a health-visitor if they think fit to do so.

Clause 380 gives to the Local Government the power of making rules for child-welfare and for the proper care of maternity cases. It is necessary that municipalities should take steps to prevent to a greater extent, than is at present the case, the heavy infant mortality that takes place in urban areas in this province. Provision has been taken for the proper sanitary inspection of schools and colleges in the interests of the people.

Chapter XVI.

Clauses 381 and 382.—These clauses reproduce the provisions of the existing Part XIA of the present Act in regard to the extinction and prevention of fire.

Clause 383 introduces provisions for the safeguarding of urban areas by the power of inspection and seizure and confiscation of dangerous and inflammable materials improperly stored within a municipality.

Clause 384 also provides for the regulation of the stacking or collecting of hay, straw, wood, thatching grass, jute or other inflammable materials.

Clause 385 provides for the making of by-laws not only in regard to municipal fire-brigades but also in regard to any volunteer fire-brigades which the Commissioners may recognise.

Chapter XVII.

Markets and slaughter-houses.

Clause 386, which is based on the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, amplifies section 335 of the existing Act. Attention is invited to sub-clause (3) whereby the Commissioners may, in the interests of the public, cancel the license of any person who closes his shop to the inconvenience of the public. A similar power in regard to private licensed markets has been taken under sub-clause (2) of clause 389.

Clause 387 gives definite power to the Commissioners to close any municipal market.

Clause 388 is based on the Madras law, and gives power for the removal of unauthorised persons selling their wares in a municipal market.

Clause 389 deals with the regulation of, and grant of licenses for, private markets.

Clause 390 enables the Commissioners to apply to the Magistrate in order to close any unlicensed place which is used as a market.

Clause 391 brings into the municipal law the provisions formerly contained in the Bengal Municipal (Slaughter-houses and Meat-markets) Act, 1865, following the form adopted by the United Provinces in their legislation.

Clause 392 is also based on the provisions of the Bengal Municipal (Slaughter-houses and Meat-markets) Act, 1865.

Clause 393 brings together the various provisions in regard to the proper construction and care of private markets or private slaughter-houses, particularly in regard to the draining and cleansing of such places. The fixed period of 30 days before a penalty can be imposed is removed, the matter being dealt with on the general lines of failure to comply with a requisition.

Clause 394 provides for the construction of proper approaches and streets to or in private markets, and for the defining of the limits of such markets.

Clause 395 gives detailed powers for the ejection of persons who have been convicted of contravening any by-law made under section 396 from markets or slaughter-houses, and for the prevention of such persons carrying on their business there in future and for the removal by owners of private markets of tenants convicted of contravening such by-laws.

Clauses 396 and 397 correspond to sections 339, 341, 342 and 343 of the existing Act.

Clause 398 gives detailed powers of making by-laws in regard to markets and slaughter-houses, particularly in regard to the proper cleansing and sanitary condition of the same and the care of animals, and the prevention of cruelty, nuisances and obstruction.

Chapter XVIII.

Chapter XVIII is also new and provides for the regulation by the Commissioners of weights and measures to be in use in the municipality. This chapter is only to be in force in municipalities to which it has been specially extended. The provisions of this chapter are the result of consultation with various local bodies as to simple regulations which may be enforced in a mufassal municipality.

Clause 401.—The standard weights which are to be adopted when this chapter is enforced are the Government standard weights which are described in this clause, and under clause 400 power is taken for the destruction of false weights and measures.

Chapter XIX.

The provisions of Chapter XIX are to some extent supplementary to the provisions of the Bengal Food Adulteration Act, which has fairly recently been passed by the Council. They are mainly taken from the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923. The provisions of sections 249 to 257 of the existing Act have been found by the municipalities to be wholly inadequate for the purpose of preventing the sale of unwholesome food. The main principle of this chapter, however, remains as in the existing Act, and is that, although the executive of the municipality may take the initiative in the prevention of the sale of unsound or unwholesome food, final orders in the matter are to be passed by an independent magisterial authority.

Clause 402 provides for the licensing of persons who carry on the trade of butcher or who sell meat, game, poultry, fish, etc.

Clause 403 provides for the establishment of municipal bakeries and sweetmeat shops.

Clause 404 is based on the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, but is extended to the sale of confectionery, ice and aerated-waters. The licensing of dairymen, bakers, confectioners, sweetmeat makers and ice or aerated-water manufacturers is a most necessary addition to the law as a safeguard to the public health.

Clause 405 is based on the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, and prohibits the sale of diseased, unsound or unwholesome food or drugs.

Clause 406 introduces a salutary provision, taken from the Public Health Acts of Fiji and Trinidad, for the keeping of bread-stuffs, cake, pastry, sweetmeats and confectionery in properly covered utensils or receptacles when exposed for sale, as a protection against dirt, dust and flies.

Clauses 407 and 408 provide for the proper regulation of the compounding and sale of drugs recognised by the British Pharmacopœa, and for the proper qualification of compounders to compound such drugs.

Clause 409, as in the case of the existing law, exempts indigenous medicines from any such control, provided they are not sold in places where drugs recognised by the British Pharmacopœa are sold upon prescription. Some control over such drugs can, however, be exercised under the provisions of clause 405.

Clause 410.—The provisions of clause 410 are taken partly from the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, and the Punjab Law, and provide for the inspection of places where unlawful slaughter of animals or sale of flesh is suspected. They are not, however, so severe as those of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, or the Punjab Law, in that it is necessary for the searching officer to obtain a warrant before he can make an entry.

Clause 411 gives powers of inspection of food and drugs on the same lines as sections 251B and 253 of the existing Act. The provisions, however, are more detailed, and the burden of proof is thrown on the party charged where unsound articles of food and drugs are found in places where articles of food and drugs are ordinarily kept or exposed for sale.

Clause 412 provides for the seizure of utensils. The provisions of this clause in regard to tea are made stringent (vide the Explanation).

Clause 413 provides for the destruction of articles of a perishable nature if they are found to be diseased, unsound, unwholesome or unfit for human food.

Clause 414 introduces provisions in regard to unwholesome food or drugs on the same lines as those contained in clause 410 in regard to the sale of flesh.

Clause 415 provides for the production before the Magistrate of living things, articles of food, drugs, utensils or vessels which have been seized, but which have not been destroyed according to law, and for the decision of the Magistrate as to whether these things shall be destroyed or not, and also for compensation in the case of unjustified seizure.

Clause 416 vests in the Commissioners the property in any living thing, food or drug condemned under this chapter.

Clause 417 enables the municipalities to take measures to ensure purity of the milk-supply. It must be read with clauses 404 and 406 and also with item (xvi) of sub-clause (1) of clause 96 under which the Commissioners are entitled to maintain their own dairy-farms, grazing-grounds and milk-depôts for the benefit of the inhabitants. The provisions which are detailed are based on the Public Health Acts of Fiji and South Africa, special care being enjoined in regard to the receptacles in which milk is kept, and to ventilation and the proper care of cattle.

Chapter XX.

Clauses 418 to 423 reproduce the existing law in regard to burial or burning grounds with a few minor alterations and amplifications.

The provisions contained in existing section 256 as to taking over buildings attached to closed burning or burial grounds are omitted.

Clause 424, sub-clause (2), introduces an important provision in regard to the safeguarding of the public from infection and contagion from the bodies of persons who have died from infectious and contagious diseases and for the rapid disposal of such bodies.

No important changes have been introduced in clauses 425 to 427. They follow substantially the existing law.

Clause 428.—The appointment of a Registrar and sub-Registrars for the purpose of the correct compilation of vital statistics is explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

Clause 431 provides more fully for the procedure in regard to the registration of births and notices of deaths. The object of this clause is not only to ensure correct returns but also to enable the Public Health Department to put its machinery in motion where this is necessary.

Chapter XXI.

Chapter XXI deals with the more summary measures to be adopted in dealing with nuisances which are a cause of annoyance to the inhabitants of a municipality or the public in general or injurious or dangerous to health. It reproduces in clause 432 a statement of many of the conditions which are enumerated in earlier clauses in the Bill, and it provides a procedure which in most cases is alternative to the procedure laid down in the earlier chapters. The definition of "author of a nuisance" in this connection is important as it enables the municipality to proceed under this chapter against any person by whose act, default or sufferance the nuisance is caused.

Clause 433, sub-clause (1), imposes on the Commissioners the duty of inspecting the municipality from time to time to see that nuisances do not exist, and sub-clause (2) enables them to enter any premises for the purposes of such inspection whenever they have reasonable grounds to believe that a nuisance exists therein and to open the subsoil and test the drains in cases where this is necessary.

Clause 434 enables any person to give information to the Commissioners of the existence of a nuisance and lays on municipal officers and police officers the duty of doing so.

Clause 435 enables the Commissioners to serve a summary notice on the author of a nuisance or the owner or occupier of the dwelling or premises calling on him to take action for its removal. In the event of his failing to do so, action is to be taken under clause 436 through the Magistrate who may either require him to remove the nuisance, or order the Commissioners to remove it and to realise the costs from the author of the nuisance or the owner or occupier of the premises. Action under this clause may also be taken where the nuisance has been removed but is likely to recur.

Clause 437 provides for the recovery of costs from the author of the nuisance, where the owner or occupier of the premises is not known or cannot be found.

Clause 438 enables the Magistrate to award compensation to a person on whom a notice has been served for the removal of a nuisance or to any other person if in his opinion that person would have been entitled to compensation if the proceedings had been taken against him otherwise than under this chapter and that the case is a fit one for the grant of compensation.

Chapter XXII.

Clause 439.—The existing Act makes no proper provision for supervision by the Commissioners of education in municipalities. This clause, therefore, provides for the appointment of an Education Committee somewhat on the lines laid down in section 65B of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885. Power has also been taken under items (ix) and (x) of sub-clause (1) of clause 96 to enable municipalities to contribute towards the efficient management of schools within their jurisdiction and also to grant scholarships.

Clause 440 defines generally the powers of the municipalities in regard to schools maintained by them or to which they make grants-in-aid.

Clause 441 enables the Local Government to regulate the percentage of the income of the municipality which is to be applied to primary education in cases where a special education cess is not levied under the Bengal Primary Education Act of 1919. It will be noted that it is not proposed that that part of the income of the municipality, which is derived from the lighting, water and conservancy rates and is applicable only to those essential services, should be diverted to this purpose.

Clause 442 enables the Local Government to assist the Commissioners with funds for educational purposes and provides for the proper allocation of such funds when such grants are made by Government.

Clause 443 gives the Local Government a rule-making power with a view to the maintenance of standard methods of educational management in the various municipalities.

Clause 444 provides for the duties of the Board of Public Health in regard to matters of municipal administration affecting the public health.

Clause 445 introduces a necessary provision for the regulation of sarais, dharamsalas and lodging-houses. This should be read with the definition of "lodging-house" contained in item (30) of clause 3. The provisions of this clause cover generally the proper lodging of pilgrims and travellers of the poorer classes.

Clause 446 enables the Commissioners to deal with hackney-carriage drivers if they refuse to ply for hire and thereby deprive the public of the necessary means of conveyance for which licenses have been granted to the hackney-carriage drivers. The necessary power has also been taken to deal with the owners.

Clauses 447 and 448 amplify the present general provisions contained in section 223 of the existing Act. It has been found in practice that a survey of municipal land should include a proper survey of buildings also.

Detailed provisions are made for the entertainment of professional surveyors and also for the maintenance by the Commissioners of the survey record by means of by-laws under which changes in the map, caused by property-owners, are to be notified by them in order that the map may be corrected. Suitable boundary-marks shall also be set up to define the limits of holdings.

Clause 449 amplifies the provisions of the present section 213 relating to the destruction of stray dogs.

Clause 450 enables suspected dogs to be properly segregated so as to avoid destruction of animals which may be found not to have been infected.

Clause 451 merely reproduces section 214 of the existing Act.

Clause 452 reproduces section 359 of the existing Act.

Clause 453 applies the principle which is contained in section 278 of the present Act in regard to the licensing of premises for particular purposes to the cancellation of such licenses when the premises are used otherwise than for those purposes.

Chapter XXIII.

Clause 454.—The provisions relating to hill municipalities have been collected from the body of the Act and brought together in Chapter XXIII. The main portion of the Act will, of course, apply to hill municipalities with certain exceptions. The main exceptions are those enumerated in clause 454.

A necessary extension of the definition of “drain” is introduced in clause 455 when applying that definition to hill municipalities.

Clause 456 collects together the definitions applicable to hill municipalities which are at present scattered over section 6 of the existing Act.

Clauses 457 to 463 reproduce the provisions of sections 201A to 201G of the existing Act, and clauses 434 and 435 reproduce the provisions of the existing sections 207 and 207A.

Clause 466.—This clause should be read with section 201 of the existing Act and with clause 219 of the Bill. The latter clause will apply to public roads generally, including roads in hill municipalities.

Clauses 467 and 468 reproduce the provisions of sections 224B, 224C and 244Z of the existing Act.

Clauses 469 and 470 reproduce the provisions of sections 227 and 228 of the existing Act.

Clauses 471 and 472 reproduce the provisions of sections 210B and 210C of the existing Act.

Clauses 473 to 477 reproduce the provisions of sections 240A to 240E of the existing Act.

Clause 478 reproduces existing section 244V and clauses 479 to 483 the provisions of existing sections 351D to 351H.

Clause 481 is based on the existing section 350A, but it is grouped more homogeneously.

Sub-clause (a) regulates the actual control of the hillsides.

Sub-clause (b) corresponds to the first words of sub-clause (a) of section 350.

Sub-clauses (c), (d) and (e) introduce the traffic provisions necessary in a hill municipality.

Sub-clauses (f) and (g) are reproduced from section 350A of the existing Act.

Chapter XXIV.

Clause 485.—The penalty sections of the existing Act, which are scattered throughout the Act, have been grouped together on the same principle as in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923. Where, however, there is a power to impose imprisonment as well as fine, the point has been emphasised by the penalty being entered in a separate clause of the Bill (vide, for example, the clauses in regard to election offences).

Clause 486 deals with the penalties in regard to the erection of new buildings and additions and alterations to existing buildings. These matters cannot suitably be dealt with in a general penalty clause which merely enumerates the subject-matter.

Clause 487 appears as a separate clause in virtue of the sentence of imprisonment which a Magistrate is empowered to impose on persons falling within its scope.

Clause 488 gives the usual power in regard to the attachment of a penalty to a breach of by-laws.

Chapter XXV.

Clause 490 should be read with clause 492.

The existing section 351 deals with the procedure for publishing by-laws, etc. It is desirable to have a uniform system in regard to the publication of by-laws, orders and public notices, etc.

Clause 491.—The main provisions of the existing Act in regard to the making of rules and by-laws are brought up to date by recognising the practice of issuing model rules and by-laws and the fact that, where a standard form of rule or by-law is adopted, it is not necessary to go through a lengthy procedure. It also provides for the rescinding of model rules and by-laws by the Local Government.

Clause 493 provides for facsimile signatures being used in notices, etc., in order to save work to the municipal staff.

Clause 494 provides in detail for the persons who are empowered to issue notices, by-laws, summonses, etc.

Clauses 495 and 496 set out the procedure for the service of notices, by-laws, summonses, etc. This procedure is practically the same as in the existing Act, though the clauses have been re-arranged for the purpose of greater clearness.

Clauses 497 and 498 collect together the provisions in regard to the power of entry. The wording is based on the existing Madras Act and on the existing section 351C. Similarly powers have been taken in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

Clause 499 provides against the obstruction of the Commissioners or any of their officers and servants in carrying out their duties under this Act. It has been drafted so as also to cover the cases of officers who may be called upon to assist the Commissioners in effecting an entry.

Clause 500.—The existing provisions of section 175 are extended to requisitions made under any part of the Act, and such requisitions may be enforced against the owners and occupiers of lands and buildings and not only of lands which is the case under the present Act.

Clause 501 reproduces the provisions of section 176 of the existing Act. It is not, of course, applicable to proceedings for the removal of nuisances which are of an urgent nature. (In such cases the party has his opportunity of defending the case in the Magistrate's Court.)

Clauses 502 and 503 reproduce the provisions of sections 177 and 178 of the existing Act.

Clause 504 reproduces the provisions of section 179 of the existing Act with a small consequential amendment.

Clause 505 reproduces the provisions of section 180 of the existing Act with the addition of sub-clause (2) to make it clear that punishment for failure to obey a requisition does not close the matter. It might pay a defaulter to pay the penalty on each occasion rather than carry out a necessary work.

Clause 506 reproduces the provisions of section 181 of the existing Act with an amendment made consequentially to the enlargement of the scope of clause 500.

Clauses 507 and 508 reproduce the provisions of sections 182 and 183 of the existing Act with amendments on the same principle.

Clauses 509 and 510 reproduce the provisions of sections 360 and 361 of the present Act.

Clause 511 reproduces the provisions of section 212 of the present Act, except that it undergoes consequential enlargement on the same principle as clause 500.

Clause 512 reproduces the provisions of section 211 of the existing Act with a minor drafting amendment.

Clause 513 has been taken from the Bombay Act so as to avoid a lacuna in the existing law in regard to persons who damage municipal property. There is no corresponding section in the Bengal Act.

Clause 514 makes clear the position of agents and trustees in regard to property within a municipality of which they are agents or trustees. A similar provision has been inserted in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

Clause 515.—The principle of section 242A in regard to appeals in respect of buildings, etc., has been extended to appeals in regard to various other matters dealt with under the Bill. Where, however, the Commissioners under the Bill must only exercise at a meeting powers, which could formerly be exercised otherwise than at a meeting, it is not necessary to provide for an appeal.

Clause 516 follows section 352 of the existing Act, but also covers prosecutions for breaches of rules and by-laws.

Clause 517 reproduces the provisions of section 352 of the existing Act, except that it also covers prosecutions for breach of a rule.

Clause 518 reproduces the provisions of section 365 of the existing Act, with minor drafting amendments.

Clause 519 follows in the main the provisions of section 363 of the existing Act, but is enlarged on the same principles as have already been approved in the Village Self-Government Act (vide section 64 of that Act).

Clause 520 reproduces the provisions of sections 184 and 185 of the existing Act with a minor drafting modification.

Clause 521 reproduces the provisions of sections 316 and 358 of the existing Act, but it is made fuller, and the drafting of the United Provinces Act in this connection has been adopted.

Clause 522 is based on section 128 of the existing Act.

Clause 523 gives the Commissioners a discretion in deciding as to the persons who are bound to perform municipal duties, etc., or who have various rights in connection with municipal affairs. It is based on the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

Clause 524 makes clear the position of municipal officers, servants, contractors and agents as public servants. A similar provision exists in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

Clause 525 provides for the prohibition of obstruction to municipal contractors and is also based on the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

Clause 526 provides against the removal of boundary marks without the permission of the Commissioners.

Clause 528 gives the same power of delegation as exists in the present Act between the Local Government and the Commissioners of Divisions, except that the delegation is more general, only the constitutional provisions being excluded from the power of delegation.

Clause 529 is based on the existing section 64, but has been enlarged on the same principle as is adopted in the United Provinces Act, to enable the Commissioner, District Magistrate or Subdivisional Officer to call for reports and returns and copies of documents and to place before the Commissioners in writing his views on any matter concerning the municipality.

Clause 530 removes the lacuna in the existing Act in regard to the power of certain officers of Government to inspect municipal institutions, registers, accounts, etc.

Clause 531 enables the public health authorities to place their views on any matter of public health before the Commissioners, and the same power is granted to Inspectors of Schools in regard to educational matters in the municipality.

Clause 532 reproduces the provisions of section 63 of the existing Act.

Clause 533 reproduces the provisions of the first two paragraphs of the existing section 64. The third paragraph is dealt with under clause 535.

Clause 534.—This clause, as is explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, provides for the supersession of a particular department of a municipality, in connection with which there is gross mismanagement or persistent default or an abuse of power by the Commissioners. The provision is less drastic than the supersession of the whole municipality.

Clause 535 is on the lines of the third paragraph of the existing section 64.

Clause 536.—This clause is explained fully in the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

Clause 537 reproduces the provisions of section 65 of the existing Act.

Clause 538 reproduces the provisions of section 66 of the existing Act. This is the extreme case in which the Local Government is compelled to supersede a municipality.

Clause 539 enables the Local Government to withdraw sections that are extended by them to any municipality. It applies the general principles which are contained in the General Clauses Act.

Clause 540 reproduces the provisions of section 66A of the existing Act.

Employer's liability for compensation.

3. (1) If personal injury is caused to a workman by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, his employer shall be liable to pay compensation in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter;

Provided that the employer shall not be so liable—

(a) in respect of any injury which does not result in the total or partial disablement of the workman for a period exceeding ten days;

(b) in respect of any injury to a workman resulting from an accident which is directly attributable to—

(i) the workman having been at the time thereof under the influence of drink or drugs, or

(ii) the wilful disobedience of the workman to an order expressly given, or to a rule expressly framed, for the purpose of securing the safety of workmen, or

(iii) the wilful removal or disregard by the workman of any safety guard or other device which he knew to have been provided for the purpose of securing the safety of workmen; or

(c) except in the case of death or permanent total disablement, in respect of any workman employed in the construction, repair or demolition of a building or bridge.

(2) If a workman employed in any employment involving the handling of wool, hair, bristles, hides or skins contracts the disease of anthrax, or if a workman whilst in the service of an employer in whose service he has been employed for a continuous period of not less than six months in any employment specified in Schedule III, contracts any disease specified therein as an occupational disease peculiar to that employment, the contracting of the disease shall be deemed to be an injury by accident within the meaning of this section and, unless the employer proves the contrary, the accident shall be deemed to have arisen out of and in the course of the employment.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this sub-section a period of service shall be deemed to be continuous which has not included a period of service under any other employer.

(3) The Governor General in Council, after giving, by notification in the Gazette of India, not less than three months' notice of his intention so to do, may, by a like notification, add any description of employment to the employments specified in Schedule III, and shall specify in the case of the employments so added the diseases which shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to be occupational diseases peculiar to those employments respectively, and the provisions of sub-section (2) shall thereupon apply as if such diseases had been declared by this Act to be occupational diseases peculiar to those employments.

(4) Save as provided by sub-sections (2) and (3), no compensation shall be payable to a workman in respect of any disease unless the disease is solely and directly attributable to a specific injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment.

(5) Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to confer any right to compensation on a workman in respect of any injury if he has instituted in a Civil Court a suit for damages in respect of the injury against the employer or any other person ; and no suit for damages shall be maintainable by a workman in any Court of law in respect of any injury—

(a) if he has instituted a claim to compensation in respect of the injury before a Commissioner ; or

(b) if an agreement has been come to between the workman and his employer providing for the payment of compensation in respect of the injury in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Amount of compensation.

4. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the amount of compensation shall be as follows, namely :—

A. Where death results from the injury—

(i) in the case of an adult, a sum equal to thirty months' wages or two thousand five hundred rupees, whichever is less, and

(ii) in the case of a minor, two hundred rupees ;

B. Where permanent total disablement results from the injury—

(i) in the case of an adult, a sum equal to forty-two months' wages or three thousand five hundred rupees, whichever is less ; and

(ii) in the case of a minor, a sum equal to eighty-four months' wages or three thousand five hundred rupees, whichever is less ;

C. Where permanent partial disablement results from the injury—

(i) in the case of an injury specified in Schedule I such percentage of the compensation which would have been payable in the case of permanent total disablement as is specified therein as being the percentage of the loss of earning capacity caused by that injury, and

(ii) in the case of an injury not specified in Schedule I, such percentage of the compensation payable in the case of permanent total disablement as is proportionate to the loss of earning capacity permanently caused by the injury ;

Explanation.—Where more injuries than one are caused by the same accident, the amount of compensation payable under this head shall be aggregated but not so in any case as to exceed the amount which would have been payable if permanent total disablement had resulted from the injuries.

D. Where temporary disablement, whether total or partial, results from the injury, a half-monthly payment payable on the sixteenth day after the expiry of a waiting period of ten days from the date of the disablement, and thereafter half-monthly during the disablement or during a period of five years, whichever period is shorter, —

(i) in the case of an adult, of fifteen rupees or a sum equal to one-fourth of his monthly wages, whichever is less, and

(ii) in the case of a minor, of a sum equal to one-third or, after he has attained the age of fifteen years, to one-half of his monthly wages, but not exceeding in any case fifteen rupees ;

Provided that there shall be deducted from any lump sum or half-monthly payments to which the workman is entitled the amount of any payment or allowance which the workman has received from the employer by way of compensation during the period of disablement prior to the receipt of such lump sum or of the first half-monthly payment, as the case may be, and no half-monthly payment shall in any case exceed the amount, if any, by which half the amount of the monthly wages of the workman before the accident exceeds half the amount of such wages which he is earning after the accident.

(2) On the ceasing of the disablement before the date on which any half-monthly payment falls due, there shall be payable in respect of that half-month a sum proportionate to the duration of the disablement in that half-month.

Method of calculating wages.

5. For the purposes of section 4 the monthly wages of a workman shall be calculated as follows, namely :—

- (a) Where the workman has, during a continuous period of not less than twelve months immediately preceding the accident, been in service of the employer who is liable to pay compensation, the monthly wages of the workman shall be one-twelfth of the total wages which have fallen due for payment to him by the employer in the last twelve months of that period ;
- (b) in other cases, the monthly wages shall be thirty times the total wages earned in respect of the last continuous period of service immediately preceding the accident from the employer who is liable to pay compensation, divided by the number of days comprising such period :

Provided that the sum arrived at by a calculation under clause (a) or clause (b) shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, to the amount specified in the second column of Schedule IV against the head specified in the first column thereof within the limits of which such sum is included.

Explanation.—A period of service shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be continuous which has not been interrupted by a period of absence from work exceeding fourteen days.

Review.

6. (1) Any half-monthly payment payable under this Act, either under an agreement between the parties or under the order of a Commissioner, may be reviewed by the Commissioner on the application either of the employer or of the workman accompanied by the certificate of a qualified medical practitioner that there has been a change in the condition of the workman or, subject to rules made under this Act, on application made without such certificate.

(2) Any half-monthly payment may, on review under this section, subject to the provisions of this Act, be continued, increased, decreased or ended, or, if the accident is found to have resulted in permanent disablement, be converted to the lump sum to which the workman is entitled less any amount which he has already received by way of half-monthly payments.

Commutation of half-monthly payments.

7. Any right to receive half-monthly payments may, by agreement between the parties or, if the parties cannot agree and the payments have been continued for not less than six months, on the application of either party to the Commissioner, be redeemed by the payment of a lump sum of such amount as may be agreed to by the parties or determined by the Commissioner, as the case may be.

Distribution of compensation.

8. (1) Compensation payable in respect of a workman whose injury has resulted in death shall be deposited with the Commissioner, and any sum so deposited shall be apportioned among the dependants of the deceased workman or any of them in such proportion as the Commissioner thinks fit, or may, in the discretion of the Commissioner, be allotted to any one such dependant and the sum so allotted to any dependant shall be paid to him or, if he is a person under any legal disability, be invested, applied or otherwise dealt with for his benefit during such disability in such manner as the Commissioner thinks fit.

(2) Any other compensation payable under this Act may be deposited with the Commissioner and, when so deposited, shall be paid by the Commissioner to the person entitled thereto.

(3) The receipt of the Commissioner shall be a sufficient discharge in respect of any amount deposited with him under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2).

(4) On the deposit of any money under sub-section (1), the Commissioner may deduct therefrom the actual cost of the workman's funeral expenses, to an amount not exceeding fifty rupees, and pay the same to the person by whom such expenses were incurred, and shall, if he thinks necessary, cause notice to be published or to be served on each dependant in such manner as he thinks fit, calling upon the dependants to appear before him on such date as he may fix for determining the distribution of the compensation. If the Commissioner is satisfied, after any inquiry which he may deem necessary, that no dependant exists, he shall repay the balance of the money to the employer by whom it was paid. The Commissioner shall, on application by the employer, furnish a statement showing in detail all disbursements made.

(5) Where a half-monthly payment is payable under this Act to a person under any legal disability, the Commissioner may, of his own motion or on application made to him in this behalf, order that the half-monthly payment be paid during the disability to any dependant of the workman or to any other person whom he thinks best fitted to provide for the welfare of the workman.

(6) Where, on application made to him in this behalf or otherwise, the Commissioner is satisfied that, on account of neglect of children on the part of a parent or on account of the variation of the circumstances of any dependant or for any other sufficient cause, an order of the Commissioner as to the distribution of any sum paid as compensation or as to the manner in which any sum payable to any such dependant is to be invested, applied or otherwise dealt with, ought to be varied, the Commissioner may make such orders for the variation of the former order as he thinks just in the circumstances of the case :

Provided that no such order prejudicial to any person shall be made unless such person has been given an opportunity of showing cause why the order should not be made, or shall be made in any case in which it would involve the repayment by a dependant of any sum already paid to him.

Compensation
not to be assigned, attached or charged.

9. Save as provided by this Act, no lump sum or half-monthly payment payable under this Act shall in any way be capable of being assigned or charged or be liable to attachment or pass to any person other than the workman by operation of law, nor shall any claim be set off against the same.

Notice
claim. and

Provided that, where the accident is the contracting of a disease in respect of which the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 3 are applicable, the accident shall be deemed to have occurred on the first of the days during which the workman was continuously absent from work in consequence of the disablement caused by the disease :

Provided, further, that the Commissioner may admit and decide any claim to compensation in any case notwithstanding that the notice has not been given, or the claim has not been instituted, in any case as provided in this sub-section, if he is satisfied that the failure to give the notice or institute the claim, as the case may be, was due to sufficient cause.

(2) Every such notice shall give the name and address of the person injured and shall state in ordinary language the cause of the injury and the date on which the accident happened, and shall be served on the employer or upon any one or several employers, or upon any person directly responsible to the employer for the management of any branch of the trade or business in which the injured workman was employed.

(3) The notice may be served by delivering the same at, or sending it by registered post addressed to, the residence or any office or place of business of the person on whom it is to be served.

Medical
amination.

11. (1) Where a workman has given notice of an accident, he shall, if the employer, before the expiry of three days from the time at which service of the notice has been effected, offers to have him examined free of charge by a qualified medical practitioner, submit himself for such examination, and any workman who is in receipt of a half-monthly payment under this Act shall, if so required, submit himself for such examination from time to time:

Provided that a workman shall not be required to submit himself for examination by a medical practitioner otherwise than in accordance with rules made under this Act, or at more frequent intervals than may be prescribed.

(2) If a workman, on being required to do so by the employer under sub-section (1) or by the Commissioner at any time, refuses to submit himself for examination by a qualified medical practitioner or in any way obstructs the same, his right to compensation shall be suspended during the continuance of such refusal, or obstruction unless, in the case of refusal, he was prevented by any sufficient cause from so submitting himself.

(3) If a workman, before the expiry of the period within which he is liable under sub-section (1) to be required to submit himself for medical examination, voluntarily leaves without having been so examined the vicinity of the place in which he was employed, his right to compensation shall be suspended until he returns and offers himself for such examination.

(4) Where a workman, whose right to compensation has been suspended under sub-section (2) or sub-section (3), dies without having submitted himself for medical examination as required by either of those sub-sections, the Commissioner may, if he thinks fit, direct the payment of compensation to the dependants of the deceased workman.

(5) Where under sub-section (2) or sub-section (3) a right to compensation is suspended, no compensation shall be payable in respect of the period of suspension, and if the period of suspension commences before the expiry of the waiting period referred to in clause (D) of sub-section (1) of section 4, the waiting period shall be increased by the period during which the suspension continues.

(6) Where an injured workman has refused to be attended by a qualified medical practitioner whose services have been offered to him by the employer free of charge or having accepted such offer has deliberately disregarded the instructions of such medical practitioner, then, if it is thereafter proved that the workman has not been regularly attended by a qualified medical practitioner and that such refusal, failure or disregard was unreasonable in the circumstances of the case and that injury has been aggravated thereby, the injury and resulting disablement shall be deemed to be of the same nature and duration as they might reasonably have been expected to be if the workman had been regularly attended by a qualified medical practitioner, and compensation, if any, shall be payable accordingly.

Contracting.

12. (1) Where any person (hereinafter in this section referred to as the principal) in the course of or for the purposes of his trade or business contracts with any other person (hereinafter in this section referred to as the contractor) for the execution by or under the contractor of the whole or any part of any work which is ordinarily part of the trade or business of the principal, the principal shall be liable to pay to any workman employed in the execution of the work any compensation which he would have been liable to pay if that workman had been immediately employed by him ; and where compensation is claimed from the principal, this Act shall apply as if references to the principal were substituted for references to the employer except that the amount of compensation shall be calculated with reference to the wages of the workman under the employer by whom he is immediately employed.

(2) Where the principal is liable to pay compensation under this section, he shall be entitled to be indemnified by the contractor, and all questions as to the right to and the amount of any such indemnity shall, in default of agreement, be settled by the Commissioner.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing a workman from recovering compensation from the contractor instead of the principal.

(4) This section shall not apply in any case where the accident occurred elsewhere than on, in or about the premises on which the principal has undertaken or usually undertakes, as the case may be, to execute the work or which are otherwise under his control or management.

stranger.

13. Where a workman has recovered compensation in respect of any injury caused under circumstances creating a legal liability of some person other than the person by whom the compensation was paid to pay damages in respect thereof, the person by whom the compensation was paid and any person who has been called on to pay an indemnity under section 12 shall be entitled to be indemnified by the person so liable to pay damages as aforesaid.

employer.

14. (1) Where any employer has entered into a contract with any insurers in respect of any liability under this Act to any workman, then in the event of the employer becoming insolvent or making a composition or scheme of arrangement with his creditors or, if the employer is a company, in the event of the company having commenced to be wound up, the rights of the employer against the insurers as respects that liability shall, notwithstanding anything in any law for the time being in force relating to insolvency or the winding up of companies, be transferred to and vest in the workman and upon any such transfer the insurers shall have the same rights and remedies and be subject to the same liabilities as if they were the employer, so, however that the insurers shall not be under any greater liability to the workman than they would have been under to the employer.

(2) If the liability of the insurers to the workman is less than the liability of the employer to the workman, the workman may prove for the balance in the insolvency proceedings or liquidation.

(3) Where in any case such as is referred to in sub-section (1) the contract of the employer with the insurers is void or voidable by reason of non-compliance on the part of the employer with any terms or conditions of the contract (other than a stipulation for the payment of premia), the provisions of that sub-section shall apply as if the contract were not void or voidable, and the insurers shall be entitled to prove in the insolvency proceedings or liquidation for the amount paid to the workman ;

Provided that the provisions of this sub-section shall not apply in any case in which the workman fails to give notice to the insurers of the happening of the accident and of any resulting disablement as soon as practicable after he becomes aware of the institution of the insolvency or liquidation proceedings.

(4) There shall be deemed to be included among the debts which under section 49 of the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act, 1909, or under section 61 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, or under section 230 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, are in the distribution of the property of an insolvent or in the distribution of the assets of a company being wound up to be paid in priority to all other debts, the amount due in respect of any compensation the liability whereof accrued before the date of the order of adjudication of the insolvent or the date of the commencement of the winding up, as the case may be, and those Acts shall have effect accordingly.

III of 1909.

V of 1920
VII of 1913.

(5) Where the compensation is a half-monthly payment, the amount due in respect thereof shall, for the purposes of this section, be taken to be the amount of the lump sum for which the half-monthly payment could, if redeemable, be redeemed if application were made for that purpose under section 7, and a certificate of the Commissioner as to the amount of such sum shall be conclusive proof thereof.

(6) The provisions of sub-section (4) shall apply in the case of any amount for which an insurer is entitled to prove under sub-section (3), but otherwise those provisions shall not apply where the insolvent or the company being wound up has entered into such a contract with insurers as is referred to in sub-section (1).

(7) This section shall not apply where a company is wound up voluntarily merely for the purposes of reconstruction or of amalgamation with another company.

Special provisions relating to masters and sea-

15. This Act shall apply in the case of workmen who are masters of registered ships or seamen subject to the following modifications, namely:—

(1) The notice of the accident and the claim for compensation may, except where the person injured is the master of the ship, be served on the master of the ship as if he were the employer, but where the accident happened and the disablement commenced on board the ship, it shall not be necessary for any seaman to give any notice of the accident.

(2) In the case of the death of a master or seaman, the claim for compensation shall be made within six months after the news of the death has been received by the claimant or, where the ship has been or is deemed to have been lost with all hands, within eighteen months of the date on which the ship was, or is deemed to have been, so lost.

(3) Where an injured master or seaman is discharged or left behind in any part of His Majesty's dominions or in a foreign country, any depositions taken by any Judge or Magistrate in that part or by any Consular Officer in the foreign country and transmitted by the person by whom they are taken to the Governor General in Council or any Local Government shall, in any proceedings for enforcing the claim, be admissible in evidence—

(a) if the deposition is authenticated by the signature of the Judge, Magistrate or Consular Officer before whom it is made;

(b) if the defendant or the person accused as the case may be, had an opportunity by himself or his agent to cross-examine the witness; and

(c) if the deposition was made in the course of a criminal proceeding, on proof that the deposition was made in the presence of the person accused;

and it shall not be necessary in any case to prove the signature or official character of the person appearing to have signed any such deposition and a certificate by such person that the defendant or the person accused had an opportunity of cross-examining the witness and that the deposition if made in a criminal proceeding was made in the presence of the person accused shall, unless the contrary is proved, be sufficient evidence that he had that opportunity and that it was so made.

(4) In the case of the death of a master or seaman leaving no dependants, the Commissioner shall, if the owner of the ship is under any law in force for the time being in British India relating to merchant shipping liable to pay the expenses of burial of the master or seaman, return to the employer the full amount of the compensation deposited under sub-section (1) of section 8 without making the deduction referred to in sub-section (4) of that section.

(5) No monthly payment shall be payable in respect of the period during which the owner of the ship is, under any law in force for the time being in British India relating to merchant shipping, liable to defray the expenses of maintenance of the injured master or seaman.

Returns as to compensation.

16. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct that every person employing workmen, or that any specified class of such persons, shall send at such time and in such form and to such authority, as may be specified in the notification, a correct return specifying the number of injuries in respect of which compensation has been paid by the employer during the previous year and the amount of such compensation, together with such other particulars as to the compensation as the Governor General in Council may direct.

Contracting out.

17. Any contract or agreement whether made before or after the commencement of this Act, whereby a workman relinquishes any right of compensation from the employer for personal injury arising out of or in the course of the employment, shall be null and void in so far as it purports to remove or reduce the liability of any person to pay compensation under this Act.

Proof of age.

18. Where any question arises as to the age of a person injured by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment in a factory, a certificate granted in respect of such person under section 7 or section 8 of the Indian Factories Act, 1911, before the occurrence of the injury shall be conclusive proof of the age of such person.

Provided that where the workman is the master of a registered ship or a seaman, any such matter may be done by or before the Commissioner for the local area in which the owner or agent of the ship resides or carries on business.

(2) If a Commissioner is satisfied by any party to any proceedings under this Act pending before him that such matter can be more conveniently dealt with by any other Commissioner, whether in the same province or not, he may, subject to rules made under this Act, order such matter to be transferred to such other Commissioner either for report or for disposal, and, if he does so, shall forthwith transmit to such other Commissioner all documents relevant for the decision of such matter and where the matter is transferred for disposal, shall also transmit in the prescribed manner any money remaining in his hands or invested by him for the benefit of any party to the proceedings:

Provided that no matter other than a matter relating to the actual payment to a workman or the distribution among dependants of a lump sum shall be transferred for disposal under this sub-section to a Commissioner in the same province save with the previous sanction of the Local Government or to a Commissioner in another province save with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, unless all the parties to the proceedings agree to the transfer.

(3) The Commissioner to whom any matter is so transferred shall, subject to rules made under this Act, inquire therein and, if the matter was transferred for report, return his report thereon or, if the matter was transferred for disposal, continue the proceedings as if they had originally commenced before him.

(4) On receipt of a report from a Commissioner to whom any matter has been transferred for report under sub-section (2), the Commissioner by whom it was referred shall decide the matter referred in conformity with such report.

Form of application.

22. (1) No application for the settlement of any matter by a Commissioner shall be made unless and until some question has arisen between the parties in connection therewith which they have been unable to settle by agreement.

(2) Where any such question has arisen, the application may be made in such form and shall be accompanied by such fee, if any, as may be prescribed, and shall contain, in addition to any particulars which may be prescribed, the following particulars, namely :—

- (a) a concise statement of the circumstances in which the application is made and the relief or order which the applicant claims ;

- (d) a concise statement of the matters on which agreement has and on those on which agreement has not been come to.

(3) If the applicant is illiterate or for any other reason is unable to furnish the required information in writing, the application shall, if the applicant so desires, be prepared under the direction of the Commissioner.

Powers and procedure of Commissioners.

23. The Commissioner shall have all the powers of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, for the purpose of taking evidence on oath (which such Commissioner is hereby empowered to impose) and of enforcing the attendance of witnesses and compelling the production of documents and material objects. V of 1908

Appearance of parties.

24. Any appearance, application or act required to be made or done by any person before or to a Commissioner (other than an appearance of a party which is required for the purpose of his examination as a witness) may be made or done on behalf of such person by a legal practitioner or other person authorised in writing by such person.

Method of recording evidence.

25. The Commissioner shall make a brief memorandum of the substance of the evidence of every witness as the examination of the witness proceeds, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Commissioner with his own hand and shall form part of the record :

Provided that, if the Commissioner is prevented from making such memorandum, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so and shall cause such memorandum to be made in writing from his dictation and shall sign the same, and such memorandum shall form part of the record :

Provided, further, that the evidence of any medical witness shall be taken down as nearly as may be word for word.

Provided that—

- (a) no such memorandum shall be recorded before seven days after communication by the Commissioner of notice to the parties concerned ;
- (b) where a workman seeks to record a memorandum of agreement between his employer and himself for the payment of compensation and the employer proves that the workman has, in fact, returned to work and is earning the same wages as he did before the accident and objects to the recording of such memorandum, the memorandum shall only be recorded, if at all, on such terms as the Commissioner thinks just in the circumstances ;
- (c) the Commissioner may at any time rectify the register ;
- (d) where it appears to the Commissioner that an agreement as to the payment of a lump sum whether by way of redemption of a half-monthly payment or otherwise, or an agreement as to the amount of compensation payable to a person under any legal disability or to any dependant, ought not to be registered by reason of the inadequacy of the sum or amount, or by reason of the agreement having been obtained by fraud or undue influence or other improper means, he may refuse to record the memorandum of the agreement or may make such order, including an order as to any sum already paid under the agreement, as he thinks just in the circumstances.

(2) An agreement for the payment of compensation which has been registered under sub-section (1) shall be enforceable under this Act notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, or in any other law for the time being in force.

IX of 1872.

Effect of failure to register agreement.

29. Where a memorandum of any agreement, the registration of which is required by section 28, is not sent to the Commissioner as required by that section, the employer shall be liable to pay the full amount of compensation which he is liable to pay under the provisions of this Act, and notwithstanding anything contained in the proviso to sub-section (1) of section 4, shall not, unless the Commissioner otherwise directs, be entitled to deduct more than half of any amount paid to the workman by way of compensation whether under the agreement or otherwise.

Appeals.

30. (1) An appeal shall lie to the High Court from the following orders of a Commissioner, namely :—

- (e) an order refusing to register a memorandum of agreement or registering the same or providing for the registration of the same subject to conditions :

Provided that no appeal shall lie against any order unless a substantial question of law is involved in the appeal and, in the case of an order other than an order such as is referred to in clause (b), unless the amount in dispute in the appeal is not less than three hundred rupees :

Provided, further, that no appeal shall lie in any case in which the parties have agreed to abide by the decision of the Commissioner, or in which the order of the Commissioner gives effect to an agreement come to by the parties ;

(2) the period of limitation for an appeal under this section shall be sixty days ;

(3) the provisions of section 5 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, shall be applicable to appeals under this section.

IX of 1908.

For the purposes of the present Treaty, the following expressions are to be understood in the sense defined in this Part.

Capital Ship.

A capital ship, in the case of ships hereafter built, is defined as a vessel of war, not an aircraft carrier, whose displacement exceeds 10,000 tons (10,160 metric tons) standard displacement, or which carries a gun with a calibre exceeding 8 inches (203 millimetres).

Aircraft Carrier.

An aircraft carrier is defined as a vessel of war with a displacement in excess of 10,000 tons (10,160 metric tons) standard displacement designed for the specific and exclusive purpose of carrying aircraft. It must be so constructed that aircraft can be launched therefrom and landed thereon, and not designed and constructed for carrying a more powerful armament than that allowed to it under Article IX or Article X, as the case may be.

Standard Displacement.

The standard displacement of a ship is the displacement of the ship complete, fully manned, engined, and equipped ready for sea, including all armament and ammunition, equipment, outfit, provisions and fresh water for crew, miscellaneous stores and implements of every description that are intended to be carried in war, but without fuel or reserve feed water on board.

The word "ton" in the present Treaty, except in the expression "metric tons," shall be understood to mean the ton of 2,240 pounds (1,016 kilo).

Vessels now completed shall retain their present ratings of displacement tonnage in accordance with their national system of measurement. However, a Power expressing displacement in metric tons shall be considered for the application of the present Treaty as owning only the equivalent displacement in tons of 2,240 pounds.

A vessel completed hereafter shall be rated at its displacement tonnage when in the standard condition defined herein.

4. In sub-section (1) of section 21 of the said Act, after the word “ authorised ” wherever it occurs, the words “ in writing ” shall be inserted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of the proposed amendment is to decrease litigation, perjury, forgery and fraud. At present many facts are required to be proved by oral evidence which the Courts may or may not believe and the result is always uncertain.

Under the proposed amendment, a clear and unconditional acknowledgment duly signed and dated by the person liable or by his agent duly authorized in writing will be required to extend time. Debtors should not be taken by surprise by an ambiguous or undated writing which might be used to extend the period of limitation.

In section 20, there is always a dispute whether the payment was made on account of interest as such. Under the amended section, part payment of principal and payment of interest have been placed on equal footing. Similar amendment has been made in section 21. Authority of an agent to extend time under any of the sections referred to in this Bill must always be in writing and not oral.

I hope the proposed amendments, if passed into law, will considerably reduce litigation and the multiplicity of witnesses will be avoided.

(b) in Division E, in the first column, for the words "of sea-insurance or a policy of fire-insurance" the words "of the nature specified in Division A or Division B of this article" shall be substituted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Non-judicial stamps, although transferred to the provinces as a source of revenue, are subject to legislation by the Indian Legislature under Item 20 in Part II of Schedule I of the Devolution Rules.

2. When the Government of Bengal last year proposed to raise the rates of stamp duty on those instruments, it was decided to reserve the following for all-India legislation since uniformity of duty in these particular cases was essential :—

No. in Schedule I to the Indian Act.				Description.
1	Acknowledgment.
13	Bill of Exchange.
19	Share Certificate.
21	Cheque.
28	Delivery Order in respect of goods.
36	Letter of Allotment of shares.
37	Letter of Credit.
47	Policy of Insurance.
49	Promissory Note.
52	Proxy.
53	Receipt.
60	Shipping Order.

In February, 1922, Local Governments were asked their views whether any, and if so, which, of the instruments referred to above could bear an enhancement of the existing rates of duty and to what extent. After considering their replies, it has been decided that the duty on certain of these instruments can be raised.

3. The Government of India have also decided to take this opportunity of amending Article 47 of Schedule I of the Stamp Act so as to bring under clause B of the Article certain classes of insurance which have hitherto, for the purposes of stamp duty, been taken under clause D. This amendment has been supported by all Local Governments.

4. The object of the present Bill is to give effect to these proposals.

PART VI.

Bills introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly, and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 24th February, 1923 :—

No. 10 OF 1923.

A Bill to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 ; It is hereby enacted as follows :— XI of 1923.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1923.

Amendment of section 7, Act XI of 1922.

2. To sub-section (1) of section 7 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), the following explanation shall be added, namely :— XI of 1922.

“ Explanation.—The right of a person to occupy free of rent as a place of residence any premises provided by his employer is a perquisite for the purposes of this sub-section.”

Amendment of section 68, Act XI of 1922.

3. (1) In section 68 of the said Act, in the second proviso, after the words “under that Act” the words “or under the Super-tax Act, 1920” shall be inserted and for the words and figures “section 19 of the said Act” the words “that section” shall be substituted.

(2) The amendments made in the said Act by sub-section (1) shall have effect as if they had been made on the 1st day of April, 1922.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to correct the drafting of the Income-tax Act of 1922 in two sections, in which it has been found that the wording of the Act as passed did not give correct effect to the intentions of the Legislature.

2. It was intended when the Act was framed that the perquisite enjoyed by a person in the shape of a rent-free residence should be assessed to income-tax. It has, however, been found that as section 7 (1) of the Act at present stands, a rent-free residence still cannot be taxed. Clause 2 of this Bill gives effect to the intentions of the Legislature.

3. As proviso (2) to section 68 of the Act of 1922 at present stands, it has kept alive for 1922-23 only the adjustments of the assessments of income-tax made in 1921-22, but the intention when the Act of 1922 was framed was to continue the "adjustment system" mentioned in section 19 of the Income-tax Act, 1918 (VII of 1918), both as regards income-tax and super-tax. Clause 3 of the Bill gives effect to that intention.

Clauses 4 and 6 provide for the continuance of the rates of postage, income-tax and super-tax prescribed by the Indian Finance Act (XII of 1922) while clause 5 provides for the credit to revenue, for a further period of one year, i.e., till the 31st March 1924, of interest on securities forming part of the Paper Currency Reserve.

5. The changes mentioned in paragraphs 2 and 3 are intended to come into effect from the 1st March 1923; the rest from April 1st. The Bill provides that the provisions other than those relating to the tariff shall remain in force till the 31st March 1924.

Extension of Act XX of 1856 to certain cantonments.

61. (1) The Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, extend the provisions of the Bengal Chaukidari Act, 1856, to any cantonment which is not included in a municipality and which is situated in any part of British India in which that Act is in force, and the Executive Officer of any cantonment to which that Act is so extended may exercise all the powers of the Magistrate thereunder subject only to the control of the District Magistrate and the Local Government.

XX of 1856.

(2) The Local Government may order that a cantonment to which the provisions of the Bengal Chaukidari Act, 1856, have been extended shall be divided into any number of cantonment divisions and may determine the nature of the tax to be levied in each such division according to section 10 of that Act.

XX of 1856.

(3) While a tax assessed according to the circumstances, and the property to be protected, of the persons liable thereto, or according to the annual value of houses and grounds, is levied under the Bengal Chaukidari Act, 1856, in a cantonment, a tax on persons practising any profession or art or carrying on any trade or calling or a tax on buildings or lands shall not be leviable in the cantonment in pursuance of a notification under section 60 of this Act.

Definition of annual value.

64. For the purposes of this Chapter, "annual value" means—

- (a) in the case of railway stations, hotels, colleges, schools, hospitals, factories and other such buildings, one-twentieth of the sum obtained by adding the estimated present cost of erecting the building to the estimated value of the land appertaining thereto, and
- (b) in the case of a building or land not provided for in clause (a), the gross annual rent for which such building (exclusive of furniture or machinery therein) or such land is actually let, or where the building or land is not let or in the opinion of the Cantonment Authority is let for a sum less than its fair letting value, might reasonably be expected to let from year to year :

Provided that, where the annual value of any building is, by reason of exceptional circumstances, in the opinion of the Cantonment Authority, excessive if calculated in the aforesaid manner, the Cantonment Authority may fix the annual value at any less amount which appears to it to be just.

Incidence of taxation.

65. (1) Save as otherwise expressly provided in the notification imposing the tax, every tax on the annual value of buildings or lands or of both shall be leviable primarily upon the actual occupier of the property upon which the said tax is assessed, if he is the owner of the buildings or lands or holds them on a building or other lease from the Secretary of State in Council or from the Cantonment Authority or on a building lease from any person.

(2) In any other case, the tax shall be primarily leviable as follows, namely :—

- (a) if the property is let, upon the lessor ;
- (b) if the property is sub-let, upon the superior lessor ;
- (c) if the property is unlet, upon the person in whom the right to let the same vests.

(3) On failure to recover any sum due on account of such tax from the person primarily liable, there may be recovered from the occupier of any part of the buildings or lands in respect of which the tax is due such portion of the sum due as bears to the whole amount due the same ratio which the rent annually payable by such occupier bears to the aggregate amount of rent so payable in respect of the whole of the said buildings or lands, or to the aggregate amount of the letting value thereof, if any, stated in the authenticated assessment list.

(4) An occupier who makes any payment for which he is not primarily liable under this section shall, in the absence of any contract, to the contrary, be entitled to be re-imbursed by the person primarily liable for the payment.

Assessment List.

Assessment list.

66. When a tax on the annual value of buildings or lands or both is imposed, the Cantonment Authority shall cause an assessment list of all buildings or lands in the cantonment, or of both, as the case may be, to be prepared in such form as the Governor General in Council may by rule prescribe.

67. When the assessment list has been prepared, the Cantonment Authority shall give public notice thereof, and of the place where the list or a copy thereof may be inspected, and every person claiming to be the owner, lessee or occupier of any property included in the list, and any authorized agent of such person, shall be at liberty to inspect the list and to make extracts therefrom free of charge.

Revision of assessment list.

68. (1) The Cantonment Authority shall, at the same time, give public notice of a date, not less than one month thereafter, when it will proceed to consider the valuations and assessments entered in the assessment list, and, in all cases in which any property is for the first time assessed or the assessment is increased, it shall also give notice thereof to the owner and to any lessee or occupier of the property.

(2) Any objection to a valuation or assessment shall be made in writing to the Cantonment Authority before the date fixed in the notice, and shall state in what respect the valuation or assessment is disputed, and all objections so made shall be recorded in a register to be kept for the purpose by the Cantonment Authority.

(3) The objections shall be inquired into and investigated, and the person making them shall be allowed an opportunity of being heard either in person or by authorized agent, by an Assessment Committee appointed by the Cantonment Authority.

(4) The Assessment Committee shall consist of not less than three persons, and, where there is a Board, it shall not be necessary to appoint to the Assessment Committee any member thereof.

Authentication of assessment list.

69. (1) When all objections made under section 68 have been disposed of, and the revision of the valuation and assessment has been completed, the assessment list shall be authenticated by the signature of the members of the Assessment Committee who shall, at the same time, certify that they have considered all objections duly made and have amended the list so far as is required by their decisions on such objections.

(2) The assessment list so authenticated shall be deposited in the office of the Cantonment Authority and shall there be open, free of charge, during office hours to all owners, lessees and occupiers of property comprised therein or the authorised agents of such persons, and a public notice that it is so open shall forthwith be published.

Evidential value of assessment list.

70. Subject to such alterations as may thereafter be made in the assessment list under the provisions of this Chapter and to the result of any appeal made thereunder, the entries in the assessment list authenticated and deposited as provided in section 69 shall be accepted as conclusive evidence—

(i) for the purpose of assessing any tax imposed under this Act, of the annual value or other valuation of all buildings and lands to which such entries respectively refer, and

(ii) for the purposes of any tax imposed on buildings or lands, of the amount of each such tax leviable thereon during the year to which such list relates.

Amendment of assessment list.

71. (1) The Cantonment Authority may, at any time, amend the assessment list by inserting the name of any person whose name ought to have been or ought to be inserted, or by inserting any property which ought to have been or ought to be inserted, or by altering the assessment on any property which has been erroneously valued or assessed through fraud, accident or mistake, whether on the part of the Cantonment Authority or of the Assessment Committee or of the assessee, or, in the case of a tax payable by an occupier, by a change in the tenancy, after giving notice to any person affected by the amendment of a time, not less than one month from the date of service, at which the amendment is to be made.

(2) Any person interested in any such amendment may tender an objection to the Cantonment Authority in writing before the time fixed in the notice, and shall be allowed an opportunity of being heard in support of the same in person or by authorised agent.

list.

72. The Cantonment Authority shall prepare a new assessment list every year, and for this purpose the provisions of sections 66 to 71 shall apply in like manner as they apply for the purpose of the preparation of an assessment list for the first time.

73. (1) Whenever the title of any person primarily liable for the payment of a tax on the annual value of any building or land to or over such building or land is transferred, the person whose title is transferred and the person to whom the same is transferred shall, within three months after the execution of the instrument of transfer or after its registration, if it is registered, or after the transfer is effected, if no instrument is executed, give notice of such transfer to the Executive Officer.

(2) In the event of the death of any person primarily liable as aforesaid, the person on whom the title of the deceased devolves shall give notice of such devolution to the Executive Officer within six months from the death of the deceased.

(3) The notice to be given under this section shall be in such form as the Executive Officer may direct and the transferee or other person or whom the title devolves shall, if so required, be bound to produce before the Executive Officer any documents evidencing the transfer or devolution.

(4) Every person who makes a transfer as aforesaid without giving such notice to the Executive Officer shall continue liable for the payment of all taxes assessed on the property transferred until he gives notice or until the transfer has been recorded in the registers of the Cantonment Authority, but nothing in this section shall be held to affect the liability of the transferee for the payment of the said tax.

In a cantonment other than a hill cantonment, when any building or land has remained vacant and unproductive of rent for ninety or more consecutive days during any year, the Cantonment Authority shall remit or refund, as the case may be, such portion of the tax in respect of that year as may be proportionate to the number of days during which the said building or land has remained vacant and unproductive of rent.

Power to require entry in assessment list of details of building.

77. For the purpose of obtaining a partial remission or refund of tax, the owner of a building composed of separate tenements may request the Cantonment Authority, at the time of the assessment of the building, to enter in the assessment list, in addition to the annual value of the whole building, a note recording in detail the annual value of each separate tenement. When any tenement, the annual value of which has been thus separately recorded, has remained vacant and unproductive of rent for ninety or more consecutive days during any year, such portion of the tax in respect of that year on the whole building shall be remitted or refunded as would have been remitted or refunded if the tenement had been separately assessed :

Provided that no such remission shall be made unless notice in writing of the circumstances in which it is claimed has been given to the Cantonment Authority, and no remission or refund shall take effect in respect of any period commencing more than fifteen days before the delivery of such notice.

What buildings, etc., are to be deemed vacant.

78. (1) For the purposes of sections 76 and 77 no building, tenement or land shall be deemed vacant if maintained as a pleasure resort of town or country house, or be deemed unproductive of rent if let to a tenant who has a continuing right of occupation thereof, whether he is in actual occupation or not.

Provided that the Executive Officer may, in any case, order that any article of a perishable nature which cannot be kept for five days without serious risk of damage, or which cannot be kept save at a cost which together with the amount of octroi, terminal tax or toll is likely to exceed its value, shall be sold after the lapse of such shorter time as he may, having regard to the nature of the article, think proper.

(4) If at any time before the sale has begun, the person whose property has been seized tenders to the Executive Officer the amount of all expenses incurred and of the octroi, terminal tax or toll, the Executive Officer shall release the property seized.

1919	XXII	The Cantonments (Amendment) Act, 1919.	The whole.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

A Committee, which was appointed by the Government of India in January 1921 to consider what changes were necessary in order to introduce into the administration of cantonments the spirit of the reformed scheme of Government, recommended a complete revision and amalgamation of the Cantonments Act (Act XV of 1910) and the Cantonment Code, 1912, in order to bring into conformity with ordinary municipal law the system under which military cantonments are administered.

The recommendations of the Committee have now been examined by the Government of India and the conclusions arrived at are embodied in the Bill.

The main features of the Bill are as follows :-

- (a) It is proposed to take power to municipalize the government of those cantonments which contain a substantial civil population having no essential connexion with or dependence upon the military administration. In other cantonments where these circumstances do not fully exist the administration of cantonment affairs will be vested in the hands of the Commanding Officer of the Cantonment, who, for the purposes of the Act, will be constituted a corporation sole. The general effect will be that the Cantonment Authority will cease to be the purely executive agency of Government, which it is at present. In the larger cantonments the existing Cantonment Committee will be replaced by a Cantonment Board which will be municipal in character and an essentially local self-government body.
- (b) The reformed Cantonment Authorities will have a separate legal persona, will be capable of suing and being sued in their own name and of making contracts. They will also be empowered to make bye-laws to govern local matters of administration which require different treatment in different cantonments.
- (c) The cantonment fund under the reformed system will be a local fund vested in the Cantonment Authority.
- (d) In the reformed cantonments where a Board is constituted a proportion of the Cantonment Board will be elected representatives of the civil inhabitants of the cantonment. An official majority will, however, be maintained.
- (e) The Cantonment Magistrate, as such, will be eliminated. In his place an "Executive Officer" will be appointed. He will be paid by Government. He will perform, amongst other things, the duties of Secretary of the Board, and he will have no judicial powers or functions.
- (f) The Local Governments will exercise certain larger powers of superintendence and control over cantonment affairs than they do at present.
- (g) The military authorities will retain certain special powers in matters affecting the health, welfare and discipline of troops.

Bills Introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly, and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 27th March, 1923 :—

No. 16 OF 1923.

A Bill to provide for the prevention of deferred rebates and for the prevention of rate wars and resort to retaliatory or discriminating practices in the Coastal traffic of India.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the growth of an Indian Merchant Marine by guaranteeing fair and healthy competition and by checking monopolies ;

AND WHEREAS for this purpose it is expedient to provide for the prevention of the grant of deferred rebates to or resort to retaliatory or discriminating practices and for the prevention of rate wars by common carriers engaged in the coasting trade of British India ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Prevention of Deferred Rebates Act, 192

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoint.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "a common carrier" means a common carrier engaged in the transportation by water of passengers or property between any two ports in British India or between any port in British India and any port or place in the Continent of India ;

- (b) "deferred rebates" means a return of any portion of the freight money by a carrier to any shipper as a consideration for the giving of all or any portion of his shipments to the same or any other carrier or for any other purpose, the payment of which is deferred beyond the completion of the service for which it is paid, and is paid only if, either during the period for which computed or the period of deferment or both, the shipper has complied with the terms of the rebate agreement or arrangement ;
- (c) "a subject" means a person and includes a corporation, partnership or association existing under or authorised by the laws of British India or of the dominions of princes and chiefs in alliance with His Majesty ;
- (d) "the coasting trade of India" means the carriage by water of goods or passengers ; and
- (e) "minimum rate" means a rate which covers cost of service and includes a fair return on capital invested after meeting depreciation and other essential charges.

Prohibition of deferred rebates and discriminating agreements

3. No common carrier by water shall, directly or indirectly in respect to the coasting trade of India,—

- (a) pay or allow or enter into any combination, agreement or understanding, express or implied, to pay or allow a deferred rebate to any shipper,
- (b) retaliate against any shipper by refusing or threatening to refuse space accommodations when such are available, or resort to other discriminating or unfair methods, because such shipper has patronised any other carrier or has filed a complaint charging unfair treatment or for any other reason, and
- (c) make any unfair or unjust discriminatory contract with any shipper based on the volume of freight carried or unfairly treat or unjustly discriminate against any shipper in the matter of—
 - (1) cargo space accommodation or other facilities, due regard being had for the proper loading of the vessel and the available tonnage,
 - (2) the loading and landing of freight in proper condition, or
 - (3) the adjustment and settlement of claims.

Governor General in Council to decide whether deferred rebates or discriminating agreements have been resorted to

4. The Governor General in Council, without prejudice to the right of parties to move the Courts, upon his own initiative may, or upon complaint, shall, after due notice to all parties in interest and bearing, determine whether any person, joint stock company, corporation or association engaged in the coasting trade of India—

- (1) has violated any provision of section 3, or
- (2) is a party to any combination, agreement or understanding, express or implied, that involves in respect to the coasting trade of India a resort to deferred rebates and retaliatory or discriminating practices mentioned in section 3.

Power to Governor General in Council to prohibit entry into ports

5. If the Governor General in Council determines that any such person, joint stock company, corporation or association violated any such provision or is a party to any such combination, agreement or understanding, he may thereafter refuse such person, joint stock company, corporation or association the right of entry for any common carrier directly or indirectly under his or its control, into any port of British India until the Governor General in Council certifies that the violation has ceased or such combination, agreement or understanding has been terminated.

Common carrier to file copy of agreement with another common carrier

6. Every common carrier shall file immediately with the Governor General in Council a true copy or, if oral, a true and complete memorandum, of every agreement with another such carrier, or modification or cancellation thereof, to which he may be a party, or conform in whole or in part, fixing or regulating transportation rates or fares; giving or receiving special rates, accommodations, or other special privileges or advantages; controlling, regulating, preventing or destroying competition; pooling or apportioning earnings, losses or traffic; allotting ports or restricting or otherwise regulating the number and character of sailings between ports; limiting or regulating in any way the volume or character of freight or passenger traffic to be carried; or in any manner providing for an exclusive, preferential or co-operative arrangement.

Carrier to file scales of maximum and minimum rates

7. Every carrier shall also file with the Governor General in Council a scale of maximum and minimum rates.

Rates filed not to be departed from

8. No carrier shall depart from the scale filed in accordance with section 7, except with the approval of the Governor General in Council. Whenever the Governor-General in Council finds that any rate or fare is unjust or unreasonable, it may determine, prescribe and order the enforcement of a just and reasonable maximum and minimum scale of rates and fares.

Reduced rates not to be increased without consent of Governor General in Council

9. Whenever a carrier reduces its rates on the carriage of any species of freight to or from competitive points below a fair and remunerative basis with the intent of driving out or otherwise injuring a competitive carrier by water, it shall not increase such rates unless after a hearing the Governor General in Council finds that such proposed increase rests upon changed conditions other than the elimination of said competition.

Power to Governor General in Council to cancel or modify agreements

10. The Governor General in Council may by order disapprove, cancel, or modify any agreement or any modification or cancellation thereof, whether or not previously approved by him, that he finds to be unjustly discriminatory or unfair as between carriers, shippers, exporters and importers or to operate to the detriment of the commerce of British India or to be in violation of this Act and shall approve all other agreements, modifications, or cancellations.

Penalties

11. Whoever violates any provision of this Act or refuses or fails to carry out the orders of the Governor General in Council shall be liable to a fine of not less than ten thousand rupees or simple imprisonment to a term of not less than six months, or both.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to remove some of the main obstacles that lie in the way of the development of an Indian Merchant Marine. They mainly consist of methods whereby a shipper is practically bound to confine all his shipments to vessels belonging to a particular shipping company or to the members of a shipping conference, and rate wars waged for stifling all competition by ruthless and unfair rate-cutting. Not merely is the freedom of the shipper to ship his goods by any vessel he may choose thus destroyed, but the progress of trade along desirable channels is also checked. A "disloyal" shipper is penalised by (a) refusal of space, (b) discrimination in the contract of freight, (c) the loading and landing of freight, (d) the adjustment and settlement of claims and various other discriminatory methods. It is the purpose of this Bill to do away with such practices so that an Indian Merchant Marine may grow unhampered.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 21st March, 1923:—

No. 12 OF 1923.

A Bill for the removal of doubts regarding the right of women to be enrolled and practise as Legal practitioners.

WHEREAS it is expedient to remove certain doubts which have arisen as to the right of women to be enrolled and to practise as legal practitioners; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent

1. (1) This Act may be called the Legal Practitioners (Women) Act, 192 .

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Santhal Parganas.

Definition

2. In this Act, "legal practitioner" means a legal practitioner as defined in section 3 of the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879.

XVIII of 1879

Women not to be disqualified by reason only of sex

3. Notwithstanding anything contained in any enactment in force in British India or in the letters patent of any High Court or in any rule or order made under or in pursuance of any such enactment or letters patent, no woman shall, by reason only of her sex, be disqualified from being admitted or enrolled as a legal practitioner or from practising as such; and any such rule or order which is repugnant to the provisions of this Act shall, to the extent of such repugnancy, be void.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Letters Patents of the several High Courts empower them to admit proper persons as Advocates, Vakils and Attorneys, and to make rules for their qualification and admission. Sections 6 and 17 of the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, similarly give powers to the High Courts and the Chief Controlling Revenue-authorities to make rules for the qualification and admission of persons as Pleaders and Mukhtars, and as Revenue Agents, respectively. Sections 6 and 31 of the Bombay Pleaders Act, 1920 (Bombay Act XVII of 1920) contain similar provisions as regards Pleaders in that Presidency. Conflicting decisions have been given by High Courts as to the right of women, who are otherwise qualified, to be enrolled and to practise as legal practitioners.

The Government of India consulted Local Governments and other authorities on the question of whether women should be as eligible as men to enter upon a career as legal practitioners. The general opinion expressed was that in the present conditions of India, this question should be decided by Indian opinion. An opportunity of obtaining the views of the Assembly upon the question arose in connection with the motion moved by Dr. H. S. Gour for the reference of his Bill further to amend the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, to a Select Committee. During the course of the debate upon that Resolution, it was indicated that the acceptance of the motion by the Assembly would be regarded as an acceptance of the principle that no woman shall, by reason only of her sex, be disqualified from being admitted or being enrolled as a legal practitioner, or from practising as such in any court of law. The motion was accepted and in accordance with the undertaking given in the course of the debate on the motion the present Bill has been prepared to give effect to this view.

Bills Introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly, and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly :—

A Bill further to amend the Indian Limitation Act, 1908.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Limitation Act, 1908 ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

IX of 1908.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Limitation (Amendment) Act, 192 .

Amendment of section 19. Act IX of 1908.

2. In section 19 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), the following amendments shall be made, namely :—

IX of 1908

(a) In sub-section (1), for the words "an acknowledgment" the words "a clear and unconditional acknowledgment" shall be substituted, and for the words "signed by" the words "signed and dated by" shall be substituted ;

(b) Sub-section (2) shall be omitted ;

(c) Explanation I shall be omitted ; and

(d) for Explanation II the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"Explanation II.—For the purposes of this section 'signed' means signed either personally or by an agent duly authorised in writing in this behalf."

Amendment of section 20, Act IX
of 1908.

3. (a) For sub-section (1) of section 20 of the said Act, the following shall be substituted, namely :—

“Where anything is paid either as interest or part of the principal of a debt or legacy before the prescribed period by the debtor or by his agent duly authorised in writing in this behalf, the entry as to such payment being signed and dated by the payer, a fresh period of limitation shall be computed from the date of payment.”

(b) Sub-section (2) of the same section shall be omitted.

Amendment of
section 21, Act IX
of 1908.

4. In sub-section (1) of section 21 of the said Act, after the word “authorised” wherever it occurs, the words “in writing” shall be inserted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of the proposed amendments is to decrease litigation, perjury, forgery and fraud. At present many facts are required to be proved by oral evidence which the Courts may or may not believe and the result is always uncertain.

Under the proposed amendment, a clear and unconditional acknowledgment duly signed and dated by the person liable or by his agent duly authorized in writing will be required to extend time. Debtors should not be taken by surprise by an ambiguous or undated writing which might be used to extend the period of limitation.

In section 20, there is always a dispute whether the payment was made on account of interest as such. Under the amended section, part payment of principal and payment of interest have been placed on equal footing. Similar amendment has been made in section 21. Authority of an agent to extend time under any of the sections referred to in this Bill must always be in writing and not oral.

I hope the proposed amendments, if passed into law, will considerably reduce litigation and the multiplicity of witnesses will be avoided.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 2nd July, 1923 :—

No. 24 OF 1923.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for certain purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for certain purposes hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Income-tax (Further Amendment) Act, 1923.

Amendment of section 4, Act XI of 1922.

2. In sub-section (2) of section 4 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), for the words "shall be deemed to be profits and gains of the year in which they are received or brought into British India," the following words shall be substituted, namely :—

"shall, if they are received in or brought into British India, be deemed to have accrued or arisen in British India and to be profits and gains of the year in which they are so received or brought."

Insertion of new Chapter VA in Act XI of 1922.

3. After Chapter V of the said Act the following Chapter shall be inserted, namely :—

"CHAPTER VA.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO CERTAIN CLASSES OF SHIPPING.

Liability to tax of occasional shipping.

44A. The provisions of this Chapter shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the other provisions of this Act, apply for the purpose of the levy and recovery of tax in the case of any person who resides out of British India and carries on business in British India in any year as the owner or charterer of a ship (such person hereinafter in this Chapter being referred to as the principal), unless the Income-tax Officer is satisfied that there is an agent of such principal from whom the tax will be recoverable in the following year under the other provisions of this Act.

Return of profits and gains.

44B. (1) Before the departure from any port in British India of any ship in respect of which the provisions of this Chapter apply, the master of the ship shall prepare and furnish to the Income-tax Officer a return of the full amount paid or payable to the principal, or to any person on his behalf, on account of the carriage of all passengers, live-stock or goods shipped at that port since the last arrival of the ship thereat.

(2) On receipt of the return, the Income-tax Officer shall assess the amount referred to in sub-section (1), and for this purpose may call for such accounts or documents as he may require, and one-twentieth of the amount so assessed shall be deemed to be the amount of the profits and gains accruing to the principal on account of the carriage of the passengers, live-stock and goods shipped at the port.

(3) When the profits and gains have been assessed as aforesaid, the Income-tax Officer shall determine the sum payable as tax thereon at the rate for the time being applicable to the total income of a company, and such sum shall be payable by the master of the ship, and a port-clearance shall not be granted to the ship until the Customs-collector, or other officer duly authorised to grant the same, is satisfied that the tax has been duly paid.

Adjustment.

44C. Nothing in this Chapter shall be deemed to prevent a principal from claiming, in any year following that in which any payment has been made on his behalf under this Chapter, that an assessment be made of his total income in the previous year, and that the tax payable on the basis thereof be determined in accordance with the other provisions of this Act, and, if he so claims, any such payment as aforesaid shall be treated as a payment in advance of the tax and the difference between the sum so paid, and the amount of tax found payable by him shall be paid by him or refunded to him, as the case may be."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Some doubt has been expressed whether sub-section (2) of section 4 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, fully secures the intention of the Act that the profits and gains of a business accruing or arising out of British India to a person resident in British India should be assessed when received in, or brought into, British India. Clause 2 of the Bill is intended to place the matter beyond dispute.

2. Difficulties have arisen in the assessment to income-tax of occasional shipping belonging to, or chartered by, persons or companies whose principal place of business is not in British India and who have no regular agents in India from whom the tax will be recoverable in the following year. Clause 3 of the Bill accordingly makes special provision for the assessment of the profits and gains of such shipping.

No. 20 of 1923.

further to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, for certain purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, for certain purposes hereinafter appearing; V of 1908
It is hereby enacted as follows:

Short title

1. This Act may be called the Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Act, 1923.

Amendment of Section 60, Act V
of 1908

2. In clause (i) of sub-section (1) of section 60 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, for the word "twenty," wherever it occurs, the word "forty," and for the word "forty" the word "eighty" shall be substituted. V of 1908

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Under proviso (i) of sub-section (1) of section 60 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, the salary or allowances of public officers and servants of railway companies and local authorities while on duty are protected from attachment in execution of decrees to the extent of—

- (1) the whole of the salary, where the salary does not exceed Rs. 20 a month;
- (2) Rs. 20 monthly, where the salary exceeds Rs. 20, but does not exceed Rs. 40, a month, and
- (3) one moiety of the salary in any other case.

It is considered that the amount of salary immune from attachment should be raised proportionately to the rise in the cost of living on the ground that, when the Code was drafted in 1908, the initial pay of Government servants in almost all Departments was low compared with the present rates. It is, therefore, proposed that the limits of Rs. 20 and Rs. 40 in (1) and (2) above should be raised to Rs. 40 and Rs. 80, respectively.

BILL

further to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, for certain purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, for certain purposes hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Code of Criminal Procedure (Second Amendment) Act, 1923.

(2) It shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoint.

Amendment of section 364, Act V of 1898

2. In section 364 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 ^{V of 1898} (hereinafter referred to as the said Code),—

(a) in sub-section (3) the words “unless he is a Presidency Magistrate,” shall be omitted; and

Substitution of new section for section 388, Act V of 1898

3. For section 388 of the said Code the following section shall be substituted, namely :—

Suspension of execution of sentence of imprisonment.

“388. (1) When an offender has been sentenced to fine only and to imprisonment in default of payment of the fine, and the fine is not paid forthwith, the Court may—

(a) order that the fine shall be payable either in full on or before a date not more than thirty days from the date of the order, or in two or three instalments, of which the first shall be payable on or before a date not more than thirty days from the date of the order and the other or others at an interval or at intervals, as the case may be, of not more than thirty days, and

(b) suspend the execution of the sentence of imprisonment and release the offender, on the execution by the offender of a bond with or without sureties, as the Court thinks fit, conditioned for his appearance before the Court on the date or dates on or before which payment of the fine or the instalments thereof, as the case may be, is to be made; and, if the amount of the fine or of any instalment, as the case may be, is not realized on or before the latest date on which it is payable under the order, the Court may direct the sentence of imprisonment to be carried into execution at once.

- (2) The provisions of sub-section (1) shall be applicable also in any case in which an order for the payment of money has been made on non-recovery of which imprisonment may be awarded and the money is not paid forthwith ; and, if the person against whom the order has been made, on being required to enter into a bond such as is referred to in that sub-section, fails to do so, the Court may at once pass sentence of imprisonment."

Amendment of section 562, Act
V of 1898

4. After sub-section (1) of section 562 of the said Code the following sub-section shall be inserted, namely :—

Conviction and release with admonition

- "(1A) In any case in which a person is convicted of theft, theft in a building, dishonest misappropriation, cheating or any offence under the Indian Penal Code punishable with not more than two years' imprisonment and no previous conviction is proved against him, the Court before whom he is so convicted may, if it thinks fit, having regard to the age, character, antecedents or physical or mental condition of the offender and to the trivial nature of the offence or any extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed, instead of sentencing him to any punishment, release him after due admonition."

Amendment of Schedule V, Act
V of 1898.

5. In Schedule V to the said Code, in Form XXXVIIA,—

- (a) the words "until the day of" shall be omitted ; and
(b) for the words "on that day ;" and for the words "on the said day of next," and for the words "on the day of next;" the words "on the following date (or dates), namely :—" shall be substituted.

Repeal

6. Sections 98 and 104 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Amendment) Act, 1923, are hereby repealed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Section 97 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Amendment) Act, 1923 (XVIII of 1923), inserts a new sub-section (2A) in section 362 of the Code of 1898, requiring a Presidency Magistrate in appealable cases to make a memorandum of the substance of the examination of the accused person, which shall be signed by him and shall form part of the record, and new sub-section (4) lays down that in non-appealable cases it shall not be necessary for a Presidency Magistrate to record the evidence or frame a charge. Section 98 of the Act of 1923 inserts the words and figures "or section 362, sub-section (2A)" after the figures "263" in sub-section (4) of section 364 of the Code. The last amendment, which was introduced by the Joint Committee who reported on the Bill which passed into law as Act XVIII of 1923, was considered to be purely consequential upon the insertion of new sub-section (2A) in section 362. The effect of this amendment is that, while new sub-section (2A) has imposed an additional formality in connection with the examination of an accused person by a Presidency Magistrate in appealable cases, the formalities attending such examination have been materially relaxed in another respect ; and that a memorandum of the substance of the evidence has been regarded as sufficient in appealable cases, while a full record in the form of question and answer is required in non-appealable cases. The Joint Committee did not intend that the amendments introduced would have this effect. It is accordingly proposed to remove these anomalies and to make it clear that, in cases where an appeal lies, the Presidency Magistrate shall take down a memorandum of the examination of the accused person as already provided in new sub-section (2A) of section 362, and that in non-appealable cases no record of the examination of the accused need be made. Clause 2 of this Bill gives effect to this.

2. The object of clauses 3 and 4 of the Bill is to give effect to some of the recommendations made by the Indian Jails Committee in paragraphs 438, 439 and 440 of their Report. These follow generally the lines of their recommendations, and opportunity has been taken to remodel the provisions of section 388 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 11th July 1923 :—

No. 27 OF 1923.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Lunacy Act, 1912.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Lunacy Act, 1912 ; It is hereby enacted as follows :— IV of 1912.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Lunacy (Amendment) Act, 1923.

Amendment of section 20, Act IV of 1912.

2. To section 20 of the Indian Lunacy Act, 1912, the IV of 1912. following proviso shall be added, namely :—

“ Provided that no reception order shall continue to have effect—

(a) after the expiry of thirty days from the date on which it was made, unless the lunatic has been admitted to the place mentioned therein within that period, or

(b) after the discharge, under the provisions of this Act, of the lunatic from such place or from any asylum to which he may have been removed.”

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It has been brought to notice that as the Indian Lunacy Act, 1912, stands at present, a person, once the subject of a reception order for detention in a mental hospital, remains permanently subject to it, and can be taken to a mental hospital and confined therein legally at any subsequent period of his life, notwithstanding that the order may not have been acted on for a considerable period after being made or that the person may have been discharged from such a hospital as recovered from the mental disorder which occasioned the issue of the order. This was never the intention of the law, and in practice the defect has never caused any miscarriage of justice, but a flaw undoubtedly exists and it is considered desirable to remove it. The Bill proposes to remedy the defect by amending section 20 of the Act so as to render a reception order inoperative after 30 days if it has not been acted upon or, if it has been acted upon within that period, after the discharge of the person to whom it relates from the detention authorised by it.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It has been the long felt desire of the legal profession in India in all its branches to reorganize the legal profession of the country to secure a self-contained and unified independent Indian Bar functioning in the same manner as the sister organizations of Great Britain and the United States. With this object Munshi Iswar Saran brought a Resolution in the Legislative Assembly on the 24th February, 1921, requesting the Government to undertake legislation to remove all distinctions enforced by Statute or by practice between the several branches of the legal profession and the Honourable the Law Member on behalf of the Government was prepared to be guided by definite public opinion in the matter and accordingly undertook to make reference to the Local Governments, High Courts and local bodies in India, and a motion to that effect was accepted by the Assembly. Sufficient time has since elapsed and it is therefore necessary to focus legal public opinion in the matter. The object of the Bill is to create one Indian Bar, and only where the circumstances of a province require it, but not otherwise, another for the mofussil districts and at the same time to secure for the profession one single self-contained representative body with powers of enrolment and discipline and regulation of professional conduct and other matters connected therewith.

CHAPTER II.

Of Wills and Codicils.

Person capable of making wills.

58. Every person of sound mind not being a minor may dispose of his property by will.

Section 46, Act X of 1865

Explanation 1.—A married woman may dispose by will of any property which she could alienate by her own act during her life.

Explanation 2.—Persons who are deaf or dumb or blind are not thereby incapacitated for making a will if they are able to know what they do by it.

Explanation 3.—A person who is ordinarily insane may make a will during an interval in which he is of sound mind.

Explanation 4.—No person can make a will while he is in such state of mind, whether arising from intoxication or from illness or from any other cause, that he does not know what he is doing.

Illustrations.

(a) A can perceive what is going on in his immediate neighbourhood, and can answer familiar questions, but has not a competent understanding as to the nature of his property, or the persons who are of kindred to him, or in whose favour it would be proper that he should make his will. A cannot make a valid will.

(b) A executes an instrument purporting to be his will, but he does not understand the nature of the instrument nor the effect of its provisions. This instrument is not a valid will.

(c) A, being very feeble and debilitated, but capable of exercising a judgment as to the proper mode of disposing of his property, makes a will. This is a valid will.

Testamentary
guardian.

59. A father, whatever his age may be, may by will appoint a guardian or guardians for his child during minority.

Section 47,
Act X of 1865.

Will obtained by fraud, coercion or importunity.

60. A will or any part of a will, the making of which has been caused by fraud or coercion, or by such importunity as takes away the free agency of the testator, is void.

Section 48,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A falsely and knowingly represents to the testator that the testator's only child is dead, or that he has done some undutiful act and thereby induces the testator to make a will in his, A's favour; such will has been obtained by fraud, and is invalid.

(b) A, by fraud and deception, prevails upon the testator to bequeath a legacy to him. The bequest is void.

(c) A, being a prisoner by lawful authority, makes his will. The will is not invalid by reason of the imprisonment.

(d) A threatens to shoot B, or to burn his house or to cause him to be arrested on a criminal charge, unless he makes a bequest in favour of C. B in consequence makes a bequest in favour of C. The bequest is void, the making of it having been caused by coercion.

(e) A, being of sufficient intellect, if undisturbed by the influence of others to make a will yet being so much under the control of B that he is not a free agent, makes a will dictated by B. It appears that he would not have executed the will but for fear of B. The will is invalid.

(f) A, being in so feeble a state of health as to be unable to resist importunity, is pressed by B to make a will of a certain purport and does so merely to purchase peace and in submission to B. The will is invalid.

(g) A being in a such a state of health as to be capable of exercising his own judgment and volition, B uses urgent intercession and persuasion with him to induce him to make a will of a certain purport. A, in consequence of the intercession and persuasion, but in the free exercise of his judgment and volition makes his will in the manner recommended by B. The will is not rendered invalid by the intercession and persuasion of B.

(h) A, with a view to obtaining a legacy from B pays him attention and flatters him and thereby produces in him a capricious partiality to A. B, in consequence of such attention and flattery, makes his will, by which he leaves a legacy to A. The bequest is not rendered invalid by the attention and flattery of A.

Will may be revoked or altered.

61. A will is liable to be revoked or altered by the maker of it at any time when he is competent to dispose of his property by will.

Section 49,

(c) The will shall be attested by two or more witnesses each of whom has seen the testator sign or affix his mark to the will or has seen some other person sign the will, in the presence and by the direction of the testator, or has received from the testator a personal acknowledgment of his signature or mark, or of the signature of such other person; and each of the witnesses shall sign the will in the presence of the testator, but it shall not be necessary that more than one witness be present at the same time, and no particular form of attestation shall be necessary.

Incorporation
reference.

(c) If the instrument purporting to be a will is written wholly or in part by another person and is not signed by the testator, it shall be deemed to be his will, if it is shown that it was written by the testator's directions or that he recognised it as his will.

(d) If it appears on the face of the instrument that the execution of it in the manner intended by the testator was not completed, the instrument shall not, by reason of that circumstance, be invalid, provided that his non-execution of it can be reasonably ascribed to some cause other than the abandonment of the testamentary intentions expressed in the instrument.

(e) If the soldier or mariner has written instructions for the preparation of his will, but has died before it could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his will.

(f) If the soldier or mariner has, in the presence of two witnesses, given verbal instructions for the preparation of his will, and they have been reduced into writing in his lifetime, but he has died before the instrument could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his will, although they may not have been reduced into writing in his presence, nor read over to him.

(g) The soldier or mariner may make a will by word of mouth by declaring his intentions before two witnesses present at the same time.

(h) A will made by word of mouth shall be null at the expiration of one month after the testator, being still alive, has ceased to be entitled to make a privileged will.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE ATTESTATION, REVOCATION, ALTERATION AND REVIVAL OF WILLS.

Effect of gift to attesting witness.

66. A will shall not be deemed to be insufficiently attested by reason of any benefit thereby given either by way of bequest or by way of appointment to any person attesting it, or to his or her wife or husband; but the bequest or appointment shall be void so far as concerns the person so attesting, or the wife or husband of such person, or any person claiming under either of them.

Section 56,
Act X of 1865

Explanation.—Where a man is invested with power to determine the disposition of property of which he is not the owner, he is said to have power to appoint such property.

Revocation of unprivileged will or codicil.

69. No unprivileged will or codicil, nor any part thereof, shall be revoked otherwise than by marriage, or by another will or codicil, or by some writing declaring an intention to revoke the same and executed in the manner in which an unprivileged will is hereinbefore required to be executed, or by the burning, tearing or otherwise destroying the same by the testator or by some person in his presence and by his direction with the intention of revoking the same.

Section 57,
Act X of 1865

Illustrations.

(a) A has made an unprivileged will. Afterwards A makes another unprivileged will which purports to revoke the first. This is a revocation.

(b) A has made an unprivileged will. Afterwards, A, being entitled to make a privileged will, makes a privileged will, which purports to revoke his unprivileged will. This is a revocation.

Effect of obliteration, inter-lineation or alteration in unprivileged will.

70. No obliteration, interlineation or other alteration made in any unprivileged will after the execution thereof shall have any effect, except so far as the words or meaning of the will have been thereby rendered illegible or undiscernible, unless such alteration has been executed in like manner as hereinbefore is required for the execution of the will:

Section 58,
Act X of 1865.

Provided that the will, as so altered, shall be deemed to be duly executed if the signature of the testator and the subscription of the witnesses is made in the margin or on some other part of the will opposite or near to such alteration, or at the foot or end of or opposite to a memorandum referring to such alteration, and written at the end or some other part of the will.

Revocation of privileged will or codicil.

71. A privileged will or codicil may be revoked by the testator by an unprivileged will or codicil, or by any act expressing an intention to revoke it and accompanied by such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged will, or by the burning, tearing or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same.

Section 59,
Act X of 1865.

Explanation.—In order to the revocation of a privileged will or codicil by an act accompanied by such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged will, it is not necessary that the testator should at the time of doing that act be in a situation which entitles him to make a privileged will.

Revival of unprivileged will.

72. (1) No unprivileged will or codicil, nor any part thereof, which has been revoked in any manner, shall be revived otherwise than by the re-execution thereof, or by a codicil executed in manner hereinbefore required, and showing an intention to revive the same.

Section 60,
Act X of 1865.

(2) When any will or codicil, which has been partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked, is revived, such revival shall not extend to so much thereof as has been revoked before the revocation of the whole thereof, unless an intention to the contrary is shown by the will or codicil.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE CONSTRUCTION OF WILLS.

Wording will.

73. It is not necessary that any technical words or terms of art be used in a will, but only that the wording be such that the intentions of the testator can be known therefrom.

Section 61,
Act X of 1865.

Inquires to determine questions as to object or subject of will.

74. For the purpose of determining questions as to what person or what property is denoted by any words used in a will, a Court shall inquire into every material fact relating to the persons who claim to be interested under such will, the property which is claimed as the subject of disposition, the circumstances of the testator and of his family, and into every fact a knowledge of which may conduce to the right application of the words which the testator has used.

Section 62,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A, by his will, bequeaths 1,000 rupees to his eldest son or to his youngest grandchild, or to his cousin, Manu. A Court may make enquiry in order to ascertain to what person the description in the will applies.

(b) A, by his will, leaves to B "my estate called Black Acre". It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what is the subject matter of the bequest; that is to say, what estate of the testator's is called Black Acre.

(c) A, by his will, leaves to B "the estate which I purchased of C". It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what estate the testator purchased of C.

Misnomer or misdescription of object.

75. (1) Where the words used in a will to designate or describe a legatee or a class of legatees sufficiently show what is meant, an error in the name or description shall not prevent the legacy from taking effect.

Section 63,
Act X of 1865.

(2) A mistake in the name of a legatee may be corrected by a description of him, and a mistake in the description of a legatee may be corrected by the name.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths a legacy to "Thomas, the second son of my brother, John". The testator has an only brother, named John, who has no son named Thomas, but has a second son whose name is William. William shall have the legacy.

(b) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of my brother John". The testator has an only brother, named John, whose first son is named Thomas, and whose second son is named William. Thomas shall have the legacy.

(c) The testator bequeaths his property "to A and B, the legitimate children of C". C has no legitimate child, but has two illegitimate children, A and B. The bequest to A and B takes effect, although they are illegitimate.

(d) The testator gives his residuary estate to be divided among "my seven children" and, proceeding to enumerate them, mentions six names only. This omission shall not prevent the seventh child from taking a share with the others.

(e) The testator, having six grandchildren, makes a bequest to "my six grandchildren" and proceeding to mention them by their Christian names, mentions one twice over omitting another altogether. The one whose name is not mentioned shall take a share with the others.

(f) The testator bequeaths "1,000 rupees to each of the three children of A". At the date of the will A has four children. Each of these four children shall, if he survives the testator, receive a legacy of 1,000 rupees.

When words may be supplied.

76. Where any word material to the full expression of the meaning has been omitted, it may be supplied by the context.

Section 64,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

The testator gives a legacy of "five hundred" to his daughter A, and a legacy of "five hundred rupees" to his daughter B. A shall take a legacy of five hundred rupees.

Rejection of erroneous particulars in description of subject.

77. If the thing which the testator intended to bequeath can be sufficiently identified from the description of it given in the will, but some parts of the description do not apply, such parts of the description shall be rejected as erroneous, and the bequest shall take effect.

Section 65,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B "my marsh-lands lying in L, and in the occupation of X". The testator had marsh-lands lying in L, but had no marsh-lands in the occupation of X. The words "in the occupation of X" shall be rejected as erroneous and the marsh-lands of the testator lying in L shall pass by the bequest.

(b) The testator bequeaths to A "my zamindari of Rampur". He had an estate at Rampur but it was a taluq and not a zamindari. The taluq passes by this bequest.

When part of description may not be rejected as erroneous.

78. If a will mentions several circumstances as descriptive of the thing which the testator intends to bequeath, and there is any property of his in respect of which all those circumstances exist, the bequest shall be considered as limited to such property, and it shall not be lawful to reject any part of the description as erroneous, because the testator had other property to which such part of the description does not apply.

Section 66,
Act X of 1865.

Explanation.—In judging whether a case falls within the meaning of this section, any words which would be liable to rejection under section 77 shall be deemed to have been struck out of the will.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B "my marsh-lands lying in L, and in the occupation of X". The testator had marsh-lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The bequest shall be considered as limited to such of the testator's marsh-lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X.

(b) A bequeaths to B "my marsh-lands lying in L and in the occupation of X, comprising 1,000 bighas of lands". The testator had marsh-lands lying in L some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The measurement is wholly inapplicable to the marsh-lands of either class, or to the whole taken together. The measurement shall be considered as struck out of the will, and such of the testator's marsh-lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X shall alone pass by the bequest.

Extrinsic evidence admissible in cases of patent ambiguity.

79. Where the words of a will are unambiguous, but it is found by extrinsic evidence that they admit of applications, one only of which can have been intended by the testator, extrinsic evidence may be taken to show which of those applications was intended.

Section 67,
Act X of 1866

Illustrations.

(a) A man, having two cousins of the name of Mary, bequeaths a sum of money to "my cousin, Mary". It appears that there are two persons each answering the description in the will. That description, therefore, admits of two applications, only one of which can have been intended by the testator. Evidence is admissible to show which of the two applications was intended.

(b) A, by his will, leave to B "my estate called Sultanpur Khurd". It turns out that he had two estates called Sultanpur Khurd. Evidence is admissible to show which estate was intended.

Extrinsic evidence inadmissible in case of patent ambiguity or deficiency.

80. Where there is an ambiguity or deficiency on the face of a will, no extrinsic evidence as to the intentions of the testator shall be admitted.

Section 68,
Act X of 1866.

Illustrations.

(a) A man has an aunt, Caroline, and a cousin, Mary, and has no aunt of the name of Mary. By his will he bequeaths 1,000 rupees to "my aunt, Caroline" and 1,000 rupees to "my cousin, Mary" and afterwards bequeaths 2,000 rupees to "my before mentioned aunt, Mary". There is no person to whom the description given in the will can apply, and evidence is not admissible to show who was meant by "my before-mentioned aunt, Mary". The bequest is therefore void for uncertainty under section 88.

(b) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to leaving a blank for the name of the legatee. Evidence is not admissible to show what name the testator intended to insert.

(c) A bequeaths to B rupees, or "my estate of ". Evidence is not admissible to show what sum or what estate the testator intended to insert.

Meaning of clause to be collected from entire will.

81. The meaning of any clause in a will is to be collected from the entire instrument, and all its parts are to be construed with reference to each other.

Section 69,
Act X of 1866.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator gives to B a specific fund or property at the death of A, and by a subsequent clause gives the whole of his property to A. The effect of the several clauses taken together is to vest the specific fund or property in A for life, and after his decease in B; it appearing from the bequest to B that the testator meant to use in a restricted sense the words in which he describes what he gives to A.

(b) Where a testator having an estate, one part of which is called Black Acre, bequeaths the whole of his estate to A, and in another part of his will bequeaths Black Acre to B; the latter bequest is to be read as an exception out of the first as if he had said "I give Black Acre to B, and all the rest of my estate to A".

When words may be understood in restricted sense, and when in sense wider than usual.

82. General words may be understood in a restricted sense where it may be collected from the will that the testator meant to use them in a restricted sense; and words may be understood in a wider sense than that which they usually bear, where it may be collected from the other words of the will that the testator meant to use them in such wider sense.

Section 70,
Act X of 1866.

Illustrations.

(a) A testator gives to A "my farm in the occupation of B," and to C "all my marsh-lands in L." Part of the farm in the occupation of B consists of marsh-lands in L, and the testator also has other marsh-lands in L. The general words, "all my marsh-lands in L," are restricted by the gift to A. A takes the whole of the farm in the occupation of B, including that proportion of the farm which consists of marsh-lands in L.

(b) The testator (a sailor on ship-board) bequeathed to his mother his gold ring, buttons and chests of clothes, and to his friend, A (a shipmate), his red box, clasp-knife and all things not before bequeathed. The testator's share in a house does not pass to A under this bequest.

(c) A, by his will, bequeathed to B all his household furniture, plate, linen, china, books, pictures and all other goods of whatever kind; and afterwards bequeathed to B a specified part of his property. Under the first bequest, B is entitled only to such articles of the testator's as are of the same nature with the articles therein enumerated.

Which of two possible constructions preferred.

83. Where a clause is susceptible of two meanings according to one of which it has some effect, and according to the other of which it can have none, the former shall be preferred.

Section 71,
Act X of 1865

No part rejected, if it can be reasonably construed

84. No part of a will shall be rejected as destitute of meaning if it is possible to put a reasonable construction upon it.

Section 72,
Act X of 1865.

Interpretation of words repeated in different parts of will.

85. If the same words occur in different parts of the same will, they shall be taken to have been used everywhere in the same sense, unless a contrary intention appears.

Section 73,
Act X of 1865

Testator's intention to be effectuated as far as possible.

86. The intention of the testator shall not be set aside because it cannot take effect to the full extent, but effect is to be given to it as far as possible.

Section 74,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

The testator by a will made on his death-bed bequeathed all his property to C. D. for life and after his decease to a certain hospital. The intention of the testator cannot take effect to its full extent, because the gift to the hospital is void under section 117, but it shall take effect so far as regards the gift to C. D.

The last of two inconsistent clauses prevails.

87. Where two clauses or gifts in a will are irreconcilable, so that they cannot possibly stand together, the last shall prevail.

Section 75,
Act X of 1865

Illustrations.

(a) The testator by the first clause of his will leaves his estate of Ramnagar "to A," and by the last clause of his will leaves it "to B and not to A." B shall have it.

(b) If a man at the commencement of his will gives his house to A, and at the close of it directs that his house shall be sold and the proceeds invested for the benefit of B, the latter disposition shall prevail.

Will or bequest void for uncertainty

88. A will or bequest not expressive of any definite intention is void for uncertainty.

Section 76,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

If a testator says "I bequeath goods to A," or "I bequeath to A" or "I leave to A all the goods mentioned in the schedule," and no schedule is found; or "I bequeath 'money,' 'wheat,' 'oil'" or the like, without saying how much; this is void.

Words describing subject refer to property answering description at testator's death

89. The description contained in a will of property, the subject of gift, shall, unless a contrary intention appears by the will, be deemed to refer to and comprise the property answering that description at the death of the testator.

Section 77,
Act X of 1865.

Power of appointment executed by general bequest

90. Unless a contrary intention appears by the will, a bequest of the estate of the testator shall be construed to include any property which he may have power to appoint by will to any object he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power; and a bequest of property described in a general manner shall be construed to include any property to which such description may extend, which he may have power to appoint by will to any object he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power.

Section 78,
Act X of 1865

Implied gift to objects of power in default of appointment

91. Where property is bequeathed to or for the benefit of certain objects as a specified person may appoint or for the benefit of certain objects in such proportions as a specified person may appoint, and the will does not provide for the event of no appointment being made; if the power given by the will is not exercised, the property belongs to all the objects of the power in equal shares.

Section 79,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

A, by his will, bequeaths a fund to his wife, for her life, and directs that at her death it shall be divided among his children in such proportions as she shall appoint. The widow dies without having made any appointment. The fund shall be divided equally among the children.

Bequest to "heirs," etc., of particular person without qualifying terms.

92. Where a bequest is made to the "heirs" or "right heirs" or "relations" or "nearest relations" or "family" or "kindred" or "nearest of kin" or "next-of-kin" of a particular person without any qualifying terms, and the class so designated forms the direct and independent object of the bequest, the property bequeathed shall be distributed as if it had belonged to such person, and he had died intestate in respect of it, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

Section 80,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A leaves his property "to my own nearest relations." The property goes to those who would be entitled to it if A had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

(b) A bequeaths 10,000 rupees "to B for his life, and, after the death of B, to my own right heirs." The legacy after B's death belongs to those who would be entitled to it if it had formed part of A's unbequeathed property.

(c) A leaves his property to B; but if B dies before him, to B's next of kin; B dies before A; the property devolves as if it had belonged to B, and he had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

(d) A leaves 10,000 rupees "to B for his life, and after his decease to the heirs of C." The legacy goes as if it had belonged to C and he had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of the legacy.

Bequest to "representatives," etc., of particular person.

93. Where a bequest is made to the "representatives" or "legal representatives" or "personal representatives" or "executors or administrators" of a particular person, and the class so designated forms the direct and independent object of the bequest, the property bequeathed shall be distributed as if it had belonged to such person and he had died intestate in respect of it.

Section 81,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

A bequest is made to the "legal representatives" of A. A has died intestate and insolvent. B is his administrator. B is entitled to receive the legacy, and shall apply it in the first place to the discharge of such part of A's debts as may remain unpaid; if there be any surplus, B shall pay it to those persons who at A's death would have been entitled to receive any property of A's which might remain after payment of his debts, or to the representatives of such persons.

Bequest without words of limitation.

94. Where property is bequeathed to any person, he is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless it appears from the will that only a restricted interest was intended for him.

Section 82,
Act X of 1865.

Bequest in alternative.

95. Where property is bequeathed to a person with a bequest in the alternative to another person or to a class of persons, then, if a contrary intention does not appear by the will, the legatee first named shall be entitled to the legacy if he is alive at the time when it takes effect; but if he is then dead, the person or class of persons named in the second branch of the alternative shall take the legacy.

Section 83,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations

(a) A bequest is made to A or to B. A survives the testator, B takes nothing.

(b) A bequest is made to A or to B. A dies after the date of the will, and before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(c) A bequest is made to A or to B. A is dead at the date of the will. The legacy goes to B.

(d) Property is bequeathed to A or his heirs. A survives the testator. A takes the property absolutely.

(e) Property is bequeathed to A or his nearest of kin. A dies in the lifetime of the testator. Upon the death of the testator, the bequest to A's nearest of kin takes effect.

(f) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B or his heirs. A and B survive the testator. B dies in A's lifetime. Upon A's death the bequest to the heirs of B takes effect.

(g) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B or his heirs. B dies in the testator's lifetime. A survives the testator. Upon A's death the bequest to the heirs of B takes effect.

Effect of words describing a class added to bequest to person.

96. Where property is bequeathed to a person, and words are added which describe a class of persons but do not denote them as direct objects of a distinct and independent gift, such person is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless a contrary intention appears by the will.

Section 84,
Act X of 1865

Illustrations.

(a) A bequest is made—to A and his children, to A and his children by his present wife,

to A and his heirs,
to A and the heirs of his body,
to A and the heirs male of his body,
to A and the heirs female of his body,
to A and his issue,
to A and his family,
to A and his descendants,
to A and his representatives, to A and his personal representatives, to A and his executors and administrators.

In each of these cases, A takes the whole interest which the testator had in the property.

(b) A bequest is made to A and his brothers. A and his brothers are jointly entitled to the legacy.

(c) A bequest is made to A for life and after his death to his issue. At the death of A the property belongs in equal shares to all persons who then answer the description of issue of A.

Bequest to class of persons under general description only

97. Where a bequest is made to a class of persons under a general description only, no one to whom the words of the description are not in their ordinary sense applicable shall take the legacy.

Section 85,
Act X of 1865

Construction of terms

98. In a will—

Section 86,
Act X of 1865

(a) the word "children" applies only to lineal descendants in the first degree;

(b) the word "grand-children" applies only to lineal descendants in the second degree of the person whose "children" or "grand-children" are spoken of;

(c) the words "nephews" and "nieces" apply only to children of brothers or sisters;

(d) the words "cousins," or "first cousins," or "cousins-german," apply only to children of brothers or of sisters of the father or mother of the person whose "cousins," or "first cousin," or "cousins-german," are spoken of;

(e) the words "first cousins once removed" apply only to children of cousins-german, or to cousins-german of a parent of the person whose "first cousins once removed" are spoken of;

(f) the words "second cousins" apply only to grand-children of brothers or of sisters of the grand-father or grand-mother of the person whose "second cousins" are spoken of;

(g) the words "issue" and "descendants" apply to all lineal descendants whatever of the person whose "issue" or "descendants" are spoken of;

(h) words expressive of collateral relationship apply alike to relatives of full and of half blood; and

(i) all words expressive of relationship apply to a child in the womb who is afterwards born alive.

Words expressing relationship denote only legitimate relatives or failing such relatives reputed legitimate.

99. In the absence of any intimation to the contrary in a will, the word "child," the word "son," the word "daughter," or any word which expresses relationship, is to be understood as denoting only a legitimate relative, or, where there is no such legitimate relative, a person who has acquired, at the date of the will, the reputation of being such relative.

Section 84,
Act X of 1861.

Illustrations.

(a) A, having three children, B, C and D, of whom B and C are legitimate and D is illegitimate, leaves his property to be equally divided among "my children". The property belongs to B and C in equal shares to the exclusion of D.

(b) A, having a niece of illegitimate birth, who has acquired the reputation of being his niece, and having no legitimate niece bequeaths a sum of money to his niece. The illegitimate niece is entitled to the legacy.

(c) A, having in his will enumerated his children, and named as one of them B, who is illegitimate, leaves a legacy to "my said children." B will take a share in the legacy along with the legitimate children.

(d) A leaves a legacy to "the children of B". B is dead and has left none but illegitimate children. All those who had at the date of the will acquired the reputation of being the children of B are objects of the gift.

(e) A bequeaths a legacy to "the children of B". B never had any legitimate child. C and D had, at the date of the will, acquired the reputation of being children of B. After the date of the will and before the death of the testator, E and F were born, and acquired the reputation of being children of B. Only C and D are objects of the bequest.

(f) A makes a bequest in favour of his child by a certain woman, not his wife. B had acquired at the date of the will the reputation of being the child of A by the woman designated. B takes the legacy.

(g) A makes a bequest in favour of his child to be born of a woman who never becomes his wife. The bequest is void.

(h) A makes a bequest in favour of the child of which a certain woman, not married to him, is pregnant. The bequest is valid.

Rules of construction where will purports to make two bequests to same person.

100. Where a will purports to make two bequests to the same person, and a question arises whether the testator intended to make the second bequest instead of or in addition to the first; if there is nothing in the will to show what he intended, the following rules shall have effect in determining the construction to be put upon the will:—

Section 84,
Act X of 1865.

(a) If the same specific thing is bequeathed twice to the same legatee in the same will or in the will and again in the codicil, he is entitled to receive that specific thing only.

(b) Where one and the same will or one and the same codicil purports to make, in two places, a bequest to the same person of the same quantity or amount of anything, he shall be entitled to one such legacy only.

(c) Where two legacies of unequal amount are given to the same person in the same will, or in the same codicil, the legatee is entitled to both.

(d) Where two legacies, whether equal or unequal in amount, are given to the same legatee, one by a will and the other by a codicil, or each by different codicil, the legatee is entitled to both legacies.

Explanation.—In clauses (a) to (d) of this section, the word "will" does not include a codicil.

Illustrations.

(a) A, having ten shares, and no more, in the Imperial Bank of India made his will, which contains near its commencement the words "I bequeath my ten shares in the Imperial Bank of India to B". After other bequests, the will concludes with the words "and I bequeath my ten shares in the Imperial Bank of India to B". B is entitled simply to receive A's ten shares in the Imperial Bank of India.

(b) A, having one diamond ring, which was given him by B, bequeaths to C the diamond ring which was given by B. A afterwards made a codicil to his will, and thereby, after giving other legacies, he bequeathed to C the diamond ring which was given him by B. C can claim nothing except the diamond ring which was given to A by B.

(c) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees and afterwards, in the same will, repeats the bequest in the same words. B is entitled to one legacy of 5,000 rupees only.

(d) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees and afterwards, in the same will, bequeaths to B the sum of 6,000 rupees. B is entitled to receive 11,000 rupees.

(e) A, by his will, bequeaths to B 5,000 rupees and by a codicil to the will he bequeaths to him 5,000 rupees. B is entitled to receive 10,000 rupees.

(f) A, by one codicil to his will, bequeaths to B 5,000 rupees and by another codicil bequeaths to him 6,000 rupees. B is entitled to receive 11,000 rupees.

(g) A, by his will, bequeaths "500 rupees to B, because she was my nurse," and in another part of the will bequeaths 500 rupees to B "because she went to England with my children." B is entitled to receive 1,000 rupees.

(h) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees and also, in another part of the will, an annuity of 400 rupees. B is entitled to both legacies.

(i) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees and also bequeaths to him the sum of 5,000 rupees if he shall attain the age of 18. B is entitled absolutely to one sum of 5,000 rupees, and takes a contingent interest in another sum of 5,000 rupees.

Constitution of residuary legatee.

101. A residuary legatee may be constituted by any words that show an intention on the part of the testator that the person designated shall take the surplus or residue of his property.

Section 89,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A makes her will, consisting of several testamentary papers, in one of which are contained the following words:—"I think there will be something left, after all funeral expenses, etc., to give to B, now at school, towards equipping him to any profession he may hereafter be appointed to". B is constituted residuary legatee.

(b) A makes his will, with the following passage at the end of it:—"I believe there will be found sufficient in my banker's hands to defray and discharge my debts, which I hereby desire B to do, and keep the residue for her own use and pleasure". B is constituted the residuary legatee.

(c) A bequeaths all his property to B, except certain stocks and funds, which he bequeaths to C. B is the residuary legatee.

legatee entitled.

102. Under a residuary bequest, the legatee is entitled to all property belonging to the testator at the time of his death, of which he has not made any other testamentary disposition which is capable of taking effect.

Section 90,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

A by his will bequeaths certain legacies, of which one is void under section 117, and another lapses by the death of the legatee. He bequeaths the residue of his property to B. After the date of his will, A purchases a zamindari, which belongs to him at the time of his death. B is entitled to the two legacies and the zamindari as part of the residue.

Time of vesting legacy in general terms.

103. If a legacy is given in general terms, without specifying the time when it is to be paid, the legatee has a vested interest in it from the day of the death of the testator, and, if he dies without having received it, it shall pass to his representatives.

Section 91,
Act X of 1865.

In what case legacy lapses.

104. (1) If the legatee does not survive the testator, the legacy cannot take effect, but shall lapse and form part of the residue of the testator's property, unless it appears by the will that the testator intended that it should go to some other person.

Section 92,
Act X of 1865.

(2) In order to entitle the representatives of the legatee to receive the legacy, it must be proved that he survived the testator.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator bequeaths to B "500 rupees which B owes me." B dies before the testator; the legacy lapses.

(b) A bequest is made to A and his children. A dies before the testator, or happens to be dead when the will is made. The legacy to A and his children lapses.

(c) A legacy is given to A, and, in case of his dying before the testator, to B. A dies before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(d) A sum of money is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. A dies in the lifetime of the testator; B survives the testator. The bequest to B takes effect.

(e) A sum of money is bequeathed to A on his completing his eighteenth year, and in case he should die before he completes his eighteenth year, to B. A completes his eighteenth year and dies in the lifetime of the testator. The legacy to A lapses, and the bequest to B does not take effect.

(f) The testator and the legatee perished in the same shipwreck. There is no evidence to show which died first. The legacy lapses.

Legacy does not lapse if one of two joint legatees die before testator

105. If a legacy is given to two persons jointly, and one of them dies before the testator, the other legatee takes the whole.

Act X
1865

Illustration.

The legacy is simply to A and B. A dies before the testator. B takes the legacy.

Effect of words showing testator's intention to give distinct shares.

106. If a legacy is given to legatees in words which show that the testator intended to give them distinct shares of it, then, if any legatee dies before the testator, so much of the legacy as was intended for him shall fall into the residue of the testator's property.

Section 91,
Act X of 1865

Illustration.

A sum of money is bequeathed to A, B and C, to be equally divided among them. A dies before the testator. B and C shall only take so much as they would have had if A had survived the testator.

When lapsed share goes as undisposed of.

107. Where a share which lapses is a part of the general residue bequeathed by the will, that share shall go as undisposed of.

Section 95,
Act X of 1865

Illustration.

The testator bequeaths the residue of his estate to A, B and C, to be equally divided between them. A dies before the testator. His one third of the residue goes as undisposed of.

When bequest to testator's child or lineal descendant does not lapse on his death in testator's lifetime.

108. Where a bequest has been made to any child or other lineal descendant of the testator and the legatee dies in the lifetime of the testator, but any lineal descendant of his survives the testator, the bequest shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of the legatee had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention appears by the will.

Section 96,

Illustration.

A makes his will, by which he bequeaths a sum of money to his son, B, for his own absolute use and benefit. B dies before A, leaving a son, C, who survives A, and having made his will whereby he bequeaths all his property to his widow, D. The money goes to D.

Bequest to A for benefit of B does not lapse by A's death.

109. Where a bequest is made to one person for the benefit of another, the legacy does not lapse by the death, in the testator's lifetime, of the person to whom the bequest is made.

Section 97,
Act X of 1865.

Survivorship in case of bequest to described class.

110. Where a bequest is made simply to a described class of persons, the thing bequeathed shall go only to such as are alive at the testator's death.

Section 98,
Act X of 1865.

Exceptions.—If property is bequeathed to a class of persons described as standing in a particular degree of kindred to a specified individual, but their possession of it is deferred until a time later than the death of the testator by reason of a prior bequest or otherwise, the property shall at that time go to such of them as are then alive, and to the representatives of any of them who have died since the death of the testator.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to "the children of B" without saying when it is to be distributed among them. B had died previous to the date of the will, leaving three children, C, D and E. E died after the date of the will, but before the death of A. C and D survive A. The legacy shall belong to C and D, to the exclusion of the representatives of E.

(b) A bequeaths a legacy to the children of B. At the time of the testator's death, B has no children. The bequest is void.

(c) A lease for years of a house was bequeathed to A for his life, and after his decease to the children of B. At the death of the testator, B had two children living, C and D, and he never had any other child. Afterwards, during the lifetime of A, C died, leaving E, his executor. D has survived A. D and E are jointly entitled to so much of the lease-hold term as remains unexpired.

(d) A sum of money was bequeathed to A for her life, and after her decease, to the children of B. At the death of the testator, B had two children living, C and D, and, after that event, two children, E and F, were born to B. C and E died in the lifetime of A, C having made a will, E having made no will. A has died, leaving D and F surviving her. The legacy is to be divided into four equal parts, one of which is to be paid to the executor of C, one to D, one to the administrator of E and one to F.

(e) A bequeaths one-third of his lands to B for his life, and after his decease to the sisters of B. At the death of the testator, B had two sisters living, C and D, and after that event another sister E was born. C died during the life of B; D and E have survived B. One-third of A's lands belong to D, E and representatives of C, in equal shares.

(f) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to B for life and after his death equally among the children of C. Up to the death of B, C had not had any child. The bequest after the death of B is void.

(g) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to "all the children born or to be born" of B to be divided among them at the death of C. At the death of the testator, B has two children living, D and E. After the death of the testator, but in the life time of C, two other children, F and G, are born to B. After the death of C, another child is born to B. The legacy belongs to D, E, F and G, to the exclusion of the after-born child of B.

(h) A bequeaths a fund to the children of B, to be divided among them when the oldest shall attain majority. At the testator's death, B had one child living, named C. He afterwards had two other children, named D and E. E died, but C and D were living when C attained majority. The fund belongs to C, D and the representatives of E, to the exclusion of any child who may be born to B after C's attaining majority.

CHAPTER VII.

OF VOID BEQUESTS.

Bequest to person by a particular description who is not in existence at testator's death.

111. When a bequest is made to a person by a particular description, and there is no person in existence at the testator's death who answers the description, the bequest is void.

Section 99,
Act X of 1865

Exception.—If property is bequeathed to a person described as standing in a particular degree of kindred to a specified individual, but his possession of it is deferred until a time later than the death of the testator, by reason of a prior bequest or otherwise; and if a person answering the description is alive at the death of the testator, or comes into existence between that event and such later time, the property shall, at such later time, go to that person, or, if he is dead, to his representatives.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to the eldest son of B. At the death of the testator, B has no son. The bequest is void.

(b) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to B for life, and after his death to the eldest son of C. At the death of the testator, C had no son. Afterwards, during the life of B, a son is born to C. Upon B's death the legacy goes to C's son.

(c) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to B for life, and after his death to the eldest son of C. At the death of the testator, C had no son; afterwards, during the life of B, a son, named D, is born to C. D dies, then B dies. The legacy goes to the representative of D.

(d) A bequeaths his estate of Green Acre to B for life, and at his decease to the eldest son of C. Up to the death of B, C has had no son. The bequest to C's eldest son is void.

(e) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to the eldest son of C, to be paid to him after the death of B. At the death of testator, C has no son, but a son is afterwards born to him during the life of B and is alive at B's death. C's son is entitled to the 1,000 rupees.

Bequest to person not in existence at testator's death, subject to prior bequest.

112. Where a bequest is made to a person not in existence at the time of the testator's death, subject to a prior bequest contained in the will, the later bequest shall be void, unless it comprises the whole of the remaining interest of the testator in the thing bequeathed.

Section 100,
Act X of 1866.

Illustrations.

(a) Property is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his eldest son for life and after the death of the latter to his eldest son. At the time of the testator's death, A has no son. Here the bequest to A's eldest son is a bequest to a person not in existence at the testator's death. It is not a bequest of the whole interest that remains to the testator. The bequest to A's eldest son for his life is void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his daughters. A survives the testator. A has daughters some of whom were not in existence at the testator's death. The bequest to A's daughters comprises the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The bequest to A's daughters is valid.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his daughters, with a direction that, if any of them marries under the age of eighteen, her portion shall be settled so that it may belong to herself for life and may be divisible among her children after her death. A has no daughters living at the time of the testator's death, but has daughters born afterwards who survive him. Here the direction for a settlement has the effect in the case of each daughter who marries under eighteen of substituting for the absolute bequest to her a bequest to her merely for her life; that is to say, a bequest to a person not in existence at the time of the testator's death of something which is less than the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The direction to settle the fund is void.

(d) A bequeaths a sum of money to B for life, and directs that upon the death of B the fund shall be settled upon his daughters, so that the portion of each daughter may belong to herself for life, and may be divided among her children after her death. B has no daughter living at the time of the testator's death. In this case the only bequest to the daughters of B is contained in the direction to settle the fund, and this direction amounts to a bequest to persons not yet born, of a life-interest in the fund, that is to say, of something which is less than the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The direction to settle the fund upon the daughters of B is void.

Rules against perpetuity.

113. No bequest is valid whereby the vesting of the thing bequeathed may be delayed beyond the life-time of one or more persons living at the testator's death and the minority of some person who shall be in existence at the expiration of that period, and to whom, if he attains full age, the thing bequeathed is to belong.

Section 101,
Act X of 1866.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life and after his death to B for his life; and after B's death to such of the sons of B as shall first attain the age of 25. A and B survive the testator. Here the son of B who shall first attain the age of 25 may be a son born after the death of the testator; such son may not attain 25 until more than 18 years have elapsed from the death of the longer liver of A and B; and the vesting of the fund may thus be delayed beyond the lifetime of A and B and the minority of the sons of B. The bequest after B's death is void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life, and after B's death to such of B's sons as shall first attain the age of 25. B dies in the lifetime of the testator, leaving one or more sons. In this case the sons of B are persons living at the time of the testator's decease, and the time when either of them will attain 25 necessarily falls within his own lifetime. The bequest is valid.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life, with a direction that after B's death it shall be divided amongst such of B's children as shall attain the age of 18, but that, if no child of B shall attain that age, the fund shall go to C. Here the time for the division of the fund must arrive at the latest at the expiration of 18 years from the death of B, a person living at the testator's decease. All the bequests are valid.

(d) A fund is bequeathed to trustees for the benefit of the testator's daughters, with a direction that, if any of them marry under age, her share of the fund shall be settled so as to devolve after her death upon such of her children as shall attain the age of 18. Any daughter of the testator to whom the direction applies must be in existence at his decease, and any portion of the fund which may eventually be settled as directed must vest not later than 18 years from the death of the daughters whose share it was. All these provisions are valid.

Bequest to a class some of whom may come under rules in sections 112 and 113

114. If a bequest is made to a class of persons, with regard to some of whom it is inoperative by reason of the provisions of section 112 or section 113, such bequest shall be wholly void.

Section 102,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to all his children who shall attain the age of 25. A survives the testator, and has some children living at the testator's death. Each child of A's living at the testator's death must attain the age of 25 (if at all) within the limits allowed for a bequest. But A may have children after the testator's decease, some of whom may not attain the age of 25 until more than 18 years have elapsed after the decease of A. The bequest to A's children, therefore, is inoperative as to any child born after the testator's death; and, as it is given to all his children as a class it is not good as to any division of that class, but is wholly void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B, C, D and all other children of A who shall attain the age of 25. B, C, D are children of A living at the testator's decease. In all other respects the case is the same as that supposed in Illustrations (a). The mention of B, C, and D by name does not prevent the bequest from being regarded as a bequest to a class, and the bequest is wholly void.

Bequest to take effect on failure of bequest void under sections 112, 113 or 114.

115. Where a bequest is void by reasons of any of the provisions of section 112, section 113, or section 114, any bequest contained in the same will, and intended to take effect after or upon failure of such prior bequest, is also void.

Section 103,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to such of his sons as shall first attain the age of 25, for his life, and after the decease of such son to B. A and B survive the testator. The bequest to B is intended to take effect after the bequest to such of the sons of A as shall first attain the age of 25, which bequest is void under section 113. The bequest to B is void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to such of his sons as shall first attain the age of 25, and, if no son of A shall attain that age, to B. A and B survive the testator. The bequest to B is intended to take effect upon failure of the bequest to such of A's sons as shall first attain the age of 25, which bequest is void under section 113. The bequest to B is void.

Effect of direction for accumulation

116. A direction to accumulate the income arising from any property shall be void; and the property shall be disposed of as if no accumulation had been directed.

Section 104,
Act X of 1865.

Exception.—Where the property is immoveable, or where accumulation is directed to be made from the death of the testator, the direction shall be valid in respect only of the income arising from the property within one year next following the testator's death; and at the end of the year such property and income shall be disposed of respectively, as if the period during which the accumulation has been directed to be made had elapsed.

Illustrations.

(a) The will directs that the sum of 10,000 rupees shall be invested in Government securities, and the income accumulated for 20 years, and that the principal, together with the accumulations, shall then be divided between A, B and C. A, B, and C are entitled to receive the sum of 10,000 rupees at the end of a year from the testator's death.

(b) The will directs that 10,000 rupees shall be invested, and the income accumulated until A shall marry, and shall then be paid to him. A is entitled to receive 10,000 rupees at the end of a year from the testator's death.

(c) The will directs that the rents of the farm of Sultanpur shall be accumulated for ten years, and that the accumulation shall be then paid to the eldest son of A. At the death of the testator, A has an eldest son living, named B. B shall receive, at the end of one year from the testator's death, the rents which have accrued during the year, together with any interest which may have been made by investing them.

(d) The will directs that the rents of the farm of Sultanpur shall be accumulated for ten years, and that the accumulation shall then be paid to the eldest son of A. At the death of the testator, A has no son. The bequest is void.

(e) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, to be paid to him when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs the interest to be accumulated till he shall arrive at that age. At A's death the legacy becomes vested in B; and so much of the interest as is not required for his maintenance and education is accumulated, not by reason of the direction contained in the will, but in consequence of B's minority.

Bequest to religious or charitable uses.

117. No man having a nephew or niece or any nearer relative shall have power to bequeath any property to religious or charitable uses, except by a will executed not less than twelve months before his death, and deposited within six months from its execution in some place provided by law for the safe custody of the wills of living persons.

Section 106, Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

A having a nephew makes a bequest by a will not executed and deposited as required—

- for the relief of poor people ;
- for the maintenance of sick soldiers ;
- for the erection or support of a hospital ;
- for the education and preferment of orphans ;
- for the support of scholars ;
- for the erection or support of a school ;
- for the building and repairs of a bridge ;
- for the making of roads ;
- for the erection or support of a church ;
- for the repairs of a church ;
- for the benefit of ministers of religion ;
- for the formation or support of a public garden

All these bequests are void.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE VESTING OF LEGACIES.

Date of vesting of legacy when payment or possession postponed

118. Where by the terms of a bequest the legatee is not entitled to immediate possession of the thing bequeathed, a right to receive it at the proper time shall, unless a contrary intention appears by the will, become vested in the legatee on the testator's death, and shall pass to the legatee's representatives if he dies before that time and without having received the legacy, and in such cases the legacy is from the testator's death said to be vested in interest.

Section 106, Act X of 1865

Explanation.—An intention that a legacy to any person shall not become vested in interest in him is not to be inferred merely from a provision whereby the payment or possession of the thing bequeathed is postponed, or whereby a prior interest therein is bequeathed to some other person, or whereby the income arising from the fund bequeathed is directed to be accumulated until the time of payment arrives, or from a provision that, if a particular event shall happen, the legacy shall go over to another person.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B 100 rupees, to be paid to him at the death of C. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B, and if he dies before C, his representatives are entitled to the legacy.

(b) A bequeaths to B 100 rupees, to be paid to him upon his attaining the age of 18. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. On the testator's death the legacy to B becomes vested in interest in B.

(d) A fund is bequeathed to A until B attains the age of 18 and then to B. The legacy to B is vested in interest from the testator's death.

(e) A bequeaths the whole of his property to B upon trust to pay certain debts out of the income, and then to make over the fund to C. At A's death the gift to C becomes vested in interest in him.

(f) A fund is bequeathed to A, B and C in equal shares, to be paid to them on their attaining the age of 18, respectively, with a proviso that, if all of them die under the age of 18, the legacy shall devolve upon D. On the death of the testator, the shares vested in interest in A, B and C, subject to be divested in case A, B and C shall all die under 18, and, upon the death of any of them (except the last survivor) under the age of 18, his vested interest passes, so subject to his representatives.

Date of vesting
when legacy contingent upon specified uncertain event

119. (1) A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall happen does not vest until that event happens.

Section 107,
Act X of 1865

(2) A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen does not vest until the happening of that event becomes impossible.

(3) In either case, until the condition has been fulfilled, the interest of the legatee is called contingent.

Exception.—Where a fund is bequeathed to any person upon his attaining a particular age, and the will also gives to him absolutely the income to arise from the fund before he reaches that age, or directs the income, or so much of it as may be necessary, to be applied for his benefit, the bequest of the fund is not contingent.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to D in case A, B and C shall all die under the age of 18. D has a contingent interest in the legacy until A, B and C all die under 18, or one of them attains that age.

(b) A sum of money is bequeathed to A "in case he shall attain the age of 18", or "when he shall attain the age of 18". A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition is fulfilled by his attaining that age.

(c) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B if B shall then be living; but if B shall not be then living to C. A, B and C survive the testator. B and C each take a contingent interest in the estate until the event which is to vest it in one or in the other has happened.

(d) An estate is bequeathed as in the case last supposed. B dies in the lifetime of A and C. Upon the death of B, C acquires a vested right to obtain possession of the estate upon A's death.

(e) A legacy is bequeathed to A when she shall attain the age of 18 or shall marry under that age with the consent of B, with a proviso that, if she neither attains 18 nor marries under that age with B's consent, the legacy shall go to C. A and C each take a contingent interest in the legacy. A attains the age of 18. A becomes absolutely entitled to the legacy although she may have married under 18 without the consent of B.

(f) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall marry and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until the condition is fulfilled by A's marrying.

(g) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall take advantage of any law for the relief of insolvent debtors, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until A takes advantage of such a law.

(h) An estate is bequeathed to A if he shall pay 500 rupees to B. A's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has paid 500 rupees to B.

(i) A leaves his farm of Sultanpur Khurd to B, if B shall convey his own farm of Sultanpur Buzurg to C. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has conveyed the latter farm to C.

(j) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not marry C within five years after the testator's death. A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition is fulfilled by the expiration of the five years without B's having married C, or by the occurrence within that period of an event which makes the fulfilment of the condition impossible.

(k) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not make any provision for him by will. The legacy is contingent until B's death.

(l) A bequeaths to B 500 rupees a year upon his attaining the age of 18, and directs that the interest, or a competent part thereof, shall be applied for his benefit until he reaches that age. The legacy is vested.

(m) A bequeaths to B 500 rupees when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs that a certain sum, out of another fund, shall be applied for his maintenance until he arrives at that age. The legacy is contingent.

Vesting of interest in bequest to such members of a class as shall have attained particular age.

120. Where a bequest is made only to such members of a class as shall have attained a particular age, a person who has not attained that age cannot have a vested interest in the legacy.

Section 108,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

A fund is bequeathed to such of the children of A as shall attain the age of 18, with a direction that, while any child of A shall be under the age of 18, the income of the share to which it may be presumed he will be eventually entitled, shall be applied for his maintenance and education. No child of A who is under the age of 18 has a vested interest in the bequest.

CHAPTER IX.

OF ONEROUS BEQUESTS.

Onerous bequests.

121. Where a bequest imposes an obligation on the legatee, he can take nothing by it unless he accepts it fully.

Section 109,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

A, having shares in (X) a prosperous joint stock company, and also shares in (Y), a joint stock company in difficulties, in respect of which shares heavy calls are expected to be made, bequeaths to B all his shares in joint stock companies; B refuses to accept the shares in (Y). He forfeits the shares in (X).

One of two separate and independent bequests to same person may be accepted, and other refused.

122. Where a will contains two separate and independent bequests to the same person, the legatee is at liberty to accept one of them and refuse the other, although the former may be beneficial and the latter onerous.

Section 110,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

A, having a lease for a term of years of a house at a rent which he and his representatives are bound to pay during the term, and which is higher than the house can be let for, bequeaths to B the lease and a sum of money. B refuses to accept the lease. He shall not by this refusal forfeit the money.

CHAPTER X.

OF CONTINGENT BEQUESTS.

Bequest contingent upon specified uncertain event, no time being mentioned for its occurrence.

123. Where a legacy is given if a specified uncertain event shall happen and no time is mentioned in the will for the occurrence of that event, the legacy cannot take effect, unless such event happens before the period when the fund bequeathed is payable or distributable.

Section 111,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and, in case of his death, to B. If A survives the testator, the legacy to B does not take effect.

(b) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and, in case of his death without children, to B. If A survives the testator or dies in his lifetime leaving a child, the legacy to B does not take effect.

(c) A legacy is bequeathed to A when and if he attains the age of 18, and, in case of his death, to B. A attains the age of 18. The legacy to B does not take effect.

(d) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and, after his death, to B, and, "in case of B's death without children", to C. The words "in case of B's death without children" are to be understood as meaning in case B dies without children during the lifetime of A.

(e) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and, after his death to B, and, "in case of B's death", to C. The words "in case of B's death" are to be considered as meaning "in case B dies in the lifetime of A".

Bequest to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period not specified.

124. Where a bequest is made to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period, but the exact period is not specified, the legacy shall go to such of them as are alive at the time of payment or distribution, unless a contrary intention appears by the will.

Section 112,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) Property is bequeathed to A and B to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. If both A and B survive the testator, the legacy is equally divided between them. If A dies before the testator, and B survives the testator, it goes to B.

(b) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and, after his death, to B and C, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. B dies during the life of A; C survives A. At A's death the legacy goes to C.

(c) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, or the survivor, with a direction that, if B should not survive the testator, his children are to stand in his place. C dies during the life of the testator; B survives the testator, but dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of B.

(d) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and, after his death, to B and C, with direction that, in case either of them dies in the lifetime of A, the whole shall go to the survivor. B dies in the lifetime of A. Afterwards C dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of C.

CHAPTER XI.

OF CONDITIONAL BEQUESTS.

Bequest upon impossible condition

125. A bequest upon an impossible condition is void.

Section 113,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) An estate is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall walk 100 miles in an hour. The bequest is void.

(b) A bequeaths 500 rupees to B on condition that he shall marry A's daughter. A's daughter was dead at the date of the will. The bequest is void.

Bequest upon illegal or immoral condition.

126. A bequest upon a condition, the fulfilment of which would be contrary to law or to morality, is void.

Section 114,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths 500 rupees to B on condition that he shall murder C. The bequest is void.

(b) A bequeaths 5,000 rupees to his niece if she will desert her husband. The bequest is void.

Fulfilment of condition precedent to vesting of legacy

127. Where a will imposes a condition to be fulfilled before the legatee can take a vested interest in the thing bequeathed, the condition shall be considered to have been fulfilled if it has been substantially complied with.

Section 115,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C, D and E. A marries with the written consent of B, C is present at the marriage. D sends a present to A previous to the marriage. E has been personally informed by A of his intentions, and has made no objection. A has fulfilled the condition.

(b) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. D dies. A marries with the consent of B and C. A has fulfilled the condition.

(c) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A marries in the lifetime of B, C and D, with the consent of B and C only. A has not fulfilled the condition.

(d) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A obtains the unconditional assent of B, C and D. A obtains the unconditional assent of B, C and D to his marriage with E. Afterwards B, C and D capriciously retract their consent. A marries E. A has fulfilled the condition.

(e) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A marries without the consent of B, C and D, but obtains their consent after the marriage. A has not fulfilled the condition.

(f) A makes his will whereby he bequeaths a sum of money to B if B shall marry with the consent of A's executors. B marries during the lifetime of A, and A afterwards expresses his approbation of the marriage. A dies. The bequest to B takes effect.

(g) A legacy is bequeathed to A if he executes a certain document within a time specified in the will. The document is executed by A within a reasonable time, but not within the time specified in the will. A has not performed the condition, and is not entitled to receive the legacy.

Bequest to A
and on failure of prior bequest to B.

128. Where there is a bequest to one person and a bequest of the same thing to another, if the prior bequest shall fail, the second bequest shall take effect upon the failure of the prior bequest although the failure may not have occurred in the manner contemplated by the testator.

Section 116,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths a sum of money to his own children surviving him, and, if they all die under 18, to B. A dies without having ever had a child. The bequest to B takes effect.

(b) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, on condition that he shall execute a certain document within three months after A's death, and, if he should neglect to do so, to C. B dies in the testator's lifetime. The bequest to C takes effect.

When second bequest not to take effect on failure of first.

129. Where the will shows an intention that the second bequest shall take effect only in the event of the first bequest failing in a particular manner, the second bequest shall not take effect, unless the prior bequest fails in that particular manner.

Section 117

Illustration.

A makes a bequest to his wife, but in case she should die in his lifetime, bequeaths to B that which he had bequeathed to her. A and his wife perish together, under circumstances which make it impossible to prove that she died before him, the bequest to B does not take effect.

Bequest over conditional upon happening or not happening of specified uncertain event.

130. (1) A bequest may be made to any person with the condition superadded that, in case a specified uncertain event shall happen, the thing bequeathed shall go to another person, or that, in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen, the thing bequeathed shall go over to another person.

Section 118,
Act X of 1865.

(2) In each case the ulterior bequest is subject to the rules contained in sections 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 128 and 129.

Illustrations.

(a) A sum of money is bequeathed to A, to be paid to him at the age of 18, and if he shall die before he attains that age, to B. A takes a vested interest in the legacy subject to be divested and to go to B in case A dies under 18.

(b) An estate is bequeathed to A with a proviso that if A shall dispute competency of the testator to make a will, the estate shall go to B. A disputes the competency of the testator to make a will. The estate goes to B.

(c) A sum of money is bequeathed to A for life, and, after his death, to B; but if B shall then be dead, leaving a son, such son is to stand in the place of B. B takes a vested interest in the legacy, subject to be divested if he dies leaving a son in A's lifetime.

Section 154,
Act X of 1865.

(2) A contrary intention shall not be inferred from any direction which the will may contain for the payment of the testator's debts generally.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B the diamond ring given him by C. At A's death the ring is held in pawn by B, to whom it has been pledged by A. It is the duty of A's executors, if the state of the testator's assets will allow them, to allow B to redeem the ring.

Exoneration of legatee's immovable property for which land-revenue or rent payable periodically.

168. Where there is a bequest of any interest in immovable property in respect of which payment in the nature of land-revenue or in the nature of rent has to be made periodically, the estate of the testator shall (as between such estate and the legatee) make good such payments or a proportion of them, as the case may be, up to the day of his death.

Section 156, Act X of 1865.

169. In the absence of any direction in the will, where there is a specific bequest of stock in a joint stock company, if any call or other payment is due from the testator at the time of his death in respect of the stock, such call or payment shall, as between the testator's estate and the legatee, be borne by the estate; but, if any call or other payment becomes due in respect of such stock after the testator's death, the same shall, as between the testator's estate and the legatee, be borne by the legatee, if he accepts the bequest.

These payments must be borne by A's estate.

A bequeaths these shares to B. The estate of A must make good the payments which were necessary to complete A's title.

Period of vesting where will directs that annuity be provided out of proceeds of property, or out of property generally, or where money bequeathed to be invested in purchase of annuity 173. Where the will directs that an annuity shall be provided for any person out of the proceeds of property or out of property generally, or where money is bequeathed to be invested in the purchase of any annuity for any person, on the testator's death the legacy vests in interest in the legatee, and he is entitled at his option to have an annuity purchased for him or to receive the money appropriated for that purpose by the will.

Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A by his will directs that his executors shall, out of his property, purchase an annuity of 1,000 rupees for B. B is entitled at his option to have an annuity of 1,000 rupees for his life purchased for him, or to receive such a sum as will be sufficient for the purchase of such an annuity.

1865.

Where gift of annuity and residuary gift, whole annuity to be first satisfied.

1865.

Child primæ facie entitled to legacy as well as portion.

Section 165, Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

A, by articles entered into in contemplation of his marriage with B, covenanted that he would pay to each of the daughters of the intended marriage a portion of 20,000 rupees on her marriage. CHAPTER XXII.

OF ELECTION.

Circumstances in which election takes place.

179. Where a person, by his will, professes to dispose of something which he has no right to dispose of, the person to whom the thing belongs shall elect either to confirm such disposition or to dissent from it, and, in the latter case, he shall give up any benefits which may have been provided for him by the will.

Section 167, Act X of 1865.

Devolution of interest relinquished by owner.

180. An interest relinquished in the circumstances stated in section 179 shall devolve as if it had not been disposed of by the will in favour of the legatee, subject, nevertheless, to the charge of making good to the disappointed legatee the amount or value of the gift attempted to be given to him by the will.

Section 168, Act X of 1865.

Testator's belief as to his ownership immaterial.

181. The provisions of sections 179 and 180 apply whether the testator does or does not believe that which he professes to dispose of by his will to be his own.

Section 169, Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) The farm of Sultanpur was the property of C. A bequeathed it to B, giving a legacy of 1,000 rupees to C. C has elected to retain his farm of Sultanpur, which is worth 800 rupees. C forfeits his legacy of 1,000 rupees, of which 800 rupees goes to B, and the remaining 200 rupees falls into the residuary bequest, or devolves according to the rules of intestate succession, as the case may be.

(b) A bequeaths an estate to B in case B's elder brother (who is married and has children) shall leave no issue living at his death. A also bequeaths to C a jewel, which belongs to B. B must give up the jewel or to lose the estate.

(c) A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, and to C an estate which will, under a settlement, belong to B if his elder brother (who is married and has children) shall leave no issue living at his death. B must elect to give up the estate or to lose the legacy.

(d) A, a person of the age of 18, domiciled in British India, but owning real property in England, to which C is heir at law, bequeaths a legacy to C and, subject thereto, devises and bequeaths to B "all my property whatsoever and wheresoever", and dies under 21. The real property in England does not pass by the will. C may claim his legacy without giving up the real property in England.

Bequest for man's benefit how regarded for purpose of election.

182. A bequest for a person's benefit is, for the purpose of election, the same thing as a bequest made to himself.

Section 170,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

The farm of Sultanpur Khurd being the property of B, A bequeathed it to C; and bequeathed another farm called Sultanpur Buzrug to his own executors with a direction that it should be sold and the proceeds applied in payment of B's debts. B must elect whether he will abide by the will, or keep his farm of Sultanpur Khurd in opposition to it.

Person deriving benefit indirectly not put to election.

183. A person taking no benefit directly under a will, but deriving a benefit under it indirectly, is not put to his election.

Section 171,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

The lands of Sultanpur are settled upon C for life, and after his death upon D, his only child. A bequeaths the lands of Sultanpur to B, and 1,000 rupees to C. C dies intestate shortly after the testator, and without having made any election. D takes out administration to C, and as administrator elects on behalf of C's estate to take under the will. In that capacity he receives the legacy of 1,000 rupees and accounts to B for the rents of the lands of Sultanpur which accrued after the death of the testator and before the death of C. In his individual character he retains the lands of Sultanpur in opposition to the will.

Person taking in individual capacity under will may in other character elect to take in opposition.

184. A person who in his individual capacity takes a benefit under a will may, in another character, elect to take in opposition to the will.

Section 172,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

The estate of Sultanpur is settled upon A for life, and, after his death, upon B. A leaves the estate of Sultanpur to D, and 2,000 rupees to B, and 1,000 rupees to C, who is B's only child. B dies intestate, shortly after the testator, without having made an election. C takes out administration to B, and as administrator elects to keep the estate of Sultanpur in opposition to the will, and to relinquish the legacy of 2,000 rupees. C may do this, and yet claim his legacy of 1,000 rupees under the will.

Exception to provisions of last six sections.

185. Notwithstanding anything contained in sections 179 to 184, where a particular gift is expressed in the will to be in lieu of something belonging to the legatee which is also in terms disposed of by the will, then, if the legatee claims that thing, he must relinquish the particular gift, but he is not bound to relinquish any other benefit given to him by the will.

Section 172,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

Under A's marriage-settlement his wife is entitled, if she survives him, to the enjoyment of the estate of Sultanpur during her life. A by his will bequeaths to his wife an annuity of 200 rupees during her life, in lieu of her interest in the estate of Sultanpur, which estate he bequeaths to his son. He also gives his wife a legacy of 1,000 rupees. The widow elects to take what she is entitled to under the settlement. She is bound to relinquish the annuity, but not the legacy of 1,000 rupees.

When acceptance of benefit given by will constitutes election to take under will.

186. Acceptance of a benefit given by a will constitutes an election by the legatee to take under the will, if he had knowledge of his right to elect and of those circumstances which would influence the judgment of a reasonable man in making an election, or if he waives inquiry into the circumstances.

Section 173,
Act X of 1865.

Illustrations.

(a) A is owner of an estate called Sultanpur Khurd, and has a life interest in another estate called Sultanpur Buzrug, to which upon his death his son B will be absolutely entitled. The will of A gives the estate of Sultanpur Khurd to B, and the estate of Sultanpur Buzrug to C. B in ignorance of his own right to the estate of Sultanpur Buzrug, allows C to take possession of it, and enters into possession of the estate of Sultanpur Khurd. B has not confirmed the bequest of Sultanpur Buzrug to C.

(b) B, the eldest son of A, is the possessor of an estate called Sultanpur. A bequeaths Sultanpur to C, and to B the residue of A's property. B having been informed by A's executors that the residue will amount to 5,000 rupees, allows C to take possession of Sultanpur. He afterwards discovers that the residue does not amount to more than 500 rupees. B has not confirmed the bequest of the estate of Sultanpur to C.

Circumstances in which knowledge or waiver is presumed or inferred.

187. (1) Such knowledge or waiver of inquiry shall, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, be presumed if the legatee has enjoyed for two years the benefits provided for him by the will without doing any act to express dissent.

Section 171,
Act X of 1865.

(2) Such knowledge or waiver of inquiry may be inferred from any act of the legatee which renders it impossible to place the persons interested in the subject-matter of the bequest in the same condition as if such act had not been done.

Section 172,
Act X of 1865.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B an estate to which she is entitled, and to C a coal-mine. C takes possession of the mine and exhausts it. He has thereby confirmed the bequest of the estate to B.

When testator's representatives may call upon legatee to elect

188. If the legatee does not, within one year after the death of the testator, signify to the testator's representatives his intention to confirm or to dissent from the will, the representatives shall, upon the expiration of that period, require him to make his election; and, if he does not comply with such requisition within a reasonable time after he has received it, he shall be deemed to have elected to confirm the will.

Section 176,
Act X of 1865

Postponement of election in case of disability.

189. In case of disability the election shall be postponed until the disability ceases, or until the election is made by some competent authority.

Section 177,
Act X of 1865.

1865

(2) A gift is said to be made in contemplation of death where a man, who is ill and expects to die shortly of his illness, delivers to another the possession of any moveable property to keep as a gift in case the donor shall die of that illness.

(3) Such a gift may be resumed by the giver; and shall not take effect if he recovers from the illness during which it was made; nor if he survives the person to whom it was made.

Illustrations.

(a) A being ill, and in expectation of death, delivers to B, to be retained by him in case of A's death,— a watch :

(b) A, being ill, and in expectation of death, delivers to B the key of a trunk or the key of a warehouse in which goods of bulk belonging to A are deposited, with the intention of giving him the control over the contents of the trunk, or over the deposited goods, and desires him to keep them in case of A's death. A dies of the illness during which he delivered these articles. B is entitled to the trunk and its contents or to A's goods of bulk in the warehouse.

(c) A, being ill, and in expectation of death, puts aside certain articles in separate parcels and marks upon the parcel respectively the names of B and C. The parcels are not delivered during the life of A. A dies of the illness during which he set aside the parcels. B and C are not entitled to the contents of the parcels.

PART V.

PROTECTION OF PROPERTY OF DECEASED.

Person claiming right by succession to property of deceased may apply for relief against wrongful possession.

191. (1) If any person dies leaving property, moveable or immoveable, any person claiming a right by succession thereto, or to any portion thereof, may make application to the District Judge of the district where any part of the property is found or situate for relief, either after actual possession has been taken by another person, or when forcible means of seizing possession are apprehended.

Section 1,
Act XIX of 1841.

(2) Any agent, relative or near friend, or the Court of Wards in cases within their cognizance, may, in the event of any minor, or any disqualified or absent person being entitled by succession to such property as aforesaid, make the like application for relief.

Section 2,
Act XIX of 1841.

Inquiry made by Judge.

192. The District Judge, to whom such application is made, shall, in the first place, examine the applicant on oath, and take such further evidence, if any, as he thinks necessary as to whether there is sufficient ground for believing that the party in possession or taking forcible means for seizing possession has no lawful title, and that the applicant, or the person on whose behalf he applies, is really entitled and is likely to be materially prejudiced if left to the ordinary remedy of a regular suit, and that the application is made bonâ fide.

Section 3,
Act XIX of 1841.

Procedure.

193. If the District Judge is satisfied that there is sufficient ground for believing as aforesaid but not otherwise, he shall summon the party complained of, and give notice of vacant or disturbed possession by publication, and, after the expiration of a reasonable time, shall determine summarily the right to possession (subject to regular suit as hereinafter provided) and shall deliver possession accordingly :

Section 4,
1841.

Provided that the Judge shall have the power to appoint an officer who shall take an inventory of effects, and seal or otherwise secure the same, upon being applied to for the purpose, without delay, whether he shall have concluded the inquiry necessary for citing the party complained of or not.

Appointment of curator pending determination of suit.

194. If it further appears upon such application and examination as aforesaid that danger is to be apprehended of the misappropriation or waste of the property before the summary suit can be determined, and that the delay in obtaining security from the party in possession or the insufficiency thereof is likely to expose the party out of possession to considerable risk, provided he is the lawful owner, the District Judge may appoint one or more curators whose authority shall continue according to the terms of his or their respective appointments, and in no case beyond the determination of the summary suit and the confirmation or delivery of possession in consequence thereof :

Section 5,
Act XIX of 1841.

Provided that, in the case of land, the Judge may delegate to the Collector, or to any officer subordinate to the Collector, the powers of a curator :

Provided, further, that every appointment of a curator in respect of any property shall be duly published.

Powers conferred on curator.

195. The District Judge may authorize the curator either to take possession of the property generally, or until security is given by the party in possession, or until inventories of the property have been made, or for any other purpose necessary for securing the property from misappropriation or waste by the party in possession :

Section 6,
1841.

Provided that it shall be entirely discretionary with the Judge, whether he allows the party in possession to continue in such possession on given security or not, and any continuance in possession shall be subject to such orders as the Judge may issue touching inventories, or the securing of deeds or other effects.

Prohibition of exercise of certain powers by curators.

196. (1) Where a certificate has been granted under Part VIII or under the Succession Certificate Act, 1889, or a grant of probate or letters of administration has been made, a curator appointed under this Part shall not exercise any authority lawfully belonging to the holder of the certificate or to the executor or administrator.

Section 23, Act VII of 1889.

VII of 1889

(2) All persons who have paid debts or rents to a curator authorized by a Court to receive them shall be indemnified, and the curator shall be responsible for the payment thereof to the person who has obtained the certificate, probate or letters of administration, as the case may be.

Curator to give security and may receive remuneration.

197. (1) The District Judge shall take from the curator security for the faithful discharge of his trust, and for rendering satisfactory accounts of the same as hereinafter provided, and may authorize him to receive out of the property such remuneration, in no case exceeding five per centum on the moveable property and on the annual profits of the immoveable property, as the District Judge thinks reasonable.

Section 7, Act XIX of 1811.

(2) All surplus money realized by the curator shall be paid into Court, and invested in public securities for the benefit of the persons entitled thereto upon adjudication of the summary suit.

(3) Security shall be required from the curator with all reasonable despatch, and, where it is practicable, shall be taken generally to answer all cases for which the person may be afterwards appointed curator; but no delay in the taking of security shall prevent the Judge from immediately investing the curator with the powers of his office.

Report from Collector where estate includes revenue-paying land.

198. (1) Where the estate of the deceased person consists wholly or in part of land paying revenue to Government, in all matters regarding the propriety of summoning the party in possession, of appointing a curator, or of nominating individuals to that appointment, the District Judge shall demand a report from the Collector, and the Collector shall thereupon furnish the same:

Section 8, Act XIX of 1811.

Provided that in cases of urgency the Judge may proceed, in the first instance, without such report.

(2) The Judge shall not be obliged to act in conformity with any such report; but, in case of his acting otherwise than according to such report, he shall immediately forward a statement of his reasons to the High Court, and the High Court, if it is dissatisfied with such reasons, shall direct the Judge to proceed conformably to the report of the Collector.

Institution and defence of suits.

199. The curator shall be subject to all orders of the District Judge regarding the institution or the defence of suits, and all suits may be instituted or defended in the name of the curator on behalf of the estate:

Section 11, Act XIX of 1811.

Provided that an express authority shall be requisite in the order of the curator's appointment for the collection of debts or rents; but such express authority shall enable the curator to give a full acquittance for any sums of money received by virtue thereof.

Allowances to apparent owners pending custody by curator.

200. Pending the custody of the property by the curator, the District Judge may make such allowances to parties having a prima facie right thereto as upon a summary investigation of the rights and circumstances of the parties interested he considers necessary, and may, at his discretion, take security for the repayment thereof with interest, in the event of the party being found, upon the adjudication of the summary suit, not to be entitled thereto.

Section 10, Act XIX of 1811.

Accounts to be filed by curator.

201. The curator shall file monthly accounts in abstract, and shall, on the expiry of each period of three months, if his administration lasts so long, and upon giving up the possession of the property, file a detailed account of his administration to the satisfaction of the District Judge.

Section 11, Act XIX of 1811.

Inspection of accounts and right of interested party to keep duplicate.

202. (1) The accounts of the curator shall be open to the inspection of all parties interested; and it shall be competent for any such interested party to appoint a separate person to keep a duplicate account of all receipts and payments by the curator.

Section 12, Act XIX of 1841.

(2) If it is found that the accounts of the curator are in arrear or that they are erroneous or incomplete, or if the curator does not produce them whenever he is ordered to do so by the District Judge, he shall be punishable with fine not exceeding one thousand rupees for every such default.

Bar to appointment of second curator for same property.

203. If the Judge of any district has appointed a curator, in respect of the whole of the property of a deceased person, such appointment shall preclude the Judge of any other district within the same province from appointing any other curator, but the appointment of a curator in respect of a portion of the property of the deceased shall not preclude the appointment within the same province of another curator in respect of the residue or any portion thereof:

347. Such conversion and investment as are contemplated by sections 345 and 346 shall be made at such times and in such manner as the executor or administrator thinks fit; and, until such conversion and investment are completed, the person who would be for the time being entitled to the income of the fund when so invested shall receive interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum upon the market-value (to be computed as at the date of the testator's death) of such part of the fund as has not been so invested:

Section 807,
Act X of 1865.

CHAPTER X.

OF THE PRODUCE AND INTEREST OF LEGACIES.

Legatee's title to produce of specific legacy.

349. The legatee of a specific legacy is entitled to the clear produce thereof, if any, from the testator's death.

Section 809,
Act X of 1865,
Section 128,
Act V of 1881.

Exception.—A specific bequest, contingent in its terms, does not comprise the produce of the legacy between the death of the testator and the vesting of the legacy. The clear produce of it forms part of the residue of the testator's estate.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths his flock of sheep to B. Between the death of A and delivery by his executor the sheep are shorn or some of the ewes produce lambs. The wool and lambs are the property of B.

(b) A bequeaths his Government securities to B, but postpones the delivery of them till the death of C. The interest which falls due between the death of A and the death of C belongs to B, and must, unless he is a minor, be paid to him as it is received.

(c) The testator bequeaths all his four per cent. Government promissory notes to A when he shall complete the age of 18. A, if he completes that age, is entitled to receive the notes, but the interest which accrues in respect of them between the testator's death and A's completing 18, forms part of the residue.

Residuary legatee's title to produce of residuary fund.

350. The legatee under a general residuary bequest is entitled to the produce of the residuary fund from the testator's death.

Section 810,
Act X of 1865,
Section 129,
Act V of 1881.

Exception.—A general residuary bequest contingent in its terms does not comprise the income which may accrue upon the fund bequeathed between the death of the testator and the vesting of the legacy. Such income goes as undisposed of.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator bequeaths the residue of his property to A, a minor, to be paid to him when he shall complete the age of 18. The income from the testator's death belongs to A.

(b) The testator bequeaths the residue of his property to A when he shall complete the age of 18. A, if he completes that age, is entitled to receive the residue. The income which has accrued in respect of it, since the testator's death, goes as undisposed of.

Interest when
payment of general legacy.

351. Where no time has been fixed for the payment of a general legacy, interest begins to run from expiration of one year from the testator's death.

Section 311,
Act X of 1865.
Section 130,
Act V of 1881.

Exception.—(1) Where the legacy is bequeathed in satisfaction of a debt, interest runs from the death of the testator.

(2) Where the testator was a parent or a more remote ancestor of the legatee, or has put himself in the place of a parent of the legatee, the legacy shall bear interest from the death of the testator.

(3) Where a sum is bequeathed to a minor with a direction to pay for his maintenance out of it, interest is payable from the death of the testator.

Interest when time fixed

352. Where a time has been fixed for the payment of a general legacy, interest begins to run from the time so fixed. The interest up to such time forms part of the residue of the testator's estate.

Section 312,
Act X of 1865.
Section 131,
Act V of 1881.

Explanation.—Where the testator was a parent or a more remote ancestor of the legatee, or has put himself in the place of a parent of the legatee and the legatee is a minor, the legacy shall bear interest from the death of the testator, unless a specific sum is given by the will for maintenance.

Rate of interest

353. The rate of interest shall be four per cent. per annum in all cases except when the testator was a Hindu, Muhammadan, Buddhist, Sikh or Jaina or an exempted person, in which case it shall be six per cent. per annum.

Section 313,
Act X of 1865.
Section 132, Act V of 1881.
"Six."

No interest on arrears of annuity within first year after testator's death.

354. No interest is payable on the arrears of an annuity within the first year from the death of the testator, although a period earlier than the expiration of that year may have been fixed by the will for making the first payment of the annuity.

Section 314,
Act X of 1865.
Section 133,
Act V of 1881.

Interest on sum
produce annuity.

355. Where a sum of money is directed to be invested to produce an annuity, interest is payable on it from the death of the testator.

Section 318,
Act X of 1865.
Sections 137
and 148, Act
V of 1881.

When each

Section 319,
Act X of 1865.
Sections 138
and 148, Act

360. Where an executor or administrator has given such notices as the High Court may, by any general rule, proscribe or, if no such rule has been made, as the High Court would give in an administration-suit, for creditors and others to send in to him their claims against the estate of the deceased, he shall, at the expiration of the time therein named for sending in claims, be at liberty to distribute the assets, or any part thereof, in discharge of such lawful claims as he knows of, and shall not be liable for the assets so distributed to any person of whose claim he shall not have had notice at the time of such distribution :

Section 820

Provided that nothing herein contained shall prejudice the right of any creditor or claimant to follow the assets, or any part thereof, in the hands of the persons who may have received the same respectively.

Creditor may call upon legatee to refund.

361. A creditor who has not received payment of his debt may call upon a legatee who has received payment of his legacy to refund, whether the assets of the testator's estate were or were not sufficient at the time of his death to pay both debts and legacies ; and whether the payment of the legacy by the executor or administrator was voluntary or not.

Section 321,
Act X of 1865.
Sections 140
and 148, Act
V of 1881.

When legatee, not satisfied or compelled to refund under section 361, cannot oblige one paid in full to refund.

362. If the assets were sufficient to satisfy all the legacies at the time of the testator's death, a legatee who has not received payment of his legacy, or who has been compelled to refund under section 361, cannot oblige one who has received payment in full to refund, whether the legacy were paid to him with or without suit, although the assets have subsequently become deficient by the wasting of the executor.

Section 322,
Act X of 1865.
Section 141,
Act V of 1881.

When unsatisfied legatee must first proceed against executor, if solvent.

363. Section 323,
Act X of 1865
Sections 142
and 148, Act V
of 1881.

Limit to refunding of one legatee to another.
